Supervisor Tells Questions Census-Taker Will Ask You

Only eight specific questions in the 1950 census of population will be asked of all individuals when enumerators make their calls at households during April. This was pointed out today by District Supervisor Hugh D. McMahon in charge of the United States Bureau of Census office at Fort Dodge, which will canvass Belmond and vicinity.

The eight inquiries to be made concerning every person will be name, relationship to head of household, race, sex, age, marital status, state or country of birth and citizenship status.

Two additional inquiries concern all persons 14 years old and over. These relate to employment status and kind of job.

The remainder of the questions will be asked only of a sample of persons, selected by chance according to the order in which their names fall on the census schedule.

For every fifth person, there will be four questions as to place of residence one year ago, country of birth of father and mother, whether attending school, and highest grade attended.

For every fifth person 14 years old and over, there are four questions—on number of weeks worked in 1949, income in 1949, veteran status (males only) and duration of unemployment (if unemployed).

Three other inquiries will apply to every thirtieth person 14 years old and over in certain categories. One in 30 persons, neither working nor seeking work during the week before the census, will be asked to report on kind of job last held if employed at any time in 1949.

One in 30 persons reporting themselves as ever having been married will be asked if they have been married more than once, and the number of years in present marital status. One in 30 married women will be asked how many children they have borne.

Homeward

The delicate, agile beauty of the homing pigeon suggests the heaven-fostered instinct that always brings it home. We, too, are birds in earthly flight ...all through life we are on our journey to a final resting place.

In providing that final tribute to a noble soul, gone home, how comforting it is to know that "everything will be as it should be" because of our careful attention to every detail and our faithful observance of every wish.

COLORED CAGERS CARDED; PROFITS GO TO PEE-WEE BASEBALL

Former Belmond Aces Will Form Opposition Team

As a rich dessert to the feast of basketball that local cage fans have enjoyed this season, an all-star team of Belmond basketeers will take on the hot-shot Harlem Hobos at the high school gymnasium next Tuesday night in a benefit tilt. Proceeds of the game will go to finance the pee-wee baseball program during the coming summer.

Belmond's line-up will sparkle with names of former Bronco aces. Among those who will see action are Larry Dorr, Wilmer Gabrielson, Gene Stoltenberg, Harlan Nafisen, Richard Crapser and Raymond Mehl. The latter two played this year for Waldorf Junior college at Forest City.

Oscar Lunstrom, who helped advance tiny Lanyon (Iowa) High as far as the sub-state tournament in 1942, also is included on the local squad. Other possible members are Roger Kinseth, currently on the Luther college varsity, and Les Classick, Iowa State Teachers gridder and former Bronco cage expert.

All but two of the Hobos are former college basketball performers. Captain Ace Brown, a set-shot artist, played for Frisco State and several other pro teams before joining the Harlem outfit. "Suitcase" Worthy attended Kentucky State. Dribbling is his specialty.

"Big Man" Brown, the Hobos' shorty at 5-9, is speedster of his outfit and once played for Morgan college. "Slats" Davis, 6-foot-4-inch center, starred at John Carroll. "Candy" Smith, a Western Reserve alumnus, plays wherever he's needed and displays equal capability at every position.

Pedro Boyd was with the original Harlem Globetrotters for five years and learned the fine art of clowning with this noted team. He is a deceptive ball handler and is ace-high where showmanship is concerned. "Baby" Rand is the newest member of the squad and the possessor of a deadly hook shot.

The Hobos put on a show that is strong on both entertainment and first-rate basketball. Playing every calibre of competition, they have won nearly 95 per cent of their games this season and are guaranteed to put on an exhibition that will please the most particular basketball fan.

Tickets are being peddled at a dollar apiece by a host of youngsters who are planning to participate in pee-wee baseball during vacation. They can also be purchased at the Coffee Shop, Belmond Auto company or Bowl-Mor Lanes.

"No one who enjoys really good basketball should miss this game," warns Coach "Pat" Patterson, who is in charge of the small-fry baseball pjrogram and promoter of next Tuesday's contest. "The colored boys are highly recommended as really expert players, and are said to put on a show that is more than worth the price."

The Belmond Junior high team will play Latimer in a curtain-raiser starting at 7:00 p. m., and the feature of the evening will begin about 8:15.

NEW BOWLING MARK SET

The high singles bowling mark for men, which stood at 255 at the start of this month, has twice been shattered in the past two weeks. On March 4, Gus Halvorson mowed down 277 pins to establish a new target for Belmond keglers to shoot at. On March 8, Fred Gordon scored a near miss on the target. He racked up what is currently second high score with a neat 268. Cht

Rockwell City Scoring Surge in Last Period Defeats Belmond in District Final, 51 to 45

Rockwell City outlasted a battling Bronco crew to take the Class A district basketball crown at Humboldt last Saturday night, 51 to 45, but the Wildcats had the toughest kind of tussle on their hands for three fourths of the game

A poor record from the free throw line contributed about as much as anything to Belmond's defeat. The Broncos converted only 11 out of 27 attempts for approximately 40 per cent, whereas the victors made 13 out of 21 for 60 per cent.

In addition, the Belmond basket seemed to have a lid on it during the final stanza—one effort after another spinning around the hoop and then out. In contrast, Rockwell City's efforts whipped the net with discouraging regularity, enabling the Cats to outscore the Broncs 17 to 9 in the closing quarter.

Rockwell City bounded into an early lead and appeared on its way to an easy triumph in the opening stages, but by the end of the first quarter Belmond had hacked the Wildcats' lead down to 9-7.

The winners cut loose with another splurge early in the second period, but the determined Broncos again had the antidote and knotted the count at 19-all in the waning moments of the first half. At the intermission Belmond trailed by only two points, 24-22.

The Broncos forged ahead for the first time with about five minutes of the third gone, 32-31, and maintained a narrow lead for the balance of the period. Entering the last quarter Belmond was in front, 36-34.

At this point the Wildcats began to find holes in the Bronco defense, which had previously made them work for every point. Marlo Eckhoff, Rockwell City's rangy center tallied on a push shot and a follow-in, with speedy Darrel Hurdel cashing on a drive-in and Phil Drennan swishing a set shot in between flurry put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

Halfway through the final period the Broncos pulled within two points, at 43-41, but a series of unsuccessful free throw efforts by Belmond helped the Wildcats again lengthen their lead to six points. Their healthy advantage enabled the Cats to resort to a stalling game, and that put the contest on ice.

Duane Trager concluded his cage career in a blaze of glory, insofar as scoring was concerned. He accounted for 18 points. Unfortunately, Trager's efforts were canceled by Eckhoff, who drilled the hoop for 20 points. Only six of those points, however, were made in the last half.

Jack Riggs turned in a nice performance, as did "Itchy" Kriens. Riggs was good for 10 points and Kriens seven. All of the Broncos who saw action played their hearts out, and despite the defeat it was one of the best games the Belmond crew turned in during the course of their successful season.

With Hurdel, Drennan and Don Cottong abetting the efforts of big Marlo Eckhoff, the Wildcats without question comprised as good a team as Belmond had met all year.

Women's Bowling Tourney Scheduled for April 18

Entries close on April 4 for team play and on April 11 for individuals and doubles competition in the handicap tournament being planned by the Women's Bowling association. Secretary Mary Gordon announces that there will be a $2.00 entry fee for each event, but that the fee will cover cost of bowling as well as prize money.

Actual play in the team competition will start on April 18, and a week later the singles and doubles contenders will take to the alleys. All play will be on a handicap basis, so mediocre bowlers will stand just as much chance to share in the prize money as the more skilled keglers.

Inspecting Stored Grain Now for Bug Infestation May Save Trouble Later

Wright county farmers who are experienced in grain storing usually inspect their bins every three months, observes County Extension Director Aaron R. Bowman. He says if insects are seen or if crusting or molding are present, control measures need to be carried out.

With the arrival of warmer temperatures, this is a good time to check for stored grain insects and head off further damage if they are present, Mr. Bowman says. Stored grain insects don't work at temperatures below 60 degrees.

To check for bugs, Bowman recommends taking the temperature of the grain. If insects are active, the temperatures will be above 65 degrees and may be as high as 108 degrees.

Fumigation is in order even in the coldest weather, if grain temperatures are above 65 degrees, the county extension director warns. To inspect for insects, he suggests a grain probe or running a hand down into the grain.

A new Iowa State college pamphlet "Control Stored Grain Insects" lists the various fumigants and their application rates. The pamphlet also pictures the insects that do damage in Iowa's stored grain.

This booklet includes measures to prevent infestations in new grain and has useful information on cleaning out bins and granaries so that bugs won't bother this year's crop.

Additional City Candidates Should Make for Better Election

If it's true that "competition is the spice of life," it is equally true that it's the "spice" of municipal politics. For that reason, we're happy that another ticket has entered the field for the coming city election. A slate of candidates riding into office unopposed certainly has little reason to believe that its election involves anything in the nature of a mandate from the people.

On the other hand, if there are two or more tickets—and they make clear, in advance of the election, how they intend to administer civic affairs to make the community a better place in which to live—THEN the voter has something to tie to. Moreover, the successful ticket is under obligation to live up to a definite plan of action.

Belmond is at a cross-roads, insofar as its future progress is concerned. Little has been accomplished in the way of capital improvements in recent years, and the time has come for the city to take an account of itself and determine what needs to be done to assure steady growth and continued prosperity.

We all know Belmond has grown; just how much — numerically, we will know when the results of next month's census-taking have been compiled. But we need no counting of noses to assure us that some civic improvments are essential if we're to continue to grow.

Therefor, it is the responsibility of every clear-thinking voter to cast his ballot for the ticket—or the individuals —he is convinced will contribute the most to the well-being of Belmond. Our city needs the administration of a constructive, aggressive, forward-looking mayor and council. A week from Monday, let's see that we get them!

Soil Conservation Is Essential, Even If We Must Pay For It

We have read that the Farm Bureau suggests a modest reduction in the Congressional appropriation for soil conservation as an economy measure—and we also have seen several editorial comments expressing approval of the farm organization's attitude.

Goodness knows, no faction should be discouraged in seeking government economy; but we're personally inclined to question the advisability of this particular step. The entire nation has too large a stake in conserving this most precious of our natural resources—the soil—to invoke economy measures that might result in its further depletion.

If farmers as a group, without the inducement of soil conservation payments, would follow voluntarily those practices the Agricultural Conservation Program advocates—all well and good. Unfortunately, however, too many of them seem disinclined to follow these practices on their farms unless they are paid to do so.

As an example: in 1947, when the soil conservation funds assigned to Wright county amounted to over $75,000, some 12,000 tons of liming materials were spread over Wright county acres; in 1948, when the amount available for compliance was reduced to less than $35,000, approximately 6,000 tons were used, and last year, with the fund for conservation payments boosted to more than $80,000, about 15,000 tons of lime were used.

It stands to reason that those farmers whose soil needs lime are convinced its use pays, for the lime costs them money even when they are partially repaid for compliance. But the fact that the $1.55 per ton compliance payment was not so widely available in 1948 as in 1949 resulted in 150 per cent LESS lime being used.

That one instance suffices to convince us that generously employed compliance payments must remain part and parcel of any adequate soil conservation program. And since the entire citizenry has a vital interest in the conservation of our irreplacable top soil, it seems to us that economies could best be effected in some other phase of the farm program.

Why the Show of Leniency Toward A Convicted Red Spy?

It is inevitable that the action of the federal court that suspended Valentin A. Gubitchev's 15-year sentence, thereupon ordering him deported to Russia, will be viewed by the public with mixed feelings. One thing is sure, the decision is certainly not in the "eye for an eye" tradition that customarily governs power politics.

Robert Vogeler, respected A. T. and T. foreign representative, is currently serving a 15-year term in a Hungarian prison on espionage charges that were unquestionably trumped up. His "guilt" was established by a "confession" that was obviously torture-inspired.

Gubitchev, proved guilty through due process of law in a democratic court, is given his freedom and returned to his homeland. We're not so foolish as to believe there are no underlying reasons for the combined decision of the state and justice departments to recommend this disposal of the Russian's case. But we certainly would like to know specifically what they were.

Is it believed that Joe Stalin will deal adequately with Brother Gubitchev, for committing the unseemly error of getting caught?

Is it hoped that the case may serve as a precedent that will possibly save other American citizens from Vogeler's fate?

Is the case intended to provide the world at large with a graphic contrast between Russian and American principles of justice?

Whatever ends the U. S. government hopes to attain by its leniency toward the Red spy, we sincerely hope they justify the means. Otherwise, the Russians will simply chalk up the case as another illustration of democracy's weakness.

A "yes" vote on the hospital bond issue, is a vote for a bigger and better Belmond.

If commercial corn producers want to join the potato farmers in the public's poor graces, all they need to do is pour on the fertilizer—drill closer—and defeat the goal of acreage reduction by adding further to the corn surplus.

—O—

Before taking pride in the fact that —as announced in a news story last week — Belmond's per capita cost of municipal government last year ran considerably under that of most towns in our population bracket, we should bear this in mind. A town must either grow—or die. And progress costs money.

—O—

At present, it appears quite likely that Hawaii will attain statehood—and that Alaska will be turned down. We hear a lot of explanations for this apparent discrimination, but we fear one has been passed over. Congress, we assume, is required to provide specifications for any flag changes. Well, seven times seven in 49. That's easy! But just how would you arrange 50 stars. Betcha THAT'S got 'em stumped!

—O—

One thing immediately strikes a person in reading the analysis of personal income distribution in Iowa, recently compiled by the state university. The highly industrialized counties, containing the largest centers of population, boast the highest per capita wealth. In other words, the rural areas are a mighty poor place to get rich. But we'd wager that Wright county's 24.7 million dollars and $1,239 average in 1947 bought at least as much happiness as Polk's 321.5 million and $1.510 per capita.

Expect 1950 Census Will Reveal Housing Units in U. S. Up by Eight Million

Despite wartime brakes on residential construction in the first half of the 1940-1950 decade, the seventeenth decennial census, to be taken this April, is expected to reveal the largest 10-year numerical increase in dwelling units in the nation's history.

The 1940 census of housing enumerated 37,325,470 dwelling units. The 1950 census of housing is expected to reveal an estimated increase of about eight million units, to an approximate total of 45 million units, according to the census bureau.

Of the 37.3 million dwelling units enumerated in 1940, about 34.8 million were occupied at the time of the census (April 1) and nearly 2.5 million were reported vacant.

Because of an unabated demand for more housing, the increase in number of occupied units is expected to exceed even the record increase in total number of units and will have a bearing on the number of vacant units reported as compared with 1940. No national housing census was taken before 1940, so the number of vacant dwelling units has never been ascertained for earlier years.

Prior to 1940 the decennial census did not enumerate dwelling units as such but the number of families, as defined for the earlier censuses, is nearly synonymous with that of occupied dwelling units.

The number of occupied dwelling units (families) as reported for each census from 1890 and their numerical increase by decades was: 1890 — 12,690,152; 1900—15,963,965, an increase of 3,273,813 over the previous census; 1910—20,255,555, increase of 4,291,590; 1920—24,351,676, increase of 4,096,121; 1930—29,904,663, increase of 5,552,987; 1940—34,854,532, increase of 4,949,869.

Belmond Voters Choose Officials in Election Monday

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

By Veryl 'Fritz

Farm editor Don Muhm was on the trail of a feature story and had made arrangements to borrow Pat Gallagher's car. Pat gave Don the keys with instructions as to where the car was parked, and finished with the statement, "Well, anyway it is the only car with a '50 plate in front and a '49 license in back."

Don tore out and was giving the key a good try, but with no results when a man walked up and wanted to know if he was having trouble.

Don then found out that there were two cars that fitted Pat's description, and he had tried the wrong one first. One of life's embarrassing little moments.

—M-S—

It made the staff feel good the first day we walked down Main Street. It was 9 a. m. and people out getting business underway greeted us with "Good Mornings's" and "Hello's" just as if we were regular Belmond citizens. Those hearty welcomes made us feel right away as if we were life-long friends.

—M-S—

While ad salesman Bill Freeman was calling on Fulton Funeral Home, he had a chat with Mr. Fulton, after lining up the ad, of course. Ready to depart, Bill said "I'd better leave, got a lot of work to get done." Mr. Fulton then gave Bill these words of advice:

"Work today as if you were going to live forever; but live today as if you were going to die tomorrow."

Maybe a word to the wise is sufficient, and maybe you ought to consider the source of wisdom.

—M-S—

Belmond appears to be a Canasta Card playing town. At least the staff has been amazed at the number of the Canasta Clubs they have heard about.

—M-S—

While driving on the Belmond streets, the editor noticed a sign on the front of the Belmond Baptist church which made quite an impression on me. The words in neon letters "It is later than you think" which surround a large electric clock seemed quite effective.

—M-S—

Little "Jeff" Hansen, son of publisher George Hansen, kept the staff amused one of the mornings he wasn't in school. The little animals he was making out of paper were quite authentic. He seemed a little miffed when a couple of the staff memmers weren't smart enough to recognize all the animals.

—M-S—

Staff members Frank Ferguson and Dorothy Kent started out of the Independent office Saturday afternoon and didn't have to go far to find somethting of interest. In the window of the office shared by Belmond Shoppers Guide, Kennedy Transfer, and Tracy Dairy, they saw a small girl lying in the window.

Although the girl, with her blond hair in curlers, wasn't asleep, she was being covered up for a good nap. Perhaps one good way to beat baby-sitting.

—M-S—

Although aware of the fact that time passes quickly, the student editor, working at Pat Gallagher's desk, was a bit startled Friday noon.

Just as the noon whistle blew, seven-year-old Nancy Gallagher burst into the office, and called out "Daddy."

Then just as the editor started to turn around, she realized her mistake and quickly said, "Oh, I thought you were daddy" and rushed out just as fast as she came in.

—M-S—

The unusual happened to the Rev. A. T. Rollene, pastor of the Fundamental Baptist Church in Belmond, the other day. He received telegrams announcing the birth of a grandson twice within one hour late Friday night and early Saturday morning, March 17, and 18.

The first son was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Richards of Houghton, Mich., their third child. The second arrived Saturday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Merton Rollene of Grays Lake, Ill., their first child.

Mrs. Rollene was in Houghton, Mich., with their daughter when the grandsons arrived.

—M-S—

Student business manager Don Razee is convinced the world is a pretty small place after all.

Friday, Ed Tracy stopped in at the Independent office looking for Don to see if he was any relation of the Razees he had known when he used to live at Portsmouth. Found out that Don's mother had worked for the Tracy's before her marriage.

Farmers' Class Visits Packing Plant Monday

Twenty-one local farmers, accompanied by school superintendent D. A. Faris and vocational education instructor Duane Sandage, journeyed to Austin, Minn. last Monday to tour the Hormel and Company meat packing plant.

The trip, which climaxed night school classes, included a livestock marketing demonstration plus a tour of the entire plant.

Hospital Drive Extending Now To Rural Areas

This evening at the city hall campaign workers from three nearby townships and two neighboring towns will meet to complete plans for canvassing their territories in the next few days for hospital pledges.

Finance Chairmen R. W. Courson and W. H. Trafford have named the following drive chairmen for these areas: Twin Lakes township—Ben Heginger and Art Ruka; Norway township—John Ritema and Clarence Johnson; Avery township—John Henn and Gerald Burk; Goodell — Carl Green; and Rowan—Charles Keith and Carl Rietz.

Courson announced Tuesday that continued canvassing for pledges in Belmond proper during the past week has swelled the local total by another $8,000, bringing it to approximately $87,000.

Interviews in Pleasant, Belmond, Grant and Iowa townships last weekend and the first of this week did not bring forth as large a total of pledges as had been anticipated—some $20,000 having been promised to date. However, the finance chairmen are confident that these townships will contribute their due share.

Next week the finance committee representatives from Meservey, Alexander and the countryside to the east of those communities will meet in Belmond, on a date and at an hour yet to be set. With launching of the fund campaign in this area, the hospital drive will be going full force throughout the territory which the new hospital will serve.

Approval of the $36,000 municipal bond issue by voters of Belmond in Monday's election will make all pledges to date effective. The finance chairmen intend to complete the fund campaign as soon as possible thereafter, so the building committee will know just what amount of money it can count on in planning the hospital's construction.

Adult Classes Changed

The last meeting of the adult education classes will be held in the Belmond High school, Monday evening, March 27, instead of Wednesday, March 28, as originally planned.

People's Ticket

In a statement concerning Monday's election, A. W. Loats, candidate for mayor on the People's Party ticket, says: "If elected, our chief objective will be to make Belmond a law abiding, progressive community, and to take any action that will promote the betterment of our city; however, we are fully aware that any initiative for major improvments will be limited to funds available.

"Harmonious cooperation is an essential for good city government and in order for all to feel civic pride in their community, it is important that the citizens of Belmond feel that they are being fairly represented. We leave that representation to the will of the people."

Also on Loats' ticket are Ed Kennedy and Jack Meints, councilmen-at-large; Al Mennenga, ward one candidate; Orrin Jacobson, ward two candidate; and Bob Tomson, ward three candidate. The People's Party does not have a candidate for the office of city treasurer.

Kennedy, a past commander of the Amercian Legion and a Chamber of Commerce member, was appointed mayor in the summer of 1942 and was reelected in 1944. He operates a garage.

Meints was elected to the council in 1938, '40, '42, and '44. He did not run in '46 but was again elected in 1948, Meints is in the produce business.

Al Mennenga, appointed to the council in 1942, was reelected to the council in '44, '46 and '48. He is a service station operator.

Orrin Jacobson, with no previous political experience in Belmond, is head of a furniture store on Main Street.

Tomson, who owns a grocery store and is a World War II veteran, is now completing his first term as a council member.

Teachers' Meeting Gives Students Holiday Friday

Concert Delayed; Chorus Scheduled Again on May 1st

The date of the Fort Dodge Men's Chorus concert has been postponed until Monday, May 1. The free concert, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, was originally scheduled for March 27, but due to an accident of one the group, was changed to the later date.

Their accompanist, a woman piano player, fell and broke her hip last week, and will not be able to join the group for nearly a month.

The Fort Dodge Men's Chorus is composed solely of amateur musicians who sing for pleasure and only with the understanding that no admission be charged to hear them. A dinner for the visiting songsters will be provided by the Chamber of Commerce.

Tickets may be obtained for the post-concert meal, which in the past has always been a festive affair, from George Infelt at his store, at the First State Bank from Luin Cox, or at Dr. A. M. Larson's office. Charge for the dinner will be $1.50 per plate.

The musical soiree will be held at the high school auditorium and the exact time will be announced at a later date.

DR. LARSON ELECTED SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

Dr. A. M. Larson was elected president of the school board for 1950-51 at the board meeting Monday night. He succeeds Dr. S. P. Leinbach in this post.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN REACHES $875 TOTAL

With the quota set at $1500 in the Red Cross fund campaign now going on in Belmond and surrounding rural areas, one of the co-chairmen said Tuesday that the goal could be reached. At present, the drive has collected $875. Solicitors are having the best results in years, Ted Behrends and K. C. Kickbush, co-chairmen of the drive said.

The drive receipts include most of the Belmond community with several rural areas' results not yet available. The rural Red Cross drive was started a week after the city campaign began.

Mr. Behrends commended the chairmen of the different districts and their workers, for their hard work and good results. The drive will be finished next week, he said.

Chairman for the Belmond township is Mrs. Stanley Moe; for Pleasant township, Don Braner; and for Norway township, Mrs. Thomas Mathre.

Each of these people was made responsible for naming solicitors for their area. A complete list of the workers is not available.

VOTING PROCEDURE

All voting will be from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Ward one voters will vote in the basement of the city library. Ward one includes everyone who lives south of Main Street.

Ward two voters will vote at the City Hall. Ward two includes everyone living north of Main Street and west of Fourth Avenue.

PAST CITY ELECTIONS SHOW HOSPITAL ISSUE NEEDS 429 'YES' VOTES

On Monday, March 27, the voters of Belmond will decide whether or not they will build a hospital. The hospital bond issue of $36,000 will be at stake—and the funds already pledged for the hospital construction fund are contingent upon approval of the issue.

Plans for building the hospital in Belmond will get underway if "enough" voters go to the polls and vote "yes" on the issue. "Enough" voters means that there must be a majority of this year's votes saying "yes" on the question —however, the number must also exceed a majority of 1948's total number of votes. In '48 there were 856 ballots cast thereby requiring 429 ballots in favor of the issue.

The voting in the past has gradually been on the increase—excluding the war years. In 1940 there were 660 ballots cast but this dropped to a low of 168 ballots in 1942. In 1944, the voting was even lower with 127 votes. In 1946, 567 people went to the polls and '48 saw almost 900 ballots cast.

Plan Will Allow Filing Homestead Application Here

County Assessor F. Ross Henry announces in today's issue that a representative of his office will be available at the city hall on April 1 and again on April 8 to accept applications for homestead exemption.

Property owners in Belmond and the adjacent townships of Pleasant and Belmond can file their applications on those dates between the hours of 8:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m.

Persons who have filed previously are urged to bring a copy of their 1949 application. Those filing for the first time are asked to bring their recorded deed or contract.

Mr. Henry reports that between 80 and 90 per cent of the county's rural residents have mailed in or delivered to the assessor's office their personal property declarations for the current year. He adds that replies from town residents, to whom forms were sent after mailing to farmers had been completed, are being returned at a steady rate.

The assessor emphasizes that his representative at the city hall will receive only homestead exemption applications. He stated that a large majority of the property owners in Pleasant and Belmond townships have filed for their exemptions, but that a good many residents of Belmond have yet to file.

Mr. Henry recommends that all all property owners in the Belmond area who have not yet applied should make a particular point of availing themselves of the assistance of the assessor's representative during one of his two days on duty here.

Citizen's Ticket

Voters of the city of Belmond will go to the polls Monday, March 27 and decide who the future administration of this city willl be for the next two years.

Running for mayor on the Citizens' Ticket is C. C. Christie and he makes the following statement: "The citizens of Belmond are fortunate in having two complete tickets of capable candidates for city offices.

"However, I feel that the Citizens' Ticket, members of which have been very successful in their own line of work, is composed of reliable and conscientious men who will give Belmond sound and progressive government."

"The necessary improvements that should be made in Belmond will be made conservatively and wisely by the members of the Citizens' Ticket. We urge everyone to exercise their right to vote on Monday, March 27."

Christie, a World War I veteran and past commander of the Belmond post of the American Legion, was president of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce when it changed from a local club to national affiliation.

Christie was one of the coorganizers of the local Gridiron club, of which he was president for its first three years, and has already served one term as a councilman for the second ward.

Also billed on the Citizens' Ticket are R. B. Thompson and Ardell Johnson, both running for councilman-at-large; Jim Mariga, ward one candidate; George Infelt, ward two candidate; Glenn Martin, ward three candidate; and Bert Hewlett, candidate for city treasurer.

Thompson heads the Thompson Hybrid Seed Corn Company, is on the Board of the Belmond Fire Department, and is an honorary member of the Future Farmers of America.

Johnson is in his third year as chief of the Fire Department, after serving as assistant chief for four years, and is a member of the I. O. O. F. He has been in business on Main Street for 14 years.

Jim Mariga is the Fire Department's secretary and he is now bulk agent for the Sinclair Oil Company.

Infelt, active in scout work a year ago, is the president of the Chamber of Commerce and a World II veteran. He heads a merchandising store.

Martin, president of G. M. I. Men's club for three years, a World War II veteran, is now plant engineer for General Mills and the scoutmaster of a local Scouting group.

Hewlett is president of the First State Bank of Belmond and has been very active in civic affairs.

MONSIGNOR HRADECKY SPEAKS TODAY FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Monsignor W. C. Hradecky, of Duncan, was engaged to address the Belmond Chamber of Commerce at a dinner to be held at noon today in the basement of the Library. Hradecky's topic will be "Conditions in Russia."

Hradecky is a native of Wisconsin but was educated in the then Austria-Hungary portion of Europe.

Since his ordination, Hradecky has studied at DePaul university in Chicago, Marquette university in Milwaukee, Boulder university in Idaho and at North Dakota university at Grand Forks.

In 1938, he travelled to Russia and spent some time in Stalingrad, Moscow, Kiev and many other cities of importance.

Dr. Hoffman Here For PTA Meeting

One of the most important Parent-Teachers association meetings of the year, will feature Dr. Olin E. Hoffman, director of dental hygiene, Iowa State Department of Health, next Wednesday evening in the Belmond High school auditorium. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Hoffman, prominent dental health lecturer, will speak on proper dental hygiene. Some of the points to be stressed in his talk will be in regard to decaying teeth, the time required to grow a permanent tooth, and the fundamentals of good dental care.

Following Dr. Hoffman's lecture, a 15-minute film, titled "It's Your Health" will be shown to the group.

School Nurse Hermia Shefveland says that the meeting is open to the public and that all are urged to attend. Music furnished by the Belmond High school vocal groups will be directed by Miss Eldoris Kintzi following Dr. Hoffman's lecture.

'Rustic Dance' Friday Night Nets More Than 100 Dollars

Over a hundred dollars were given by the people attending the "rustic dance" Friday night to aid in buying furniture for the dining room of the remodeled Veterans Memorial building.

The "rustic dance" was organized and put on by the women's auxiliaries of the VFW and American Legion, in the dining room of the Memorial building.

Prizes were awarded to William Mack and Mrs. Ray Thompson for the man and woman who dressed in the most rustic manner.

A band organized and led by Ed Spurling provided the music for the party, which was attended by approximately 500 people. Other members of the newly organized Belmond band were Alvin Lass, Gene Bradley and Phil Littlefield.

Sandwiches and coffee were served by members of the auxiliaries. A large birthday cake was provided by Mrs. Carroll Bamford, president of American Legion Auxiliary, in recognition of the thirty-first anniversary of the founding of the American Legion.

Looking a little leery of Ray Thompson with his false nose are Bill Mack and Mrs. Ray Thompson, who won prizes for the most appropriate man's and woman's costume.

Snow on First Day of Spring Doesn't Faze School Children

A glance at the calendar Tuesday said that it was supposed to be spring — but a glance outdoors did anything but agree with the calendar.

With light snow falling nearly all day, and the streets slushy and full of puddles from the Monday night snow, everyone was a little wary of spring's entrance, except Miss Mary Molstad's first graders.

The first graders were enjoying the snow, making snowmen and having snowball fights on the lawn surrounding the Belmond Public school, and seemed not a bit unhappy because spring weather was a few days late.

Betty Just, 7, Sandra Johnson 6, and Karen Shahan, 6, were trying to build a snowman, rolling a huge ball of snow on the lawn. Sondra Stoltenberg, 8, a third grader, and first grader, Carolyn [illegible]gate, 6, were throwing snowballs at a tree.

Amidst the shouts of joy, as the little children ran from one side of the school lawn to the other, the snow kept right on falling—turning to water almost as soon as it hit the ground.

David Ammerman, 6, Miran Kling, 6, were having a friendly snowball contest with Richard McLaughlin, 7, and Jerry Kaduce, 7. The way they scampered about the yard depicted anything but unhappiness abont the delay of springlike weather.

On main street, the people hurried from door to door to escape the wet snow, perhaps muttering about this being the first day of spring.

Freezer Demonstration Given Wednesday Night

The second in a series of three freezer demonstrations on proper methods of preserving fruits and vegetables in a deep freeze, will be given at the Helland and Long Implement Company in Belmond, Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., March 29.

A representative from the International Harvester Company will conduct the demonstration. Information will be presented by the company demonstrator concerning preserving and cooking foods, to be placed in deep freeze units.

The first demonstration was held March 8, and the third and last of the series will be April 19.

Farmers Accept Corn Allotments--But Reluctantly

"What do the farmers around Belmond think of the Production Management Administration corn allotments." Here's the results of a survey taken from farmers interviewed on main street Saturday afternoon.

A majority of the farmers interviewed, 68 percent, were in favor of the corn acreage allotments, and planned to follow their allotment; while 28 percent of the corn raisers were definitely against limiting corn acres; with 12 percent partial neither way; and two percent undecided about any corn plans at all.

The strongest arguments put up by the farmers were the fact that they were being asked to decrease acreage on the one crop that has made Iowa famous the world around.

They were asked to decrease corn acreage, as one farmer said, which would automatically decrease the farmer's wages, since corn has been known as the farmers' chief money crop.

And then too, there were those farmers who were completely behind the PMA allotments.

Two farmers said that they were glad to have a chance of seeding down some of their acres to red clover or other roughage crops.

Several farmers said that for the renter, it was no good, but for the land owner, it was O. K. And then, too, there were several who said that they knew of many farmers who weren't holding with the corn acreage allotments.

Many also said that they they couldn't see staying with their allotments because they believed that any restriction on corn acreage would hurt the farmer.

Of the two percent that were undecided as to whether they were in favor of the allotments or not, they confessed that they knew little or nothing about the PMA.

However, they did express the view that there was too much corn in the country, or that something should be done about corn prices.

Corn Acreage Appeals

Oscar J. Hanson, Wright county PMA chairman, said Tuesday that of the more than 1900 farm allotments issued in Wright county, there have been only 125 appeals for more corn acreage. The 15-day appeal deadline will be passed this weekend.

Band Mothers, Students Earn Money For New Band Uniforms

Through the work of the Band Mothers Club and the enthusiastic band members work in canvassing the town of Alexander, the public high school was outfitted in new uniforms.

The mothers of the band members provided lunches at the basketball games, giving the profits to the fund for the desired new uniforms.

The uniforms which have grey pants with one yellow stripe down each side are topped with royal blue jackets. One lapel on the jacket is turned back repeating the grey color and is fastened to the brass buttons. Yellow is carried out again in the outfit with the shoulder braid. Leather belts and the traditional style hat completes the new uniform.

The 17 piece band will display their uniforms at the annual music contest at aHmpton, April 15. The Franklin County Music Festival this spring is the second place the band members will perform before the public in their grey and blue uniforms.

The musical socres that Mr. S. Bulka, director of the band, has selected for the Hampton music contest are "Magnas Overture," "Shalamar", and the "Henderson Field March."

FIVE EAGER FISHERMEN

Harty Family Waiting For Fishing Season

By Don Muhm

It would he hard to find another family in Belmond more happy that spring is coming than the Cleatis Harty family of 611 Second Avenue N. E.—and the fishing season has a lot to do with it.

As far as Cleatis Harty is concerned, it means the thought of hitching his fishing boat, mounted on a two-wheeled trailer, behind his car and heading out for Clear Lake early on Sunday mornings to spend the day trying to snag four-pound wallleyes. Or, maybe bringing home a panful of blue gills for Mrs. Harty to fry for supper

As far as two of the three Harty boys are concerned, the beginning of the fishing season means rainy nights spent catching slippery night crawlers from the Harty's back yard, and the fun of fishing with their Dad.

Tommy, 18, is in the navy and will not be able to go with his two brothers, Eddie, 7 ,and Kenneth, 11, on their annual summer fishing trips.

Mr. Harty modestly related that last summer he caught 113 walleyes, four northerns, and hundreds of yellow bass, and blue gills from Clear Lake.

He said there was only one day last year that he came home "skunked", but even then the Harty clan brought home a nice walleye that seven-year-old Eddie caught. Mr. Harty jokingly says that he'll never hear the last of that.

The Harty boys have a private business of their own set up in their backyard. When the Hartys moved to the present site of their home on Second Avenue, Mr. Harty "planted" night crawlers" in the backyard. That was more than three years ago.

Last summer, the boys found that they had such a surplus of the slippery fish-baiters that they decided to sell them to the fishermen of Belmond. The Hartys venture to guess that the boys sold close to two or three gallons of night crawlers a week during the summer months. This little business venture put the boys in ice-cream cones, Mr. Harty laughed.

You'd think that a sportsman like Mr. Harty would miss fishing during the wintertime—well, you're right, but he has a beautiful hobby that keeps him from getting too far away from his pastime. Last winter, he repaired 35 reels, built five flyrods, eight casting rods, and nine Calcutta rods in his home.

Repairing rods and reels, and building rods from everything ranging from bamboo poles to spun glass is a hobby of Mr. Harty's that has given him the wintertime business of many fishermen throughout this section of the state.

At present Mr. Harty can think of only one thing, and that is the new fishing boat he is planning to start building next week. It's going to be a "V-type" bottom, 14 foot boat, he says, and when it is in operation, it will be powered with his four horse-power engine.

Beneath a tree south of the Harty's home, sits the old 16-foot long fishing boat. It has carried the family over fish-infested waters for six years. Mr. Harty refers to it as the old "battleship."

Mrs. Harty said that her husband planned on building the new boat in the county shed, as he works for the county road maintenance commission. He's afraid that if he builds it in their basement, he might not be able to get it out of the door.

The Harty boys have a new formula for keeping night crawlers during the summer months. They take dead leaves, dampen them, and place them over eight to ten inches of dirt in a 26 by 18 inch box.

The night-crawlers crawl onto the wet oak leaves, and at the same time, eat the oak leaves. This formula helps Eddie and Kenneth keep the three or four gallons of night crawlers they often catch in one night in their backyard.

Even seven-year old Eddie can tell you when fishing season begins, if you ask him, and he knows you can catch walleyes at Clear Lake in less than two months or blue gills and sunfish in three months.

Mrs. Harty said that she never used to like fishing, but since the family has taken to fishing like ducks to water, she says, "I like fishing now — that's all I hear around here!"

Wide Selection For Easter Hats

"Don your Easter bonnet" and join the Easter parade for Easter, April 9, is just around the corner.

Straws are always a favorite spring hat material and there are many to choose from this year. The soft saturn straw is featured in tans and browns with Tuskon straw appearing in chartreuse and red.

Light, lacy straws are woven with metallic threads, and vari-colored strips of straw are inter-woven, forming plaids. Sometimes the straw is woven into two different patterns, one for the crown and another for the brim.

Rayon, wide grosgrain and crisp cotton pique ribbons as well as flowers and pearls are the materials for trimming that adds a distinguished touch.

Cloche's or hats with little brim and sailors fitted close to the head are popular for short hair cuts. The "bonnets that grandmother used to wear", are back in style, minus the big bow that ties under the chin.

The half-curved brim, or flower and ribbon accent on the side is flattering to women with round faces. Long hair can be set off with the old-fashioned derby and the cloche with a slight touch of lilies of the valley.

Rural School Teacher Finds Teaching Methods Different

A rural school teacher, Miss Gladys Christians, 22, of Belmond, said Monday that rural school teaching practices and studies have come a long ways since she was a pig-tailed first grader.

In school her 16 pupils range from kindergarten up to the eighth grade, but she has no third grade pupils. There is one pupil in the primary or kindergarten grade, one first grader, three second graders, two fourth graders, two fifth gaders, two sixth graders, three seventh graders, and one pupil in the eighth grade.

Miss Christians' pupils usually walk to school, with the distance varying from a quarter of a mile, to almost two miles. Miss Christians, who lives in Belmond, either drives to her school or rides the distance with Mr. Edd Riekens.

At present, teaching the 16 students of Pleasant No. 8, located one mile south and two miles east of Belmond, Miss Christians relates that today the rural children attending the first eight grades of school have many new advantages that the pupils of a decade ago didn't have.

For instance, Miss Christians, who makes her home in Belmond with her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Riekens, attended eight years of preliminary education at Norway No. 4, a rural school south of Kanawha. There, the only phonics she had was something like "k" sounded like "kah" and that "d"' sounded like "dah".

Now days, the young pupils go through the origin of the letters, along with instructions about the sound of various words and letter combinations. It, according to Miss Christians, gives the little folks a better start in the beginning stages of reading.

Also 10 years ago, about the most the pupils received in the way of liberal arts, was cutting and pasting with construction paper, and coloring mimeographed sketches.

The rural students, from the primary or kindergarten to the eighth grade now do everything from molds, woodcutting and cork carving, to mounting aluminum metal sheeting pictures on plywood.

A decade ago, the country school students had little, if any, practical training in science. Today, the second graders know why sidewalks crack in the wintertime; the third graders know why salt or sugar dissolve in water; the fourth graders can set a hard-boiled egg on the mouth of a bottle, and by heating the bottom of the bottle cause the egg to drop into the bottle.

And in spelling, the words are not memorized by repitition, but by writing the words one day, and using them in sentences the next. Then they examine them for homonyms, synonyms or ananyms and then have a test review over the words on the following day.

Miss Christians seemed to think that these improvements have made it easier for rural young people to learn at an earlier age, and that the trend was to teach the students more in a practical way at earlier ages than in the past.

The children enjoy much the same things for recreation during recess time as Miss Christians did when she was at school. Almost every rural school has the usual swings, see-saws, and softball diamond behind the school house.

She said that the rural schools have been increasing in size, and that these newer methods of teaching have helped both the rural teacher and her pupils.

BOYS DELIVER PAPERS TO HELP SICK FRIEND

A double switch between two brothers gets an out-of-town daily paper delivered every evening to more than 50 Belmond families.

Alan Trees, 14, took over the paper route belonging to his brother, Tim, 11, while Tim took over Jack Dunton's paper route during Jack's recent illness.

A little over a week ago Jack, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Dunton, became ill with chicken pox. Tim Trees, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Trees, took over Jack's route, because he had travelled the route many times with Jack and knew it thoroughly.

And then Tim's brother, Alan, took over Tim's paper route during the period Tim would be delivering for Jack. Between the two Trees brothers, the daily paper is being delivered as though nothing had ever happened.

AFTER PLANNING AND DESIGNING

Belmond Couple Builds Own House

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Daniels are one of the proudest married couples in Belmond. They are just putting the finishing touches on the seven-room house they built themselves.

The new home has three bedrooms, a living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry room and bath.

After designing their home the Daniels looked through various magazines for a similar house plan. Much to their surprise they found a plan identical to their own with but one exception. The Daniels had divided the kitchen and the laundry rooms into two separate units instead of having them combined as in the other plan.

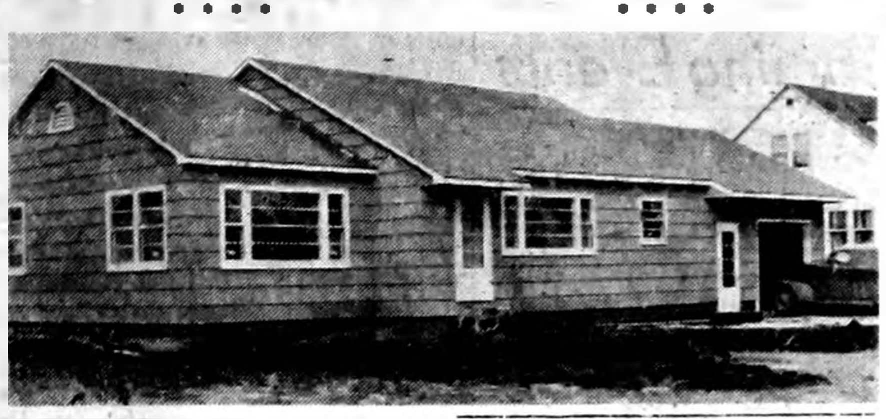
Starting to build in the middle of November, the Daniels are planning to move into their home April 1.

The low ranch-style house is shingled in green and has two large bay windows facing the south—one in the dining room and the other in the living room.

Mrs. Daniels proudly pointed out the intricate grooving which separates each panel in the pine paneled bedrooms which her husband constructed. The third bedroom, which is done in plaster, will be painted in a color scheme that will blend with the other rooms.

"My wife is going to do the interior decorating," Mr. Daniels said as he busily worked on the wall light switch. Mrs. Daniels explained that the living room will be done in Chinese red and chartreuse and will have a warm atmosphere when draped. A single pair of draperies will be pulled over the two corner windows—the bay window and the small picture window that flanks it on the west wall.

Mr. Daniels built a pair of revolving shelves, using a car bearing, for Mrs. Daniel's kitchen. Having a green-blue and off-white color scheme, the kitchen has a built-in dinette set in one corner complete with benches and two drop leafs.



Off the kitchen, Mrs. Daniels has a store room with sufficient shelves to keep a good stock of canned goods close at hand.

Sewing the draperies and bedspreads for the bedrooms herself, Mrs. Daniels is going to have curtains of monk's cloth with interwoven yarn which will be tied in with a matching bedspread.

By building their own home, the Daniels have estimated that they have saved a third of the cost.

Talk on Farm Records By Extension Economist

Charles Donhowe, an extension economist from the Iowa State college extension service, gave a talk on "Keeping Farm Records" last Monday night in the high school auditorium. His audience was the Adult Education Class in agriculture.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Bamford visited at Dallas Center Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Sloan.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kadolph and Pam were dinner guests in the Bernard Kadolph home near Eldora Sunday.

Belmond Building Spree Ups Total To 7 Million Mark

Belmond will continue to grow this spring, if the past few years are any indication. Since the end of the war, Belmond has grown materially in size and importance.

The favorable expansion got well under way with the completion of the General Mills plant, an important project in the community. And there are a lot of new homes going up here too.

Rumor has it that 21 new homes will be constructed here this year, but a more conservative and more accurate estimate came from a local real estate firm. It guessed that the figure would be closer to 15. At any rate, the building boom is on.

Being dollarwise, an estimate of the increase in construction and building in the last five years comes to nearly $7,000,000. This estimate includes all industrial and business projects and residential buildings in the community.

"There have been nearly 100 new homes built in the last five years," said a story in the Belmond Independent last year. And now the city still gives every indication of continuing the building trend.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN, STOCK NEAR MESERVEY

Plans are being made to build a new barn on tenant Mayard Bertilson's farm, a mile and three-quarters south of Meservey. The Bertilson barn burned to the ground Monday night.

A reported 130 head of livestock perished in the blaze. Also home machinery, hay and straw, and several bushel of oats.

The fire broke out about 9 p. m. Monday night, while the Bertilsons were visiting in Meservey.

The Meservey Fire Department arrived at the scene shortly after the blaze had enveloped the barn. The firemen kept the blaze from spreading to nearby buildings. Little could be done to save the barn on the farm owned by Joe Pletch of Belmond.

Clark McNeal, of Courson-McNeal Agency, managers of the Pletch farm, estimated damage at $8,000. The barn was covered by insurance.

The animals lost in the blaze include seven stock cattle, 15 sows along with 118 little pigs.

CORN ALLOTMENTS . . .

And then there were 12 percent of the farmers talked to that said the corn acreage allotments were good in some respects, but could use some changes in others.

For instance, several farmers set out the point that many were getting more in comparison with others, and others having the same views, said that the farmer that hasn't raised much corn in the last three years, was getting a raw deal.

They also said that the big corn raisers, as in years past, would still be the big corn raisers.

One of the questions asked—"What are you going to plant in the extra acres?"—paid off with probably the most important answers. To this question by far the larger majority said they were planting soybeans in those extra acres. This could mean that the same thing that's happened with corn will happen with soybeans next year.

One farmer said that he thought that most of the farmers would plant soybeans because the market "was booming." Also that the planned to use more fertilizer than he had used last year in an effort to produce more bushels of corn per acre.

And then there were a few that welcomed the chance to seed down their "extra" acres caused by the corn acreage allotments, because they felt it would eventually mean more corn produced from the same acreage. Others said that it would give their crop lands an opportunity to "rest and give bigger yields."

"The quicker we get rid of the AAA outfit, the better off we'll be," answered one farmer.

"I'm farming a quarter section, and I get to plant all of 44 acres of corn next year," said another.

"It might be the beginning of new major crops in Iowa" said still another.

The clincher came in the interviews with farm people when the reporter accidentally questioned a person closely related with the local PMA office.

"The majority of the farmers seem to think that they don't have enough corn acreage," he said, "but if allowances were made to give each individual as much corn land as he wanted, we'd be right back where we started."

Paving Project Contract Given to Indianola Co. Work Will Start May 15

The Third Street N. E paving project has been awarded to the Central Construction Company of Indianola, Iowa, by the State Highway Commission. Their low bid was at $50,449.75.

At the city council meeting Monday night, construction for the city's portion of the paving was ordered and a notice to prospective contractors was approved. The letting date was set for April 18.

The county is responsible for paving the center 22 feet of the Third Street project while the city will supervise construction of the remaining area on the sides of the road.

The Central Construction Company is scheduled to begin work on the project May 15, and the entire paving should be completed on or about July 15.

Farm Specialists Speak at All-Day Kanawha Meeting

If you want a new oat — one that's outproduced all other varieties, it's Shelby. Shelby seed is being distributed to a limited number of farmers for planting this spring in order to increase the supply now available.

Dr. H. C. Murphy, plant pathologist at Iowa State college, informed farmers of the new variety of oats in a lecture at the annual meeting of the Northern agricultural experiment association at Kanawha last Thursday.

The program, held in the theater at Kanawha, started in the morning at 10:30 a. m. and lasted until evening. In that length of time, the farmers listened to speeches and lectures by Hancock county agent Paul Henderson and Wright county agent Aaron R. Bowman.

Other speakers included Dr. I. J. Johnson, agronomist, Dr. Geo. Browning, research entomologist, Dr. W. H. Bragonier, botanist, Dr. L. N. Hazel, crop research specialist, all of Iowa State college, and Dr. C. S. Reddy, farm superintendent for the Kanawha experimental farm.

The men set out ideas about farm porgrams for 1950, giving detailed information about new crops and new varieties, including the Shelby oat.

Their topics in the day-long program, before the capacity filled theater audience covered all farm subjects from soil fertility to hybrid hogs on Iowa farms.

The crop specialists indicated to the farm audience that emphasis would be placed this year on new farm money crops, and soil and erosion crops because of the new Price Marketing Administration corn acreage allotments.

Hospital Issue Approved; Loats Elected as New Mayor

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

It's been many a moon since an "after dinner speaker" in Belmond has received such an ovation as that given Monsignor W. C. Hradecky by the audience who heard his stirring remarks after last week's Chamber of Commerce luncheon. The genial priest not only proved himself a capable speaker and the possessor of a ready wit, but the manner in which he delivered his message was convincing to a high degree.

Although many of his listeners found his blunt prediction of ultimate war with Russia a hard one to accept, they could hardly disregard the logic of his reasoning Who will deny that you can't kill a mad dog with kindness?

—M.S.—

Members of the Operators' team in the General Mills bowling league were victims of one of those "wha' hoppened" evenings last week when they took on the GMI office aggregation. The Operators started out with a mediocre 699 game, followed up with 700—and then gave vent to their indignation by blasting the maples for an 845 score as their concluding effort. That finale represented an average of 45 pins per man more than in either of the first two lines!

—M.S.—

Belmond housewives may well pay heed to the example given them by two of the sister "spring-cleaners" over at Rowan, who may have forgotten the repeated warnings of accident underwriters that the most dangerous place for accidents is "home."

Mrs. Lockman was released last Friday after being hospitalized for an ankle fracture suffered in the course of house-cleaning chores. The day before, Mrs. D. W. Whitten was brought to the hospital here after breaking her leg in a tumble she took while washing walls.

Shaky ladders, make-shift scaffolds, carelessly scattered buckets and other cleaning implements each year take their toll of broken bones as the spring-cleaning brigade opens fire on the winter's accumulation of dirt.

Understand, we aren't saying the two Rowan ladies were victims of carelessness. We don't know that they were at all. But, women, it's the time of year when a bit of carelessness can put you in a cast, mighty quick-like.

—M.S.—

An unexpected write-in vote—consisting of one unofficial ballot cast by a re-write man on the "state desk" at the Des Moines Register — resulted in an announcement by the Register on Tuesday morning that Editor J. R. Gallagher was the new mayor of Belmond.

Knowing when he's well off, Gallagher called the Des Moines paper promptly after he was first "congratulated" for the honor bestowed upon him and threatened the Register state editor with various and sundry types of mayhem unless the record was set straight. A correction published Wednesday morning put "Andy" Loats back in office.

—M.S.—

John Van Gerpen, manager of the Belmond Hatchery, points out that an error crept into last week's story on the champion breeds in the 1949 national egg laying contest. The In-Cross-breds, which placed second in the inbred-hybrid class, were credited with an average annual egg production of 22.1 eggs.

Since we recognize that no self-respecting hen would be satisfied with producing an egg on the average of every 16 and a half days, we are happy to advise our readers that the breed in question actually boasted a contest average of 221.1 eggs for the year.

—M.S.—

Those vacuum cleaner racketeers were back here in force last weekend, but so far we have heard of no Belmond housewife who was taken in. We hope that the gimmick has been given enough publicity that there will be no further victims in these parts.

Mrs. Dave Sappenfield reports that one called at her door and informed her that he'd been advised she owned a Hoover cleaner and he'd been sent out by the factory to look it over. Since Mrs. Sappenfield is not the owner of a vacuum, the "gyp artist" was off to a very bad start.

Mrs. Sappenfield has since talked to a number of women who were approached by the unwelcome visitors. There were five or six in the crew, she says, and they were operating from a Plymouth (she believes) panel truck bearing a Polk county license.

With admirable presence of mind, Mrs. Sappenfield made a note of the license number—and, upon our request, she passed it on to us. We are writing to the Des Moines Better Business Bureau to have the ownership of the truck traced. It might restrain the hoodlums, somewhat, if they were advised that the Better Business Bureau is keeping an inquisitive eye on them.

$36,000 in Bonds Approved 864-60

Belmond's voters left no room for question in regard to their enthusiasm for the community hospital project when they approved by an 864 to 60 margin the issuance of $36,000 in municipal bonds to obtain funds to be used on the hospital's construction.

Very little opposition to the bond issue had been anticipated by supporters of the project, but the wide margin was nevertheless gratifying to the many individuals who have devoted much time and effort to the hospital cause in recent weeks.

In the First Ward, the special question carried by a 288-to-19 margin; in Second Ward the vote was 276 to 19; and in Third Ward, 300 to 22.

Approval of the bond issue makes effective pledges so far received by the hospital finance committee, which up to Tuesday of this week totaled $118,000. Of this amount, $91,000 had been pledged by Belmond residents and business firms, and $27,000 by individuals in the surrounding area.

So far, only an incomplete canvass has been made in the four townships surrounding Belmond, and in the area comprised of Norway, Avery and Twin Lakes townships, Goodell and Rowan. This week the campaign was to branch out to Meservey, Alexander and their respective neighborhoods.

Lovell Diddy and Herman Fischer, Jr., are chairmen for Meservey; Chris Schulte and Donald Hensel will be campaign leaders for Alexander.

These men, with their appointed workers, will meet this evening in the Belmond city hall at 7:30 o'clock to complete plans for canvassing their areas. In the meantime, other phases of the hospital are progressing.

John Greenlander, chairman of the hospital building committee, has named three sub-committees to study separate phases of the building problem.

George Hake, Dr. G. J. Hruska and Lambert Pals were appointed to look over proposed sites and offer recommendations as to the most favorable.

On the group which will correspond with or interview possible architects are Rev. O. M. Severseike, Jack Ketchum and L. W. Murray.

Men composing the visitation committee, which will look over hospitals under construction or recently completed in this general area, are William Latham, L. B. Oberhauser and Joe Ziller.

VFW and Auxiliary Plan Installation Next Week

A joint installation of the newly elected officers of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the VFW Auxiliary will be held at the Veterans' Memorial building on Friday of next week. There will be a pot-luck supper at 6:30 p. m. and the installation ceremonies will start at 8:00.

Gordon Buchanan of Mason City, former Belmond resident and past commander of the VFW post here, will be installing officer for the new VFW officers. In charge of the Auxiliary installation will be Past President Mary Moe. Bob Churchouse will go in as VFW commander and Lucille Stoltenberg as Auxiliary president.

Pete Barendregt Returns "Home" After 37 Years

A dream of 37 years' standing will be realized tomorrow when Peter Barendregt — accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Napolitano of Mason City—embarks on the S. S. New Amsterdam for a visit to his native land, Holland.

This is the first trip "back" for both Mr. Barendregt and Mrs. Napolitano. She was only age three when the Barendregt family came to the United States 37 years ago.

The two were taken to Des Moines last Sunday by the father's son-in-law and a second daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Waddington, accompanied by the latter's son, Neal, and Mrs. Barendregt. From there they took a train to New York, where they arrived Monday.

Mr. Barendregt has two sisters and a brother living in Holland. Two other brothers have died since the war and both of his parents passed away some years ago. Mr. Barendregt and his daughter will spend approximately three months abroad.

Mrs. Barendregt returned to "the old country" with Mrs. Waddington in 1927 and alone in 1938, so her husband figured it was just about his turn. They had planned to make the trip together about a year ago but ill health on the part of Mrs. Barendregt made it impossible.

During her husband's absence, Mrs. Barendregt will live in the Waddington's apartment here in town, and the Waddington's will live in the tenant house the Barendregts have been occupying on the Albert Martin farm just west of town.

Jean Hemmingsen Will Sing With Touring Choir

Jean Hemmingsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hemmingsen, is one of 45 members of the Frances Shimer college choir—Mt. Carroll, Ill.—which is undertaking its annual concert tour during the seven-day period, March 31 to April 6. Jean won in competition last fall the coveted honor of belonging to the choir.

The choir will sing 14 concerts of sacred and secular music in 12 cities in the northern part of Illinois. It is considered one of of the finest women's choirs in the midwest.

KADOLPH ANNOUNCES SALE OF M-K MARKET

Eugene Kadolph announces that the M and K Market, which he and his late father-in-law, Matt Mehlow, bought last September, has been sold and will be taken over by the new owners next Monday.

Purchasers of the business are Albert Hein of Hubbard and his son, John Hein, who has lately been employed in an Iowa Falls market as a meat-cutter. The elder Mr. Hein has been in the grocery business in the past, so both men bring with them a background of experience in their intended line of business.

Mr. Kadolph explains that the sale of the business was required in order to settle the estate of Mr. Mehlow, who died here on Jan. 2. The Kadolphs intend to remain in Belmond for the time being, but their future plans at this point are not definite.

Priest Foresees Ultimate War Against Communism Inevitable

Recent suggestions that Russia is adopting a less hostile attitude toward the United States make no impression whatsoever on a person who has a first-hand acquaintance with the U. S. S. R.

This is what members of the Chamber of Commerce were told last Thursday by Msgr. W. C. Hradecky of Duncan, who in 1938 spent a number of weeks in Russia and visited many of its major cities.

"Communism cannot live side by side with capitalism—or any other system of government," the priest declared. He explained that this principle is driven into the minds of all persons under domination of the Russian government. They are taught that the struggle must continue until communism stands alone.

Russia has developed a standard plan of procedure in imposing communism upon satelite countries. First, religion is banned, because the materialistic philosophy of the communist does now allow for belief in God.

Second, the middle class is wiped out. Those members who will not or cannot adapt themselves to the system are "liquidated"—either by outright murder or by the slow death of slave labor camps. Then only the ruling class and the closely controlled proletariat remain. This constitutes the communistic social structure.

Monsignor Hradecky says that the hope of revolt in nations behind the Iron Curtain is not justified. He says that such complete control is exercised over the lives of Russian subjects that development of any sort of organized resistance would be next to impossible.

However, he feels that an element continues to exist in the satelite nations that would glory in the opportunity to fight against their oppressors, should it ever come.

The priest concedes that Russia has made some remarkable progress from a materialistic standpoint. It boasts many fine schools, libraries, factories, and other evidences of the physical productivity of the system.

"Labor MUST produce according to standards set by the government," the monsignor explained, "because it's either that —or Siberia."

He told of seeing immense

SEVEN PASTORS WILL SPEAK ON APRIL 6TH AT SPECIAL SERVICE

A Union Service, being planned for the combined membership of the Methodist and Congregational churches but which will be open to all, will be held on Good Friday—April 6—at the Congregational church starting at 8:00 p. m.

According to Rev. J. Heber Miller, pastor of the Methodist church, the worship service will be based on the "seven sayings from the cross," each to be used as the theme of a different minister.

Those who will take part in the service are: Rev. Ray Steakley of the Clarion Congregational church; Rev. William B. Gamble of the Clarion Presbyterian; Rev. Willard Cunningham, Garner Methodist; Rev. Alfred B. McKeith, Belmond Congregational; the Rev. Mr. Miller, Rev. Ralph Kitterman, Kanawha Methodist; and Rev. Victor Schuldt, Clarion Methodist.

The Rev. Mr. Miller emphasizes that, although his church and the Congregational are jointly sponsoring the service, the general public is cordially invited.

Soybean Contest Winners to Get Cash and Medals

District prize winners in the State Master Soybean Growers' contest, sponsored jointly by the Iowa Corn and Small Grain Growers' association and the Iowa Soybean Processors' association, will be presented with their awards at the regular meeting of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce on Thursday noon of next week.

The Chamber supplemented the prizes offered in the state contest with $15 in special awards for Wright county winners, which will also be presented after the luncheon.

Harold D. Yanney of Humboldt county, with an average per acre yield of 38.2 bushels, was winner in District 5 of the North Central section of the state. He will be given $15 in cash and a Master Soybean Grower's certificate.

Second place winner in the district was Dale Hauge — from Wright county, as were all the other district winners other than Yanney. Mr. Hauge will be presented with $10 as a state award and $7 as winner in the county competition. His average yield on five test acres was 37.25 bushels.

George Hake placed third in the district standings and second for the county with 36.74 bushels and Vern McLaughlin third in the county with 36.24. Mr. Hake will get a $5 district prize and the same amount from the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. McLaughlin will receive $3 of the county prize money.

Other entrants, and the average yields, were: Eugene McLaughlin, 32.96; Lawrence Uthe, 30.74; and Ira Studebaker, 30.18. All seven men will receive medals from the Small Grain Growers' association.

There were three other Wright county contestants entered, but they were forced to withdraw due to wind and hail damage to their crops.

Henry Stokke, General Mills office manager, headed the committee which supervised the contest. He says that an effort will be made to obtain entries from all eight counties in the 5th District of the North Central section in the 1950 contest. He is hopeful of success, since a great deal more interest was shown locally this year than in 1947 and '48.

One pertinent fact in connection with the '49 contest, Mr. Stokke pointed out, was that the average yield of each of the contestants far exceeded the average per acre yield for the state of approximately 22.5 bushels.

All of the test yields were determined by the Small Grain Growers' association based on weights and grades of soybeans from a measured five-acre plot. The contest, Mr. Stokke adds, is conducted in the interest of effecting improved methods of soybean production.

NOTE, HOMESTEADERS

Assessor F. Ross Henry announces in today's paper that George Thompson will act as representative of the county assessor's office to receive applications for homestead exemption at the city hall each of the next two Saturdays from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Property owners from Belmond Corporation, Belmond and Pleasant townships may avail themselves of this opportunity to file for exemptions.

Tale of Tiny Tot And A Tack Has A "Happy Ending"

Little Kathleen Hensel, two and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Hensel, returned home from Rochester, Minn., on Friday of last week after recovering from the effects of swallowing a thumb tack on March 16.

The little tot's presence of mind undoubtedly helped to avert a real tragedy, as she immediately reported to her mother after the tack had gone down her throat and enabled immediate steps to be taken toward planning for its removal.

Kathleen had been playing upstairs at her home with her older sister, Patty, six. The tack had come out of a curtain tie-back and Kathleen was apparently trying to replace the tie-back and had put the tack in her mouth to free her hands. When the tack accidentally went down, little Kathleen promptly went to her mother and urged her to "get doctor."

Dr. A. L. Pitcher, accompanied by his wife, rushed the Hensel youngster and her parents to Rochester, where specialists removed the tack. Perforations made by the tack in the child's alimentary tract became infected the following day and she ran a high fever a good share of the weekend, until penicilin injections cleared the infection.

Mrs. Hensel stayed with the little girl until Carroll, with Patty and his father, Oscar Hensel of Alexander, went to the clinic last Friday to bring his wife and child home.

Congregational Church To Hold Supper Friday

A Lenten Fellowship supper will be held at the Congregational church this Friday at 6:30 p. m., with Rev. Sam Lenters of the Webster City Congregational church as guest speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Lenters, a graduate of the Chicago Seminary, formerly served churches in the Twin City area of Minnesota and at the time was a member of the same ministerial association as Rev. Alfred B. McKeith, local pastor.

The committee in charge of the covered-dish supper includes Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kessler and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Elloitt.

Belmond Teachers To Attend Parley

MASON CITY — Twelve-hundred teachers from 16 counties are expected here Friday for the annual spring convention of the North Central district of the Iowa State Education association. Wright county teachers, including those from Belmond, will attend the sessions.

Headline speaker will be Philip F. LaFollette, three times governor of Wisconsin and a member of General McArthur's staff in the Southwest Pacific. His topic will be "A Fundamental Sound American Policy."

Also addressing the general sessions will be Dr. James Millar of the Good Citizen Foundation, Portland, Ore.; Dr. Maycie Southall, professor of elementary education at George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn.; and Senora Elizabeth de Compo, an instructor in the Mexico City schools.

Six groups will hold noon-day luncheons. They are the rural teachers and county superintendents, superintendents and principals, classroom teachers, county councils, music teachers and homemaking teachers.

Mrs. Hazel V. Chappell, Mason City, is district president . Other officers are C. M. Gillespie, Renwick, vice president; C. H. Tompkins, Garner, secretary, and R. E. Nyquist, Mason City, treasurer.

Malcom McKeith Took Part in Bach Festival

Malcom McKeith, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. B. McKeith and a senior at Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., is a member of the bass section of the school's choir which last weekend participated in a Bach Festival. The occasion commemorated the 200th anniversary of the composer's death.

Highlight of the festival was presentation of the entire Bach "B Minor Mass" by the college's 134 voice choir. Over an interval of 18 months the musical organization had been rehearsing the various choruses which make up this monumental work of the noted composer.

BIG MONTH FOR "ANDY"

March of 1950 will go down in the family history of Mayor-elect "Andy" Loats as a definitely noteworthy month. Not only did "Andy" win by a comfortable margin in the city election, but two new twigs appeared on the family tree. On March 17 their son and daughter-in-law at Dubuque—Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Loats—became parents of a daughter, Elizabeth Ann; and their son Harold and wife, living at Gray, on March 23 likewise became the parents of a daughter—name as yet unreported.

POPPY POSTERS DUE

Entries in the VFW Auxiliary Poppy Poster contest are to be left with either Mrs. Charles Wilmarth, chairman, or with Mrs. Carroll Bamford at Dr. A. M. Nelson's office by Friday afternoon of this week. Winners will be announced next week.

Walter Meinders Joins United States Air Force

Walter H. Meinders, son of Mrs. Lottie Meinders, on Tuesday of last week enlisted in the United States Air Force for a period of four years, according to an announcement made today by Corp. Joseph K. Jenison of the Army and Air Force Recruiting Station in Fort Dodge.

Private Meinders has been transferred to the Air Indoctrination Division, Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas where he will undergo 18 weeks basic training.

OBERHAUSER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF COUNTY SHEEP GROWER GROUP

L. B. Oberhauser of Belmond township was elected chairman of the Wright County Farm Flock association at a meeting of sheep flock owners at Clarion on Wednesday of last week. Other officers elected at the meeting were Delmar Sanders, Eagle Grove, vice chairman; Earl Hammond, Rowan, secretary-treasurer; Oscar Holmes, Dows, director; Owen Kurfman, Clarion, director.

The organization and election of officers and directors of the county Farm Flock association followed a meeting on management and care of sheep and wool, with speakers from Iowa State college and the Iowa Sheep and Wool Growers association.

PLAY PROGRAM FRIDAY

Gladys Eliason, teacher at Belmond rural school No. 6, announces that patrons of the school will present two one-act plays at the schoolhouse this Friday evening, March 31, at 8:00 p. m. The titles are "Sparks From an Old Flame" and "Squaring With the Boss." Lunch will be served following the program.

Martin The Only Citizens' Winner

A. W. "Andy" Loats was elected mayor of Belmond by a 130-vote margin over C. C. Christie as one of this community's largest election turn-outs—if not the largest ever—streamed to the polls Monday. A total of 978 ballots were cast—more than a hundred in excess of the total in the 1948 municipal election—putting into office all but one member of the People's Ticket.

In the Third Ward, Glenn Martin held a fair margin over the People's candidate and incumbent, Robert Tomson. Otherwise it was a sweep on the part of Loats' slate, except for B. C. Hewlett, who was the unopposed Citizens' candidate for city treasurer.

Ed Kennedy was top vote-getter in the entire field of office-seekers. The garage proprietor and former mayor drew the greatest individual support in every ward to roll up a total of 565 votes—compared to 528 cast for the new mayor.. A. J. Meints, running for re-election, was second high among the candidates for councilman-at-large with 446. Ardell Johnson and R. B. Thompson trailed with 381 and 363 respectively.

Narrowest margin in any of the races for ward councilman was that of Orrin Jacobson, who in the Second Ward edged out George Infelt by a meagre five votes. Al Mennenga's advantage over Jim Mariga in First Ward wasn't much larger. The incumbent councilman got the electors' nod by a matter of 13 votes.

Martin's victory over Tomson was the most decisive in the three ward contests—if 24 votes can be called decisive. Bert Hewlett drew exactly the same number of votes as Kennedy; but, being uncontested, his election by 565 x-marks can hardly be compared to Kennedy's feat of piling up the same number in a four-man field.

It is unofficially reported that there were nearly 50 defective "city" ballots cast. Usually the spoiling of not more than five per cent of the ballots would be of small importance; but in this election Jacobson's margin over Infelt represented less than two per cent of the votes counted; and Mennenga's edge over Mariga equalled less than five per cent of the valid ballots.

Even on the ballot regarding the hospital bond issue, a total of 57 electors earned the questionable distinction of succeeding in invalidating their votes. In some cases this was accomplished by writing in a "yes" or "no", and in other instances a check mark was made instead of an "x".

In the First Ward the combined vote for ward councilman ran 41 ballots short of the total number actually cast; in Second Ward the difference was 37; and in Third Ward the discrepancy was 44 votes.

A major fault contributing to this situation was the apparent belief of some voters that marking the square beside the mayorality candidate constituted a vote for the entire ticket.

Grace Fletcher Again Running for Recorder

Mrs. Grace L. Fletcher in today's issue announces her candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of county recorder.

Mrs. Fletcher was first elected to her present post in 1932, when living at Rowan, and has successfully run for reelection in each of the eight succeeding elections. She is now seeking her tenth term as recorder.

Mrs. Fletcher moved to Clarion following her first election and has made the county seat her home since that time.

On Birthday Anniversary

"Youngster", Age 97

Hears from Older Brother

Even in these days when the average length of life is growing longer and longer, the city water supply at Goodell would probably get a personal investigation by Ponce de Leon—the old time searcher for the "Fountain of Youth"—if that gent were still around.

Numerous friends of Jack Zeilie, for many years a Goodell resident, sent greetings to him at the Jackson Nursing Home at Clear Lake on March 19, when he observed his 97th birthday.

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Minnie Zeilie, with her son Maurice and his family—all of Goodell—helped Jack observe the big occasion by taking cake and ice cream to the nursing home so all the patients could share in a birthday party honoring the event.

However, highlight of the day was receipt of a congratulatory message to "kid brother" Jack from Harm Zeilie of Alberta, Canada, who also claims Goodell as his "old home town."

We didn't see the greeting, but it no doubt was something along the line of "Keep up the good work, sonny!"

Harm presently has his sights set on his 102nd birthday!

Bradley States Movies for 1950 'The Best Ever'

An aggressive program to inform the public of the outstanding motion pictures coming from Hollywood to the nation's theatres was disclosed today by Eugene Bradley, local theatre manager, following his return from an important national meeting of more than 200 motion picture exhibitors in Des Moines, sponsored by 20th Century Fox.

Mr. Bradley revealed that this program is directly based on the calibre of the films scheduled for 1950, which "will definitely satisfy the public in their demands for ever finer film entertainment."

He reported that the main points of the program discussed at the two-day conference were: (1). Constant striving for better pictures through better subject material. (2) Getting honest information to patrons about these films in advance so they can plan their amusement budget. (3) Promotion of public service methods wherein the theatre can best serve the community in which it is situated.

In connection with the first point, Mr. Bradley observed that the year 1950 will see a tremendous upsurge in the production of unusually important motion pictures.

"Never has Hollywood provided so much for such a small part of the public's entertainment dollar. For example, in the weeks to come, your own New Belmond theatre will show 'Pinky', 'On The Town', 'The Great Lover', 'Adam's Rib', '12 o'clock High', 'Cheaper by the Dozen', 'When Willie Comes Marching Home', 'Dear Wife', 'Montana', and 'Broken Arrow.' This is certainly one of the finest line-ups of films we have ever had."

Mr. Bradley added, "I did not have to go to Des Moines or Hollywood or New York or anywhere else to acquire the profound conviction that American motion pictures have done as much, if not more, than any other agency through the years in enlightening and inspiring the world to better things. This is in the record, in war and peace."

Although Wright county entries in the 1950 Minesota State Sprng in the 1950 Minnesota Spring Barrow Show, held two weeks ago at Albert Lea, failed to win any championships or reserve championships they did grab a number of blue ribbons and in general did right well by themselves.

W. J. Watts of Clarion topped the showmen from this county. His adult heavy pen entry—Poland Chinas—placed third; and his entry in the adult heavy individual class was ranked seventh. In the junior individual division, Leroy Watts' entry earned a blue ribbon and in the junior pen division, a red.

—RFD—

Chester Worden of Dows picked off a blue ribbon with a Poland China-Duroc cross in the junior individual placings and a Hereford entry of William G. Struck of Dows was awarded a red ribbon. Chester W. Worden won a blue in the junior pen division with a crossbred, and in the same division a Struck entry was given a white ribbon.

A. L. Bidne and Son and Milton Charlson, both of Lake Mills, were among the prominent exhibitors at the show; and Jerry Davis topped several Hampton showmen with the reserve championship in the junior individual class on a Chester White. Others from Hampton with entries were Donald Meyer, Alvin Simmons, Leon Schermer and Dean Davis.

Iowa butter, we are informed by the press agents for the A and P Food Stores, is enjoyed the country over through the distribution of that chain. Last year A and P bought more butter from Iowa than any other state.

Hawkeye dairymen received nearly $16,119,000 from their butter sales to A and P, which was almost one-fourth of the total spent by the chains system on butter purchases.

"The consistently high quality of Iowa butter," said George W. Diehl, head of the company's dairy department, "was an important factor in placing the state at the top of our buying list."

—RFD—

Henry "Hank" Stokke, office manager for the General Mills plant here at Belmond, says that conversations he's had with elevator operators here and there over this territory indicate that quite a sizeable percentage of the acres coming "out" of corn are going "in" soybeans this year.

Despite all the grumbling that followed receipt of individual corn acreage allotments, it appears that most farmers intend to string along with the PMA rather than gamble on what 1950 corn prices may turn out to be.

Relatively few "kicks", incidentally, were based primarily on the cut made in an individual's acreage; most of them arose from the fact that "somebody else" with the same-sized farm got a few more acres.

To get back to Hanks' remark, he says that Iowa's soybean planting in '50 is expected to exceed last year's by an estimated 20 per cent. He anticipates that a comparable boost will be made in plantings in this immediate area.

—RFD—

If a fellow could be sure of getting a yield like Dale Hauge and George Hake obtained in their contest plots last year, shifting those free acres into beans wouldn't be a bad idea. That average of 37.25 bushels per acre that Dale hit was more than 65 per cent over the state average of 22.5 bushels — and George's 36.74 average exceeded the state figure by more than 63 per cent.

Vern McLaughlin's contest yield was only a half-bushel per acre under Dale's. Now if those fellows would just break down and tell us how they did it, maybe a LOT more Wright county farmers would develop more interest in soybeans. We'll try to get out and see one of the three top producers this weekend and report back to you.

—RFD—

Allen A. Kemp, director of the Iowa State college extension service farm at Kanawha, has given us figures of 1945-1949 experiments at the Ames and Kanawha extension farms with 16 oats varieties. Included in the data, was a table comparing their results with those obtained in 42 Iowa community grain trials in 1949.

—RFD—

The most promising results came with a new strain of oats, Shelby, which led all other varieties in weight and bushels produced per acre.

The amazing part of the listed tables was the difference of more than 20 bushels per acre between the yields on the extension farms as compared with those obtained throughout the state under usual farming conditions.

For instance, Shelby oats averaged 90 bushels per acre on the experimental farms, but where the same variety was planted on average farms, the yield per acre was 63.

—RFD—

The usage of fertizilers, the use of good soil practices, along with adequate drainage were largely responsible for the higher yields on the extension farms.

Clinton oats was second in the state-wide ratings, with an average of 87 bushels per acre, compared to 61 on the comparative community plots. Benton oats was third, with 88 bushels per acre produced on the extension farms, but only 58 bushels under usual farm conditions.

Experiments of this sort proved that correct usage of fertilizers, along with soil conservation techniques in building up the ducing capacity of crop lands, can mean a lot when it comes to harvesting, and figuring up the crop yields.

—RFD—

Mr. Kemp of the Kanawha station, said that all oats should be chemically treated with a mercuric compound, such as ceresan, before planting. He added that soil tests of crop lands would tell the farmers what formula fertilizers should be added to increase yields.

The variety of oats most resistant to rust were Shelby, Clinton, Benton, Colo, Cherokee and Tama. The same varieties were all highly resistant to the Helminthosporium blight, except Tama. However, Tama is the only variety found in the four-year tests that was highly resistant to Race 45 crown rust.

The emphasis has been placed on Shelby oats as the oats variety to plant this year, if you are lucky enough to get hold of a few bushels. But as Mr. Kemp said, Shelby definitely is not the last and only word in oats.

Frakes Named Soil Commissioner; District Work Capacity Expanded

Donald Frakes of Woolstock was reelected commissioner of the Wright County Soil Conservation District for a six-year term at the election on March 25

Frakes won over L. B. Oberhauser of Belmond by more than a two-to-one margin. Only 71 landowners voted at this election, with Frakes receiving 51 votes and Oberhauser receiving 20.

The governing body for the Wright County Soil Conservation District consists of three commissioners. The terms of offices of these commissioners is staggered so that the election of commissioners is every two years.

The commissioners and the year their term expires are: Ray Hagie Clarion, 1952; Oscar Holmes, Dows, 1954; and Donald Frakes, Woolstock, 1956.

The Wright County Soil Conservation District office at Clarion has increased its working capacity during the last two months.

A secretary is regularly working half-days and Dick Mikelson was hired by the district the middle of March and is to be employed during the busy season through the fall work. The two regular employees of the Soil Conservation Service, who are on loan to the Wright county district, are Charles Hankes, conservation aid, and Bob Locke, farm planner.

The additional help will enable planning work to continue while the field work is being done. Also, the secretary will be in the office afternoons to take care of office inquiries and phone calls.

A sedan delivery vehicle has been loaned to the district recently, making two automotive units now available. The district has heavy equipment — a large tractor, bulldozer, and carryall scoop, to be used for conservation work in the county.

The commissioners have released this equipment to a private contractor, A. O. Echelberger of Dows, to be used for this purpose and provide a working fund for the district.

The Soil Conservation Service and District have moved to new Clarion office quarters in the Evans-Kay building to accommodate the additional help.

Time Has Arrived to Determine "Where Do We Go From Here?"

The election is over. The "public" has spoken and on the shoulders of the winning candidates rests the responsibility for seeing that Belmond is the kind of place we want it to be.

There was only one aspect of the election that gave us concern. Both tickets evidently believed that Belmond property owners want progress in their community only if it costs nothing. We'd hate to think that the "city fathers" have really been given a mandate to economize regardless of need; and we're inclined to question if the voters really intended that the mayor and council should be burdened with such an obstacle to good civic administration.

Last fall the remainder of the city's water bonds were paid off, leaving Belmond entirely clear of debt. Of course, the voters have since obligated the town for the amount of the $36,000 hospital bond issue—which simply indicates they see the value of using the city's credit where a worthwhile purpose is involved.

We know of mighty few business men who have become successful without making use of their credit. To be a successful, prosperous community, Belmond must expect to make similar use of its credit. We can't "grow" if we arbitrarily limit the council to use of funds immediately available. Long-range, capital improvements rarely can be financed out of normal, year-to-year income such as the council has had to work with for a good many years in the past.

Consequently, we re-submit the proposal that the mayor and city council give consideration to the future development of this community by establishing a planning board to analyze Belmond's present and future needs.

They will find few residents who will quarrel with the necessity for taking active steps to improve our streets. We've repeatedly heard from members of the fire department that the relative inadequacy of th present water system exposes our town to the risk of a major conflagration if a really heavy demand was ever placed upon our existing water supply—which is a pretty strong hint that we've nearly outgrown the existing facilities.

We'd like to know, definitely, just how near we are to surpassing the capacity of the present sewer system. And we'd like to see something in the form of a modest, long-range plan of park development. A complete analysis of Belmond's needs would doubtless add other items to the list.

To sum up—we see it as the responsibility of the city administration to carefully consider what improvements are immediately needed, what improvements will be required in the relatively near future, and what financing arrangements will be necessary to obtain them. This sort of planning is completely alien to extravagance. It is sound business—no more, no less. And we're confident that a great many Belmond residents share our opinion in this regard.

To Assure That Hospital, ALL Must Give According to Their Ability

Belmond's voters demonstrated at the polls Monday that this community is prepared to do its part—and more—to see that modern hospital facilities shall be available to all the 12,000 to 15,000 persons who might logically be expected to make use of a hospital in Belmond.

By approving the $36,000 hospital bond issue, the electors made effective all pledges that have thus far been received toward the hospital's construction. The chairmen of the finance committee are confident that pledges from Belmond itself will certainly reach $94,000—which will make the community's total contribution, WITH the bond issue —at least $130,000.

But the hospital is not being built to serve Belmond alone. And if it is to be of adequate size to serve the conservatively estimated 10,000 additional persons who will undoubtedly depend on it as "their" hospital —those people must lend the project sufficient financial support to make it possible.

When you come right down to it, construction of the new hospital should be of no less vital concern to folks living in the area surrounding Belmond than to the residents of the community. If a medical emergency arises in a home situated some five or ten miles from a hospital, it is of the utmost importance that bed space be immediately available and that the equipment be adequate to the need.

Belmond is meeting its portion of the hospital cost because its citizens are giving according to their ability to give Often the $500 to $1,000 pledged by more well-to-do donors involves actual less hardships than the $50 to $100 pledged by families of modest means. Our neighbers will have to set their standards of generosity accordingly, if the hospital campaign is to "go over the top."

The cost estimate, since the hospital project was first proposed, has been kept down to an absolute minimum. To assure funds for the size and type of hospital needed, the 10,000 population in the territory surrounding Belmond should anyway match the amount that Belmond's 2,500 residents are giving in individual donations.

We hope that our collaborators in the country and in neighboring towns will bear this in mind when the solicitors come to call. If $25 is the LIMIT of what you CAN give—then that will be a proper and welcome pledge. On the other hand, if $250, $500 or $1000 is within the limits of your ability to give, it is critically essential that a proportionate amount be pledged if the dream of a really fine, modern hospital—large enough to meet the needs of the entire Belmond area—is to be realized.

——O——

Somebody's going to lose face, plenty, in the investigation Senator McCarthy has stirred up by his claim that numerous Communist-sympathizers are employed by the Department of State. We're inclined to suspect, at this point, that the Wisconsin Irishman is the most likely prospect.

——O——

Once more comes the time of year when we all wish Dame Nature would quit stalling and spread out the welcome mat for the arrival of Spring. The robins were apparently convinced that Winter has made its departure and arrived in plentiful numbers over the weekend. As for us—we're not so sure.

——O——

After the turn-out of voters for the municipal election, the census-taking that's due to start this weekend is certainly not necessary to convince us that Belmond HAS grown. It'll merely amount to a nose-count to tell us exactly how much. With two good slates to choose from, and an important issue to put over, the voters really blossomed out . . . After those 32 votes cast in the school election, we kinda wondered.

ADVERTISING DOESN'T PAY

"There was once a man in our town who awoke one morning and turned off the alarm on his Big Ben.

"Throwing back the GE electric blanket, he streched luxuriously before rising from his Beauty Rest mattress. Going to the bathroom, he washed with Lux, dried with a Cannon towel, made sure of the 'smile of beauty' before giving his scalp a brisk three-minute rub and scraped Burma Shave from his face with a Gillette safety razor equipped with gennine Blue Blades. Making sure his best friends wouldn't have to tell him, he wiped the ring from the face bowl, a Crane fixture.

"Donning Jockey shorts, Interwoven socks, an Arrow shirt with a Botany tie, a Hart Schaffner and Marx suit, and Florsheim shoes, he sauntered in to breakfast consisting of Swift's ham and Rancho eggs cooked on a Maytag stove, spread Swift's Brookfield butter on his Holsum bread, and poured Westward Ho cream in his Maxwell House coffee which had been brewed in a Silex coffee maker.

"While eating, he listened to the news on a Zenith radio, after which he donned his Stetson and, entering his Chevrolet, drove to a Chevron station where he ordered that a new Goodyear tire be put on his Ford delivery truck. He then drove to his business establishment over an Asphalt street.

"Looking over his excellent stock of standard merchandise, on display behind Pittsburgh plate glass windows, he spent the usual period of time in wide-eyed amazement bemoaning the fact that for every item of merchandise sold in his store, two or more similar items were purchased by his townspeople from out-of-town sources. When taxed on the matter he was told that they were unaware that he handled the line.

"Opening the Yale lock on the front door he turned on the GE fluorescent lights and checked the cash in his National cash register on a Burroughs adding machine.

"Early in the day he disposed of several salesmen who tried to sell him a line of 'orphan' merchandise, telling them, 'I can't sell that stuff here. No one ever heard of the brand.'

"He then went to the postoffice and, after wading knee-deep through the direct-mailing pieces he had posted the day before, grew another ulcer while watching a long line of people waiting to receive their packages from the mail order houses.

"Upon returning to his store, he was disgusted to find the publisher of the local newspaper waiting to see him.

"When approached for an advertisement, he gave his standard answer, 'Advertising, in this town, doesn't pay. People here all know where I am.'

"The moral of the story is: if this man would abandon his attitude of 'buy my merchandise, at my price, or you can go to . . . Phoenix' and remember that such silent advice is being taken more and more in these days of a buyer's market, he might possibly aid in getting the people to spend their money in the town where it was earned."

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

Rev. H. Senft recently handed us an excerpt from the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star, sent to him by his brother, Rev. Otto Senft, which contained nearly three pages of advertising inserted by Lubar Television City. Now there is a firm with prices that are right down our alley.

Included among the sale items were a table model television set for 99 cents, five radio-phonograph consoles (trade-ins) at 99 cents each; an electric washer at the same price; a group of table radios at 88 cents each. The sale was to last only five hours. We'd guess it drew quite a turn-out.

—M-S—

Sheriff Bob Blecker stopped in to see us last Thursday and ambled into the back shop to have a word with George. Their conversation came to a sudden stop when "The Law" spotted Dick at the paper cutter apparently cutting out stacks of bogus federal lettuce.

"Aha! Counterfeiting, too!" Bob exclaimed.

Ignoring the nasty "too" which he'd stuck into his remark, George quickly explained that we were innocent of the charge—that the bills were merely "Lucky Bucks" being prepared for the big Chamber of Commerce business promotion stunt which gets underway this week.

—M-S—

This paper, incidentally, establishes what certainly must be a newspaper precedent by giving away a "buck" with each copy of the current issue. You'll find YOUR Lucky Buck attached to the Chamber of Commerce announcement ad on the front of the second section.

Like any other kind of a "buck" these days, this one will have to be accompanied by a considerable number of relatives and friends when it goes into the open market to make a purchase (the first opportunity will be at the initial Lucky Buck auction on April 28) — so get started on a collection of Chamber of Commerce currency right now and be in a position to make your money talk when those merchandise items go on the block.

—M-S—

A suggestion by Dick Gowdy to the Independent's hired help to the effect that it would be a nice gesture for them to accept their pay this week in Lucky Bucks found very little favorable response. Even when a 2-to-1 rate of exchange was proposed, there were still no takers.

Dick pointed out that Uncle Sam bucks are worth only 59 cents these days and emphasized what a grand feeling it would be to have a roll of greenbacks of cow-choking size; but the payroll gang just seem to be prejudiced in favor of the pictures the treasury department puts on its paper.

INSTALLATION TONIGHT

The joint installation of VFW and Auxiliary officers-elect was erroneously announced last week as scheduled for last Monday evening. The event will be held this evening (Thursday) at the Veterans' Memorial building at 8:00 p. m., preceded by a potluck supper at 6:30.

Bonnie Takes 7th In State Contest

Although Bonnie Abbas, Belmond's and Wright county's representative in the state spelling contest at Des Moines last Saturday, failed to carry off top honors, she performed with great credit to herself and her school. She finished "in the money" by taking seventh place in the oral spell-down and was awarded a cash prize of $5.00.

According to her instructor, Mrs. Duane Sandage, who accompanied Bonnie to the contest, the Belmond miss was the last surviving seventh-grader in the oral competition; all six entrants who remained after Bonnie "went down" were eighth grade students.

It was "liaison" that tripped the Wright champion—and Mrs. Sandage suspects that an unfamiliar pronunciation of the word was in good part responsible for Bonnie's failure to spell it correctly.

Since 105 boys and girls competed in the contest, a seventh place is not to be lightly regarded, Mrs. Sandage points out. In the written contest the entrants were given groups of 20 words at a time and continued to write until a word was misspelled.

Bonnie went through eight rounds with flying colors but missed one word in the ninth "collateral"—which was her lone error in 180 words. Only a small portion of the starting field reached the ninth round, and only two more rounds were required to produce the final winner.

With another year of competition still ahead of her, Bonnie is hoping that in 1951 she may be able to improve on the very respectable showing she made in this year's contest.

LUCKY BUCKS

Starting tomorrow each dollar cash purchase or dollar paid on account at any one of more than 80 Belmond business firms will bring the payee a dividend in the form of a Lucky Buck. The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring Lucky Buck distribution in a trade extension maneuver to bring more shoppers to Belmond — and make it more than ever worthwhile to buy in this community.

The lucky greenbacks will be "legal tender" at a series of merchandise auctions which will be held every Friday at 8:00 p. m. on the library steps for six consecutive weeks, beginning April 28.

With Auctioneers Jack Munnis and Ray Frye calling the bids, such attractive items will be placed on the block as the following—a refrigerator, deep-freeze, outboard motor, gas or electric stove, washing machine, radio, furniture, bicycles, rugs, and many others. In addition, minor articles will likewise be up for auction, such as groceries, nylon hose, tools, etc., to give every shopper something to bid on with his or her Lucky Bucks.

Belmond business men have been streaming into the Independent office for the past two days, loading up with the gift greenbacks for distribution to their customers, starting tomorrow. A complete list of participating merchants will be published next week.

Says R. B. Thompson, chairman of the Lucky Buck committee, "The Lucky Buck auctions promise to be a lot of fun for everybody—except, perhaps, the fellow who has to count the bundles handed over in payment for the many wonderful prizes that will be placed under the hammer."

With a Lucky Buck passing into the customers' hands for each full dollar's worth of merchandise purchased in so many Belmond business houses—or paid on account—the new currency should be in wide distribution in short order.

A half million Lucky Bucks have come off the presses, but the merchants are hoping that a rush order for more will have to be placed before many weeks have passed, as advance notice is given of major items coming up for auction.

Women Voters Make Plans to Set Up League

Mrs. Jack Shepard has been selected as chairman of a group of Belmond women who are laying plans for obtaining a charter establishing a chapter of the League of Women Voters in this community.

Committees to make preliminary plans leading to formal organization have been appointed as follows: nomination—Mrs. L. B. Oberhauser, chairman, Mrs. Margaret Bailey and Mrs. G. J. Hruska; by-laws—Mrs. Clark McNeal, chairman, Mrs. Harold Johnson and Mrs. E. E. Woolley.

Budget — Mrs. Fred Gordon, chairman, Mrs. R. B. Thompson and Mrs. A. C. Lieuwen; publicity—Mrs. R. H. Gowdy.

A pre-organization meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Oberhauser on March 24, at which an interested group of some 25 women heard Mrs. H. A. Arthur of Ames, state president of the League of Women Voters, outline the past history and accomplishments of the league.

Mrs. Arthur explained that "the League is first and above all non-partisan, politically. Its purpose is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government."

The temporary local chairmen and committees were named upon her recommendation, following the state president's enthusiastic and informational remarks concerning the League's background.

On March 29 a number of Belmond women accepted an invitation from the Mason City League of Women Voters to attend its annual luncheon at the Hotel Hanford.

Six representatives made the trip to Mason City and reported a very favorable impression was derived from this opportunity to see a working League in action.

A formal organization meeting is planned by the Belmond group for some time after Easter. Permanent officers and committees will be selected at that time. The women behind the movement to form a League locally emphasize that a general membership will be sought when the permanent organization has been set up.

Belmond Reported Cooperating Fully With Census-Takers

Mrs. Evelyn Beavers, who with Mrs. Jim Mariga is engaged these days in counting noses as a Belmond census enumerator, reports she has been very pleasantly surprised at the cooperative spirit that has greeted her everywhere she's called.

Enumerators the country over started out on their assigned territories last Saturday and are to have their jobs completed by April 15 or before. Mrs. Beavers says the census-taking won't be too much of a job if all the workers are received as she has been.

No one has the slighest reluctance to provide all information requested, she says; in fact, almost without exception the door has been thrown open with a welcome and the individual questioned has seemed eager to be of as much assistance as possible.

Cemetery Association Plans to Again Request That City "Take Over"

All officers of the Belmond Cemetery association were re-elected as the annual meeting of the association members held last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. E. W. Luick.

Mrs. Luick remains as president, Daisy Cameron as vice president, A. C. Lieuwen as superintendent and Mrs. Mary Rankins as treasurer. Trustees continuing in office are A. W. Martin, Mrs. F. O. Fitts and Mrs. Myrtle Trager.

Mrs. Rankins reported that there is $13,850 in the association's fund for perpetual care and approximately $1,100 in the bank account for operating expenses.

Members of the association were in agreement that the new city council should be approached on the proposition of the city taking over responsibility for the cemetery and appointing a board of trustees to supervise its business operations.

Mrs. Laurel Helland, president of the Cemetery Aid Society, informed the association members that her organization would be glad to continue its efforts to improve and beautify the cemetery grounds, should the city agree to take over the cemetery.

Mayor A. W. Loats has been approached by a representative of the cemetery association and has agreed to give the group a hearing at an early council meeting in regard to the proposal of putting the cemetery under a municipal trusteeship.

BAKE SALE

Several New Appointments Made By Council; City Salaries Given Boost of 10 Per Cent

Several changes in the city's staff of employees were made by Mayor A. W. Loats and approved by the council as the new administration took over the reigns of municipal government on Monday of this week.

Glenn Eccles was appointed water superintendent, succeeding Ed Bailey in that position. Mayor Loats announced that Mr. Bailey will remain as an assistant to the new superintendent for the time being, until several projects involving the water department have been completed. It is Mr. Bailey's intention to retire at that time.

New city marshals are being named, also—succeeding Harry Lamb and Adolph Dorr. Harvey Seals, who for the past half year has been proprietor of Quig's Inn on Highway 69, has been named as one of the marshals and several applicants for the other police job are under consideration.

Mayor Loats reappointed Carrie Courtney as city clerk, Dr. Glenn J. Hruska as city health physician and Albert Luick as street commissioner. He also has drawn up the following council committees:

Finance and purchasing—Chairman Al Mennega, A. J. Meints and Ed Kennedy; streets and alleys—Chairman Meints, Kennedy and Glenn Martin; sewers — Chairman Kennedy, Mennenga and Orrin Jacobson; water, light and fire—Chairman Martin, Meints and Mennenga; building and grounds—Chairman Jacobson, Martin and Meints.

New salaries for full-time city employees were set by the council Monday, representing a 10 per cent increase over the schedule that was set in April of 1940. Present monthly salaries are: water superintendent $247.50; city clerk $223.85; street commissioner $211.75; marshals $199.65; installation superintendent (assistant to water superintendent) $202.68. The city attorney will receive $400 annually and the city health physician $50.

The council was also unanimously in favor of increasing the treasurer's present $10-per-year stipend but the members were advised by the city attorney that it could not be changed during the treasurer's current term because he holds an elective office. It can later be changed, to be effective for the next term of office.

County Women's Club Convention Here on Monday

Wright County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet for its annual convention in the Congregational church here next Monday, with Mrs. Leroy Williams of Dows, county chairman, presiding. Members of federated clubs from Eagle Grove, Goldfield, Dows and Rowan, as well as Belmond, will attend.

The day's program will open at 10:00 a. m. with a welcome by Mrs. Ed Kennedy, president of the Progress club. The response will be given by Mrs. Arthur Kueker of Dows.

Principal speakers will be Alta French of Goldfield, who has taught in Egypt and will present an exhibit of articles from that country, and Mrs. P. J. Klinker of Denison, sixth district director of the Women's Clubs Federation.

Short talks are also scheduled by the following: Mrs. Fluhr of Denison, music chairman; Mrs. L. Saul of Humboldt, visual education chairman; and Mrs. R. L. Bunn of Dows, who will speak briefly on safety.

A luncheon is to be served during the noon hour. Musical numbers will be furnished by Belmond club members, including piano selections by Mrs. R. W. Courson at the morning session and a vocal solo by Mrs. Daryl Jenison in the afternoon.

$10,000 More Reported In Pledges for Hospital

Including the city bond issue, pledged funds for the new hospital had by yesterday reached a total of $164,000, according to Finance Chairmen W. H. Trafford and R. W. Courson. This represented receipt of pledges for an additonal $10,000 in the past week.

No report has been received to date from Alexander and Meservey and the neighborhoods adjacent to them. Canvassing continues in the areas around Goodell and Rowan and further calls are due to be made in the townships surrounding Belmond.

EASTER EGG HUNT SUNDAY MORNING

All Belmond youngsters through the age of eight are cordially invited by Delta Nu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority to participate in an Easter Egg Hunt to be held on Easter morning at 7:30 o'clock.

The young participants are to meet at the library, where they will be informed as to what area will constitute the "hunting grounds."

All the boys and girls will be divided into two groups. One will include those through the age of five, and the other will include ages six through eight. Two prizes will be awarded in each age group to the most successful hunters—one for boys and another for girls.

Red Cross Goal Seems Assured

By the early part of this week it appeared certain that Belmond would reach its goal of $1,500 in the 1950 Red Cross fund campaign, Co-Chairmen Ted Behrends and K. C. Kickbush reported. With three sub-chairmen still due to make further reports, a total of $1,420 has been turned in.

Solicitation has been completed in the following townships and wards, shown with totals collected: Norway $242, Belmond township $264, Ward I $171, Ward II $200. "Hill" residents donated $24.

Some collecting is still to be done in Ward III, where $241 has so far been reported, and on downtown Main Street, from which donations to date total about $209. Pleasant township has reported $69, with more to come.

The campaign chairmen ask that their thanks be passed on to the various sub-chairmen and their workers for the fine job they have done in this year's Red Cross drive.

TUTOR DEMONSTRATES 'SECRET' DEFENSE--

Main Street Misfits, Faculty Flashes Will Perpetrate Charity Basketball Game Monday

--MERCHANT PRINCE TRAINING FOR FRAY

Coming very fittingly at the end of the season, a basketball game to end all basketball games is slated for next Monday evening at the high school gymnasium when the Faculty Flashes tangle with the Main Street Misfits—all for the sake of sweet charity.

Only a worthy cause like the PTA's summer recreation program—which will receive all proceeds from the evening's entertainment could get a majority of the Misfit aggregation to don short pants (though it's an even bet their breath will be coming that way inside of 60 seconds), to say nothing of cavorting in such garb.

There is a possibility that a curtain-raiser may see a sextet of business girls trading baskets with an opposing team comprised of feminine faculty members. Plans for that fray were still incomplete at mid-week. But the above-mentioned battle royale of puffing professor versus breathless businessman, is definitely "on" at 8:00 p. m. The evening's festivities will start at 7:30.

The same redoubtable brigade of pedagogues that took the measure of the class championship Sophomore five recently is resolved to demonstrate that brains can predominate over business acumen.

"Slim" Scott, the professorial speedster, will team with "Sleepy" Patterson at forwards; "Hooker" Sandage is slated for the pivot post; "Sure-Shot" (in the side pocket) Squires, "Rainbow" Hugh, "Bebop" Cunning and "Glue-Fingers" Loeffler will comprise the faculty back-court defenders.

Co-Coaches Jack Meints and George Hansen will resort to the platoon system in an effort to keep five business men on the floor at all times—in operating condition. Each platoon will have a separate and distinct offense, and the mentors promise that you've never SEEN a really OFFENSIVE team until you see those Misfits in action.

A glance at the spectacular squad personnel lined up for the Misfits should send every Belmond sports lover into ecstasies contemplating the treat in store, come Monday eve. Get a load of these names—and then get the admission price ready (a salesman will call before the end of the week):

Arlo and Henry Stoltenberg, Luin Cox, R. W. Courson, George Infelt, Dr. A. M. Larson, Dr. S. P. Leinbach, Ed Kennedy, Keith Chandler (an ample supply of plasma and several tanks of oxygen will be readily available, incidentally—in case the pressence of Chandler's name gives you cause for worry), Solomon Krass, "Danny-Boy" Dannewitz, Fred Gordon and Roy Henderson.

Lem Long, Ed Riggs, Ellis Elliott, Fred Pals, Orlan Finn, Ed Spurling, "Dutch" Thompsen, Ed Gabrielson, Cleon Brady and Merle Bonte. Now there's an aggregation to strike fear in the hearts of any opposition less courageous than the intrepid tutors.

The Flashes, coached by Don Faris, feature a slow break with two sleepers under the basket. According to reports, activity under the hoop is hair-raising when, as and if the sleepers wake up.

Meints and Hansen promise, however, that their outfit could out-stall Dinsdale and if they get the proper musical accompaniment they guarantee the Misfits can make the faculty slow break look like a genuine Texas stampede.

Admission to the basketball double-header will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. A hard-times dance will immediately follow the athletic competition, after the floor has been cleared of bodies. All spectators, are requested to dress as if income-tax time had just passed. Prizes will be awarded wearers of the best costumes, with Mayor Andy Loats and Dr. A. M. Larson serving as judges.

COMPARING 1948 TO '49--

Homestead Values in County Increased by Over Two Million

Evidence that 1949 saw a jump of well over $2,000,000 in the aggregate value of Wright county homesteads was provided last week when County Treasurer H. E. Sullivan received a state check for $80,235.67 as payment of half the amount due Wright county for '49 on homestead exemption credit.

Another check of similar size will be received next fall, making a total of nearly $160,500 by which the county will be reimbursed for homestead exemptions allowed last year. Homestead credit from the state for 1948 was approximately $122,500.

In other words, homestead credit increased by about $38,000 last year. Since $25 represents the exemption on $1,000 value of property lived in by its owner, the $38,000 indicates that assessed homestead values in Wright county were up by at least $1,520, 000 last year, compared to the year before.

Theoretically, that million and a half should be only 60 per cent of the real value of the homestead properties. However, according to the Treasurer H. E. Sullivan, county records show that the real value of Wright county homesteads jumped about 2.3 millions between 1948 and '49, rather than the more than 2.5 which would be indicated by the amount of homestead credit.

Compared to the $38,000 increase in homestead credit last year, 1948's total credit exceeded 1947's by less than $3,250 — which suggests that 1949 was the biggest building-and-buying year Wright county has seen in a long, long time.

A check for $7,031.92 was also received in payment of half the military service tax exemptions allowed by Wright county in 1949. The 1949 total credit of slightly over $14,000 for '49 represented only a minor increase over the military service credit of 1948—about $12,450; which in turn was an advance of less than $900 over 1947's credit of approximately $11,580.

The much more moderate increase in military service exemptions would seem to indicate that a relatively small proportion of the large amount of building and buying that Wright county witnessed in 1949 was done by veterans.

Trager Picked for Spot On All-State Honor Roll

Duane Trager, high scoring Belmond center, was one of three North Iowa conference basketball stars who won honorable mention in Jack North's annual Des Moines Register all-state high school basketball selections for the season just concluded.

The only other N-I cagers mentioned were a pair from Forest City's conference runner-up quintet—Charley Langerud at center and Jackie Soderling at guard.

Jake Koenen, flashy Meservey forward, was the only other player from this immediate vicinity to win a spot on North's honor roll.

Fishing Season to Open On Catfish April 15th

The first of the major fishing seasons begins at 12:01 a. m., April 15, when catfishing becomes legal in all of the state's inland waters. Daily catch limit on catfish is eight, and possession limit is eight. The minimum length requirement has been removed this year, and every catfish legally caught will be a "keeper."

Commission officials remind anglers to be sure to purchase a 1950 fishing license before trying their luck. Frogs may not be taken for bait until May 12. Catfishing experts believe angleworms and nightcrawlers will be the best catfish appetizer until the weather warms up.

PRE-SCHOOL HEALTH MEETINGS SCHEDULED THROUGHOUT COUNTY

May 1950 is Child Health Month in Wright county. A special program is planned for the youngsters who will begin school the fall of 1950. Schools, doctors, dentists, and the county nursing service urge that each child be checked by the family doctor and dentist before entrance into school. A pre-school meeting will be held in each locality to enable mothers to arrange for their children's physical examinations.

At this meeting each child will be weighed, measured and vision tested; there will be health literature available to the mother and she will have an opportunity to discuss health problems with County Nurse Alice Moore.

"Many of the physical troubles we have when we are grown can be traced to diseases or defects we had as children," Miss Moore points out. "Corrections save years of suffering."

The schedule for pre-school conferences in this area are as follows:

Thursday, April 13, 2:00 p. m. in Norway No. 8 rural school. This conference is for all beginners who will attend the Norway township rural schools and the Lake No. 1, 2 and 5 schools.

Thursday, April 20, 1:30 p. m. at Rowan Consolidated school. This school is for all the beginners who will attend the Rowan Consolidated school and Grant No. 6 and 7 rural schools.

Tuesday, April 25, 2:00 p. m. at Belmond High school. This conference is for the beginners who will attend Grant 1 and 3, Belmond township, and Pleasant township rural schools.

Other localities are planning pre-school programs, also. The families therein will be notified later.

At the conclusion of the evening a basket social will be held, so all the lady folks should come properly prepared. Pop and coffee will be on sale.

Mrs. L. T. Murray heads the committee in charge of the evening's festivities, which also includes Mrs. Lloyd Patterson and Mrs. A. M. Larson. The members estimate that $700 will be required to finance the recreation program this year and they hope that Monday night's "take" will make a big dent in the amount needed.

Last minute announcements regarding Monday night's event disclose that the fire department meeting and GMI league bowling scheduled for that evening have been postponed — and the Misfit practice slated for tomorrow is cancelled due to Good Friday observance.

'Hoofbeats' Ranks Among State Contest Winners

From the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health association comes word that Belmond High school's "Hoofbeats" was among school papers winning honors in a contest recently conducted by the state and national Tuberculosis associations and the Columbia Scholastic Press association.

The competition was based on articles concerning community tuberculosis control. Six Iowa high schools were judged as winners in the national contest. Belmond was one of 12 additional schools whose papers were awarded state honors.

Board Increases Road Department Salaries, Wages

At a meeting of the county board of supervisors held Monday at the courthouse at Clarion, a new schedule of pay for the Wright county road department was adopted. In general, small salary and wage increases were approved for practically all of the department employees.

Figures on previous salaries of County Engineer P. T. Struck, Assistant Engineer H. M. Hoyt and their office secretary were not readily obtainable. According to the 1948 financial report, the engineer's salary was $3,175; it is now set at $325 per month or $3,900 for the year. Combined salaries of the engineer's office assistant were shown by the '48 financial report to total $4,168.50. No break-down was given. The new salaries of the assistant and secretary—$250 and $175 per month, respectively—will total $5,100 per year.

Truck drivers and patrolmen, the only other salaried employees, received boosts from $187 to $205 per month. The hourly wgaes of other employees were increased in most instances by five or 10 cents, to range from 90 cents to $1.10.

Another matter of business at the board meeting involved acceptance of a resignation submitted by Deputy Sheriff Evron Braumann. Mr. Braumann, who had served as a deputy for only the past two months, has been accepted as a candidate for the state highway patrol. His resignation was effective as of March 31 and he entered the patrolmen's school for training on Monday.

County Tax Collections Over $850,000 March 31

County Treasurer H. E. Sullivan reported this week that $851,159.37 in 1949 taxes had been received at his office by the end of the day last Friday, March 31, deadline for payment to avoid penalties.

This left a balance of $569,960.57 payable in last half taxes—and in delinquent accounts. Mr. Sullivan says that the amount paid in advance of the deadline compares favorably with ontime payments of recent years.

Of the total received through last Friday, $22,720.61 was paid prior to the first of March and $628,438.76 was paid during last month. Tax payments this year overlooking delinquencies—will total a record of $1,421,119.94.

Registration Scheduled For Pre-School Children

All children who will be enrolled in kindergarten in the Belmond school next fall should be registered on April 19 or 20, sometime between the hours of 1:00 and 3:00, Supt. Don Faris announces. Any child who will reach his or her fifth birthday before Nov. 16 can be registered.

Registration will be conducted at the superintendent's office. The main reason for registration at this time, according to Mr. Faris, is to allow for pre-school medical check-up meetings to be conducted this spring so the health record of each prospective kindergartner can be obtained in ample time that corrective measures can be taken during the summer if needed.

* IN MEMORIAM *

In loving memory of our son and brother, Luverne Ostendorf, who was killed in a plane crash April 9, 1946.

Although its been four years ago
That he has passed away,
The memory of our loved one
Is with us day by day.
There are no words that can express
The loneliness inside,
There always is that heartache
That smile and actions hide.
The passing of a loved one
Is so terribly hard to bear,
But it is a comfort always
To know he's in God's care.

Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ostendorf; Mr. and Mrs. James Vos; and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dorenkamp; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stadtlander, Darlene and Linda. 25t1

Give to Conquer Cancer

Strike Back!

THE fight is on to save more lives in 1950! Now is the time to back science to the hilt in its all out battle against cancer.

Important gains have already been made. Last year, 67,000 men, women and children were rescued from cancer. Many more can be saved—if you resolve to save them—if you strike back at cancer.

Give! Give your dimes and quarters and dollars. More treatment facilities are needed, more skilled physicians, more medical equipment and laboratories. The success of great research and educational programs depends on your support.

Your contribution to the American Cancer Society supports these vital efforts. It helps guard your neighbor, yourself, your loved ones. So this year, strike back at cancer . . . Give more than before . . . Give as generously as you can.

LeroyKnuths, Laurel Wilson Reign As King, Queen of 4-H "Fun Nite"

The 4-H Fun Nite of 1950 hit an all-time high in attendance as approximately 1300 people crowded into the Clarion Junior High auditorium on Tuesday of last week.

Highlighting the evening performance was the coronation ceremony. By popular vote of 4-H members, the boys elected Laurel Wilson of the Woolstock Willing Workers as queen of 1950 Fun Nite. The girls elected LeRoy Knuths of the Iowa Hawkeyes the 1950 king.

The queen was presented with a silver 4-H link bracelet. The king was given a 4-H leather bill fold and each king candidate was presented a tie clasp with a 4-H emblem.

The coronation ceremony was conducted by Rachel Peterson of Dayton Dandies and Don Feller of Grant Growers, Fun Nite queen and king of 1949; they were assisted by Ruth Martin and Willis Muhlenbruck, county 4-H presidents. Wilma Whitten of Iowa U-Go-I-Go was piano accompanist for this phase of the program.

Presentation of 14 skits by 24 4-H clubs climaxed several weeks of planning and practicing, although this was actually the first time that all clubs had combined their skits into a single program.

The accent was on humor as a variety of ideas and themes provided the framework. 4-H boys and girls, leaders and county committee members cooperated to produce skits that gave the audience many chuckles.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schultz and children of Alexander visited Mr. and Mrs. Herman Frohling on Sunday afternoon.

The Keith house has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth LaVelle of Belmond. They have four children. Mr. LaVelle is employed at the General Mills company in Belmond. They will take possession April 1.

EASTER
by Evan B. Johnson

Let the light of my soul meet and be one
With the golden rays of the Easter sun,
This Holy Day:
And may the Faith that conquered death for Him,
Be mine when, in the path as it grows dim,
I kneel to pray.

And to the right of Martin: Claude White, Klemme; Frank Thompson, Charles City; Harry S. Ward, Shell Rock; Peter DeJong, council Scout executive; Dr. R. H. Koenig, Charles City; and Milt Raizes, council jamboree chairman. All of those pictured except Bisbey and Raizes will make the Valley Forge trip.

At this meeting final plans for the big trek were were laid, with special attention to transportation, excursions, feeding and pre-camp assembly. The latter will be at Camp Roosevelt beginning June 21.

Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good.—Romans 12:9.

———o———

Last week we read of another tragic fire in a private hospital of "part wooden and part stone" construction. The frame construction of Belmond's present hospiatl, as we all know, is the primary reason the state board of health has declared we must build a new one—or go without . . . And how much have YOU pledged toward that new hospital?

The Senator's Partly Right;
SOMEBODY'S Certainly Arrogant

When Senator Hickenlooper cut loose with his abortive effort to prove David Lilienthal guilty of maladministration in connection with his chairmanship of the Atomic Energy Commission, we were undecided about the sincerity of his motives. His censure of the administration for refusing to give senate investigators access to its SECRET loyalty files puzzles us still more.

It is our humble opinion that charges of Communist affiliations should not be made until they are substantiated. It seems to be Senator McCarthy's cart-before-the-horse procedure to make accusations with the hope that he may be able to scrape up some substantiating evidence to justify them. We don't like to see Senator Hickenlooper abetting such tactics.

He charges the administration with flagrant "arrogance" in withholding the files. He's got the right adjective, but we question that he's put the finger on the right party.

City Folks Pay the Freight Where Military Tax Exemptions Are Involved

Last week County Treasurer H. E. Sullivan received from the state a check for Military Service Tax Credit for the first half of 1949, which indicates the total refund to Wright county for that year will approximate $14,050. It also left Treasurer Sullivan mumbling to himself over what he considers a definite inequity involved in the Military Service Exemption law.

To review what you undoubtedly already know, this law provides the World War II service man property-holder with exemption from tax on his holdings up to a value of $500 and somewhat larger concessions to veterans of earlier wars. The county is reimbursed by the state for the loss of revenue only to the extent of 25 mills. In otherwords, in Belmond—where the total tax levy is approximately 48 mills—$500 worth of property held by a veteran would normally bring in $24; but under the military exemption provision the corporation gets only $12.50.

That $12.50 represents the military service credit from the state of 25 mills on $500. The $11.50 which the other 23 tax mills would bring in is simply lost.

So how does all this work out? Well, in those rural taxing districts where millages run under 25 mills—and there are 26 such districts in Wright county—the state credit entirely makes up for loss of revenue due to the military exemption. But in the urban areas—where, incidentally, the bulk of the veterans are living—an income loss is incurred which must be compensated for by an over-all increase in millage.

In other words, Corporation Belmond knows how much money it must derive from tax sources—and the loss of income resulting from the military exemptions simply means that the general millage rate (paid by veterans, as well as others) must be correspondingly heavier to obtain the required revenue.

The net result is that the city veteran actually, in effect, loses part of his exemption in the form of higher millage on the whole of his property—and all other city property-holders must pay an unwarranted higher tax merely because they live where a preponderance of the veteran population lives.

What is the solution to eliminating this inequity, then? Mr. Sullivan says the answer is for the state to give credit to ALL taxing districts for the FULL amount of exemption allowed ALL veterans. Such payments would come out of state general funds, which would be contributed in equitable proportion by all taxpayers in the state. This would result in no particular areas or groups benefitting by disproportionate distribution of the veteran population—and in no areas or groups paying a penalty due to containing a higher than average percentage of veterans.

Mr. Sullivan has gone over this argument with us several times. So many, in fact, that he has us pretty thoroughly convinced that he's "got" something.

A "Defense" Should Be Permitted

The U. S. Senate Rules Subcommittee is currently considering a bill designed to protect witnesses before Congressional investigating committees. In Senator Gillette's weekly newsletter, he remarks, "While this seems reasonable on its face, it should be borne in mind that committee studies seek to develop facts as aids in legislating and do not and cannot determine the guilt or innocence of witnesses before them."

The senator concedes that irresponsibiliity has been flagrant on the part of some investigating committees, giving some justification to a bill such as proposed, but predicts its passage will be hotly contested.

So long as unsubstantialed accusals such as those recently bandied about by Wisconsin's Senator McCarty are allowed, it appears to us that it is only proper that the individuals accused should be permitted counsel and the privilege of cross-examination. Too much of the questioning has been on a par with the old query, "Have you stopped beating your wife?"

Individual liberties have been taking a terrific beating through the medium of these congressional investigations in all too numerous instances. If a person's guilt can be "popularly" established through these inquisitions, it makes little difference insofar as the accused's prestige is concerned whether or not the procedure was "legal".

Checks and balances have been the life blood of American democracy, and we're very much in agreement with those who see the necessity for some kind of check against the potential injustices of irresponsible accusations by congressional publicity-seekers.

Just when we'd about decided that Iowans had either defective eyesight or poor imaginations, eight of our neighbors at Sioux City came through with a "flying saucer" report. If one of these sneaking saucers gets caught in the updraft of an A-bomb in the course of its snooping, it would just serve it right.

Well, the final T-day of 1950 has come and gone and there are now 349 saving days left until the next income tax deadline. Of course, those capitalists who are paying off quarterly only get three months at a time to catch their breath, but if they're making so durned much money they can't even pay their taxes in one chunk—should we feel sorry for em?

———o———

There seems to be a real resurgence of the Democratic party in many parts of Iowa, but a few Republican strongholds remain inviolate. When a full county ticket of Demo candidates is filed in Wright county, we'll know the G. O. P. elephant has one foot in the grave.

FEELING OVERWORKED, MOM?

How'd You Like to Fix 1,500 Meals Weekly?

Can you imagine planning and preparing 300 meals a day for 300 hungry children five days a week? It's not a case of imagining for Mrs. Mattie Farmer, it's a reality.

Mrs. Farmer, with the help of Mrs. I. F. Bier and Mrs. Rose Dettman, prepares hot lunches for Belmond school children at the average rate of 1,500 a week.

Working from 7:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. these women prepare the complete meal each day. About every three days they peel 150 pounds of potatoes.

Mrs. Bier does all the baking except the bread, which they order every day. The pies are baked in large sheets, from which 50 squares are cut.

On Friday, Mrs. Farmer plans the meals for the following week. Having experience in this type of work, she estimates the cost and orders the food, and very rarely has any leftovers. The only times they prepare a meal ahead of timee is when a salad needs to set overnight.

Serving the students in two shifts, grade school students first and then high school students, Mrs. Farmer has always had the meals ready on time.

"On a stormy day we plan for more students and usually the amount of food comes out just about right,". Mrs. Farmer said.

Four high school girls set and clear the tables but the rest of the work is done by Mrs. Farmer, Mrs. Bier and Mrs. Dettman.

Mrs. Farmer has been supervising the hot lunch program for eight years and Mrs. Bier has worked in the lunch room for 10 years. This is Mrs. Dettman's third year as a cook for the high school.

Previous to this work Mrs. Mrs. Farmer aided her husband in running a coffee shop, which later developed into the Farmer's Cafe. Mrs. Farmer also works the theatre from 6:30 to 9:30 p. six nights a week.

"I enjoy my work and would be lost without the children" Mrs. Farmers convincingly remarked.

JUST LIKE AN Easter Egg

Remember when you were a kid and took such delight in dyeing the Easter eggs—how you carefully selected the dye, tried hard to get it on smooth and pretty, and then polished the finished egg with a greasy cloth?

Well, we're the same way about auto paint jobs. We're mighty careful about selecting just the right paint and the right color. We take pains to put the paint on right so it stays put and is smooth. Finally we carefully polish the finish to high luster.

Whether you go in for Easter egg colors or prefer a good, solid black, we can make your drab old car sparkle like it's fresh from the showroom. Let us give you our reasonable estimate.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

Our call last weekend on Dale Hauge, to find out how he obtained that prize-winning 37.25 bushels per acre soybean yield last fall, found him just getting back in the harness after a bout with—of all things—the mumps. He was hauling some water out to his brood sows and eyed a little resentfully a faucet right by the brooder house that had frozen itself out of commission during the winter. He has a really fine looking batch of sows and spring pigs—all purebred Durocs. We'll tell you something about them when we get the soybean business out of the way.

—RFD—

Back in the kitchen of the Hauges' attractive farm home—which is on an 80 that Dale rents on shares from his father-in-law, Wessel Braner—Wright county's top soybean grower (on yield basis, at least) endeavored to tell us just what turned the trick.

"First of all," said Dale, "I had mighty good seed. I planted Hawkeyes and the seed was very clean. There was hardly a sign of weeds in those beans. I had 11 acres, all told, and I believe the whole patch must have had a yield average at least as high as that center five acres that was harvested for the contest. There were few, if any, thin spots.

"The beans came up a little earlier, I'd say, than ordinary and got a real fine start. I watched to plant no deeper than required to reach sufficient moisture to make sure of prompt germination. That's one important thing to watch out for, I believe. Of course, you must get down to the moisture; but beyond that, the thing to watch out for is that your planting depth is no greater than necessary.

"One other thing which I think had considerable effect on producing a good yield was the fact that I got into the field one last time with a cultivator even though the plants were already blossomed out."

Dale explained that many farmers are of the opinion that beans should never be cultivated after they've blossomed. But after he'd cultivated twice, heavy moisture prevented him from cultivating a third and final time when he thought the beans should have it. Consequently, after the soil dried sufficiently that he could again work the field the plants were almost fully blossomed. The ground was pretty tight and and the field was weedier than he liked, so Dale crossed his fingers and went after the beans once more with the cultivator.

"Actually," Dale declared, "I couldn't see later that a speck of harm had been done to the plants; and I'm sure my yield wouldn't have been so high without that last cultivation. So on the strength of that experience, I'd recommend against neglecting a last, needed cultivation—even if the plants ARE in blossom."

—RFD—

Dale added that he is a firm believer in Inoculating bean seed before planting. While that isn't going to effect your crop in the least, he feels that you aren't getting full benefit out of your bean planting unless you take full advantage out of the nitrogen the crop can release in the soil if the seed has been inoculated.

He plans to plant corn this year where he had beans last fall, and he is confident his corn crop will be all the better for the soil's higher nitrogen content. Incidentally, the field will get a full dose of fertilizer this year—which it didn't receive last year prior to being planted in beans. The "experts", says Dale, insist there is no point in fertilizing before planting beans.

He is well sold on the Hawkeye variety and feels the farmers are fortunate this year in that there should be quite a plentiful supply of this seed available. Dale intends to plant 12 to 14 acres in beans this year—assuming he stays within his corn allotment.

—RFD—

"Well?" we asked, "How about it? Are you going to cut your corn acreage?"

Dale admitted he's still somewhat on the fence. He keeps around a dozen blooded Holstein cows (he presently has seven and four calves)—and has 13 sows and 107 spring pigs. Like many another farmer who's feeding or plans to feed a fair amount of stock, this acreage reduction has him puzzled.

We recited to him what we'd heard Oscar Hanson telling a feeder at the PMA office a while back—that in the long run a corn surplus is going to be reflected in prices, whether the corn is in the crib or "on the hoof."

"He's probably right," Dale conceded; then remarked, "Anyway, that's something I don't have to decide on definitely for just a bit, yet."

—RFD—

Almost all of his spring pigs were farrowed while Dale was laid up with the mumps. His gilts were generous to a fault in the size of their litters. His 13 sows farrowed 153 pigs—with a number of the litters running as high as 13 and 14.

"There were just too many, I guess," Dale says. "I understand that quite a few of the pigs were born dead. Fully formed, and well developed—but there just must have been too many."

The 107 little red fellows he has left all seem to be thriving and are coming along fine. One drawback to his inability to get around just when the pigs arrived is the fact that all the earnotching remains to be done. Dale says the sows don't take at all kindly to the way he picks on their babies — and Dale adds that it IS a much more unpleasant chore when the pigs are a week or so old, than when they'e just newborn.

—RFD—

Dale is quite a firm believer in the excellence of the Duroc breed, so he hedged a bit when we tried to get him to talk about hybrids. Two years age he had four hybrid-bred sows and one litter of purebred Durocs. He says there was a very inconsequential difference in the pigs' weights when they were sold. Last fall he had three second-cross litters. He ended up with 24 pigs which were sold at seven months averaging 256 pounds—which, Dale says, could hardly be counted as exceptional in the least.

He says that he doesn't like working with the hybrids as well as with his Duroc purebreds. For one thing, they're pretty wild. But he summed up his comments on hybrids with the admission:

"I expect I'm prejudiced. I like Durocs. In fact, Joe Duea and I a while back went together on a $425 boar and I intend to stick by that breed. I took one gilt to the State Duroc Breeder's sale at Marshalltown last last January. Got $130 for her. That was hardly up to the sale average—but it was a good three-times the general market price.

"With the number of Durocs I've got on hand now, I intend to build up my herd and possibly to a little showing in the future. Now understand, I don't mean to run hybrids down. I've hardly given them a good trial—and for some purposes I expect they're OK. Bill Sheriff seems to think so, and he should know."

—RFD—

Well, that's how Dale stands—on soybeans, pigs, 'n stuff. He's apparentaly doing very well on those 80 acres. We admired a brand new De Soto sedan in his driveway as we were about to leave. He'd bought it just a couple of days earlier. Had just "gone to look" — but you know how those car salesmen are.

Many were the star attractions at the PTA doin's at the gym Monday night. The Patterson-Finn feud during the basketball game was a bit disappointing in that no eyes were blacked or noses bloodied. C. J. Papousek and Eva Hansen made their mark with costumes that earned them prizes in a contest for best hard-times attire.

But THE sensation was the charming pair of yellow panties trimmed in fetching black lace that Ronnie Courson wore to play basketball. We can just hear his envious friends asking, "My DEAR, Where DID you GET them?"

Ronnie's interpretive "dance" also contributed greatly to the post-game festivities. We hear that the Famous Dixieland Ramblers are dickering with Courson with the possibility that he will be added to their entourage as a specialty dancer.

The fellow at the right is trying to get himself a new hat—without laying cash on the counter. That's the reason he has himself propped on a question mark. He is entering the contest being conducted by Dutch Thompsen's Clothing store, in which a new chapeau will be awarded to the person making the best guess on what Belmond's population will prove to be according to the 1950 census.

Dutch's ad in this issue provides an entry blank upon which to submit your guess. Now, for goodness sakes, take the time to clip the blank and take it in to Dutch with your guess. Not only would we like to see YOU wearing a new hat—but we'd like to show Dutch just how many people DO read his ads.

Our Alexander correspondent reports that the self-styled vacuum cleaner repairmen who recently paid Belmond a visit were operating over at "Alex" on Monday of this week. They were given short shrift by the housewives of the community, and one of them called the town marshal to urge that the visitors be cordially invited to get on their way. This is the second visitation Alexander has had by bogus repairmen.

The only thing in the report that disturbs us is the fact that these racketeers must still be doing sufficient "business" to warrant continued operation. Anyway, pickin's must be getting slimmer all the time.

The gentleman here pictured is a well known Belmond merchant, smiling last weekend as he raked money in with his left hand and passed it out with his right. By this process Lucky Bucks were already in circulation by the thousands by closing time last Saturday night

Don't forget, the first Lucky Buck auction is scheduled for just two weeks from tomorrow — Friday, April 28. Pay those bills buy that stuff and be in there bidding when the hammer goes into action. There are some mighty attractive items coming up for auction.

Can you imagine a high school teacher being disappointed because the performance of a group of his students exceeded his highest expectations? That was the peculiar state of affairs that existed Saturday when Duane Sandage's FFA parliamentary procedure team walked off with a gold medal rating in the district contest.

All the team's members are only sophomores, and Duane had high hopes for them—but not this year. He'd expected them to possibly do well enough to win silver medals, which would leave them still eligible to compete in coming years; but NO—they had to go and win a top rating and earn the right to compete in the 1950 state contest.

This leaves the boys ineligible to compete again in the parliamentary division, and Duane felt their state chances in a year or two would be much better than this year. So the boys' commendable performance left Duane with mixed-feelings. He's proud of them; but at the same time he's muttering, "Doggone 'em!"

DR. NELSON SPEAKER AT OPTOMETRIST MEETING

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Rietz and Dr. and Mrs. A. M Nelson attended the Optometric Study Group meeting at Mason City on Thursday evening of last week.

There was a 6:30 dinner followed by a program at which Dr. Nelson was the guest speaker.

After the meeting they attended the builders show at the high school gymnasium.

Wind-Sleet Down Rural Telephone And Power Lines

Last Sunday's wind and sleet caused less havoc to telephone and power lines in the Belmond vicinity than in many others, but nevertheless kept local repair crews hopping to maintain service.

Manager Cecil Carstens of the Central States Electric office here reports that not more than a couple of dozen line poles went down in this immediate area and only the lines from Belmond to Alexander and to Coulter suffered to any great extent. Line breaks due to snapped tree limbs caused some disruption in service in and around Rowan, Galt and Dows.

The Central States repairmen were able to keep service, except in out-lying areas, near normal throughout the storm. Much greater damage to power lines was done north of here, Manager Carstens says, and on Tuesday he "loaned" Earl Dorr and Gene Broderson of the local repair crew to the Garner office as it endeavored to get service in and around that community back to normal.

Telephone lines under the supervision of the Belmond office of the Central Telephone company were much harder hit than the power lines. In Belmond proper

Dale Walrod, 22, New Day Marshal

Dale Walrod, 22, was appointed as Belmond's day marshal last week by Mayor A. W. Loats and the appointment was approved by the council at its meeting Thursday night. The new peace officer was sworn in by Mayor "Andy" Loats on Tuesday of this week and is now on the job.

The new day marshal attended Belmond High school. He left school in spring of 1946 and immediately afterward enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps. He was in the service from May of 1946 until mid-January of 1948. Fifteen months of this time was spent in Shore Patrol duty in the Hawaiian islands, so Walrod is not inexperienced in police work.

Dale is married and has one child, a son age three and a half months. He has lately been employed at Berns D-X station. His appointment fills out the town police force, Harve Seals having previously been named night marshal.

Hap Havinga Slated To Play the Organ As 'Extra' at Dance

A real treat is in store for the throng that is expected to attend the American Legion-Auxiliary dance Friday night at the Veterans' Memorial building. "Hap" Havinga of Kamrar, one of the finest organists in this part of the country, has agreed to present some numbers on the Hammond electric organ, which will be provided for the occasion by Ed Spurling.

"Hap" can play it hot as well as sweet and has more selections at his finger-tips than a dog has you-know-what. As a further, but more questionable recommendation, it might be added that Mr. Havinga is teaching Dr. A. M. Nelson to play the organ. "Doc" will admit, though, that at this early date any comparison between his playing and "Hap's is entirely far-fetched.

With the Famous Dixieland Ramblers (that's Ed Spurling and his gang, incognito) providing the dance music, terpischorean enthusiastists will have their first opportunity tomorrow to try out the newly installed dance floor in the Vet's building.

It will be strictly a public affair and anyone with the price—75 cents for men, 50 for women, or $1.25 for a couple—is welcome to join in the fun.

IOOF AND REBEKAHS PRESENTING PROGRAM OF PLAYS THIS EVE

So well received were the two one-act plays recently presented by patrons of Belmond rural school No. 6 that the Belmond Odd Fellows and Rebekahs have induced the casts to put on a repeat performance this evening (Thursday) at the IOOF hall as a benefit for the two lodges.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs have lately gone to a good deal of expense in making improvements in the lodge hall and installing new heating equipment, and proceeds of the play program will go to help defray those expenses.

Included in the play casts are the following amateur thespians: Mr. and Mrs. George Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hinman, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Swenson, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Dunton, George Hinman and David Crawford.

Admission to the plays will be 50 cents for adults and a dime for children. Lunches will be sold following the play program, which starts at 8:00 p. m.

Pair of Belmond Entries Win Top Contest Ratings

Representatives of Belmond's chapter of Future Farmers of America won gold medals in two events last Saturday as over 150 FFA members and teachers from 19 different high schools assembled here for the annual North Central Iowa FFA district contests.

Roy Johnson qualified for a medal with his delivery of the Freshman's Creed and the local parliamentary procedure team duplicated his feat with their parliamentary demonstration.

There were 14 competitors in the creed contest, with Mervyn Hilpipre of Clarion and Jack Warner of Iowa Falls earning the right to advance to the state contest by getting the highest ratings. Besides these two and Johnson, entries from Ackley, Algona, Dows and Webster City also will receive gold medals.

Alvin Halfpap, Ronald Ketchum, Lawrence Ziller, Fred Loats and Jim Riekens composed the Belmond parliamentary procedure team. Only one of the other eight teams entered — that from Northwood—received a higher grade on its performance than the Belmond entry; and only these two qualified for gold medals. Both are eligible to compete in the coming state contest.

In public speaking, two boys were declared gold medal winners and will go on to the state competition. They were Leonard Sanders of Iowa Falls and Robert Van Diest of Webster City. Jim Thompsen, local entry in this division, was given a bronze medal rating.

In extemporaneous speaking, Lamont Walendorf of Algona and Russell Schaub of Northwood placed one-two and will go on to the state meet. These two fortunate winners also received

EAGLE GROVE YOUTH "OUT OF FRYING PAN AND INTO THE FIRE"

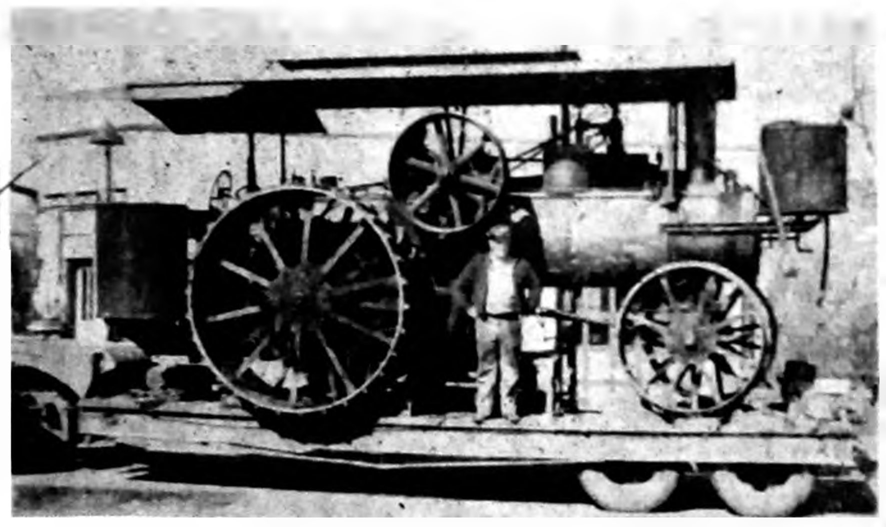
Felix G. Allie, 20, of Eagle Grove on Wednesday of last week was "out of the frying pan and into the fire" as he completed a 90-day term in the Wright county jail and was immediately picked up by U. S. Deputy Marshal Alfred Halbach of Fort Dodge and carted off to the Humboldt county jail at Dakota City.

He was jailed at Clarion last January after pleading guilty to the county attorney's information on the charge of false uttering and drawing of a bank check. At the time of his arrest he was in possession of a car that had been stolen in Chicago some weeks earlier.

In his Humboldt county cell, he is now awaiting federal hearing under the Dyer Act on a charge of transporting a stolen motor vehicle from one state to another. He was originally arrested in Fort Dodge on Jan. 2 at the request of Sheriff Bob Blecker after he had passed bad checks in Rowan, Goldfield and Eagle Grove.

HOT LUNCH PLANNED WITH RUMMAGE SALE

The Esther Circle of the Methodist church will hold a rummage sale Saturday, starting at 9:30 a. m. In conjunction with the sale, a hot lunch will be served beginning at 11:00 o'clock. The meal will consist of a hot beef sandwich with potatoes and gravy, cabbage salad, pie and coffee.



EACH FALL A QUARTER CENTURY AGO the countryside echoed to the boisterous toots of such cousins to the "iron horse" as the one pictured above, as they went their rounds helping to harvest the crops of oats and wheat. Until three years ago this one was still in use in the Renwick neighborhood. The immense size of the steam engine that passed through town last Thursday can be estimated by comparing it with it's 5-foot 7-inch owner, standing by the rear wheel. Picture was taken at Berns D-X station where the truck, which was to haul its mammoth passenger to LaMotte (just south of Dubuque) was "gassing up."

Mammoth Engine Evokes Memories During Stop Here

A sight once familiar throughout the grainbelt every harvest season was brought to mind last Thursday as a gigantic, old-fashioned steam engine passed through Belmond on its way to a saw mill at LaMotte, Iowa, where it will work out its remaining days converting logs into lumber.

The 19-ton behemoth was being carted on a trailer to its new location by Clair Nelson. According to its new owner, Justin Hentgen of LaMotte, the machine rolled onto the trailer under its own power ("Took about all the brush and trash we could scrape together to get up steam.")

It was scheduled to negotiate two underpasses en route in the same fashion, since insufficient headroom would not allow it clearance aboard the trailer.

Mr. Hentgen purchased the engine from its original owner, Arthur McPeak of Renwick. The machine had been in annual use every year up to three years ago, when failing eyesight made it necessary for Mr McPeak to abandon his usual harvest-time activities.

Mr. McPeak, reportedly, thought the world and all of his mammoth "pet" and had taken marvelous care of it. The new owner said there were tears in the eyes of the old man when the engine was loaded for the trip.

Manufactured in 1922, the huge machine is a Minneapolis traction engine, capable of generating 110 horse power. One of its unusual features is a Wolf compound cylinder which, according to Mr. Hentgen, gives the same effect as two cylinders. The cylinder bore 1892 and '95 patent dates.

A price of $375 was paid for the engine, including a mammoth drive belt 15 feet long and nine inches wide. The belt enables the engine to stand 75 feet from the machinery it is operating.

"The machine is in wonderful condition," the new owner stated. "It very obviously has had the best of care and has been kept sheltered when not in use."

The boiler builds up to 150 to 175 pounds of steam and Mr. Hentgen expects his new acquisition to do a lot of work for him at his saw mill. He has two other old-time steam engines in operation at his mill, both of them even older than the one just purchased.

Old steam engines have long been of great interest to the LaMotte man. Although he is only 32 years old, he has owned 23 of them to date. Consequently, when he classifies this one as a "real find" it bespeaks well for the manner in which its previous owner had looked after it.

Registration Next Week For 1950 Kindergarten

Supt. Don Faris reminds parents of children who will be entering kindergarten next fall that their youngsters should be registered at the superintendent's office either Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Registrations will be accepted between the hours of 1:00 and 3:00 p. m.

Any child attaining the age of five before next Nov. 16 can be enrolled. Medical check-ups will be conducted later in the spring to make possible the completion of health records for all 1950 kindergartners, and registration at the appointed time is necessary so that all parents can be notified when and where the examinations will be performed.

Plans Completed For Cancer Drive Starting Monday

After attending the county kick-off meeting held last night at Clarion, at which Dr. S. P. Leinbach was to be one of the main speakers, leaders of the Belmond fund-raising campaign for the American Cancer Society today completed final plans for the drive which will open here next Monday.

Mrs. Jeanne Bamford, chairman of the local campaign, has asked that residents of this community be reminded that Belmond has been particularly hard hit by this disease in recent years and has a large stake in the success of the cancer drive. The town has been generous in its response to past campaigns, and Mrs. Bamford hopes that the response will be at least equally so this year.

For canvassing purposes, the town has been divided into six sections. Three are north of Main street and three to the south. Section captains and their solicitors have been appointed as follows: North, Section I—Mrs. Dorothy Heginger, captain, Mrs. Ruth Wilmarth, Mrs. Ethyl Papousek, Mrs. Dorothy Christie, Mrs. Hattie Allison, Mrs. Betty Barkema, Mrs. Cliff Van Sickle, Mrs. Larry Grossinger and Mrs. Jeanne Bamford.

North Section II — Cecilia Holtzbauer, captain, Mrs. Phyllis Infelt, Mrs. Virginia Courson, Mrs. Elizabeth Koppernagle, Mrs. Miriam Gowdy, Mrs. Jane Svendsen, Mrs. Lillie Johnson, Mrs. Georgia Fulton, Mrs. Edna Hanson, Mrs Iola Johnson, Mrs Gertrude Johnson and Mrs Augusta Berghefer.

North Section III — Mrs. Blanche Porter, captain, Mrs. Marian Pals, Mrs. Anna Rierson, Mrs. Mattie Farmer and Mrs. Marie Zook.

South Section I — Mrs. Pearl Doctor, captain, Mrs. Goldie Johnson, Mrs. Minnie Leebrick and Mrs. Marie Baxter; South Section II—Mrs. Susan Anderson, captain, Mrs. Mary Smith Thera Fitts, Mrs. Erma [illegible], Mrs. Onalee Benson, Mrs. Violet Wagner and Mrs. Eva [illegible].

South Section III Mrs. [illegible] Wenzel, captain, Mrs. Lillie Thompson, Mrs. Marj Kennedy, Mrs. Bessie Thompson and Mrs. Jennie Classick.

Flabby Foe Flayed by Faculty; Frenzied Flips Feature Fray

The "Main Street Misfits" came—they saw (and were seen) —but the "Faculty Flashes" conquered in the basketball battle royale conducted Monday night at the high school gym. Of course, at the conclusion of the fray the scoreboard read: Misfits 36, Flashes 35—but there was definite evidence of collusion. About five seconds earlier the tally was 35-21.

"Slim" Scott was the evening's standout, looping in 15 points for the winners. "Farmer" Sandage contribdute eight points and "Battling" Patterson was good for seven. 'Sure-Shot" Squires and "Rainbow" Hugh were good for three and two points respectively.

Lem Long and Orland Finn carried the load for the Misfits with seven points apiece (Long made an impressive final basket after a fine bit of broken field running, which didn't find its way into the score book). Ed Gabrielson, Dan Boone and Merle Bonte each accounted for a basket, and Danny-Boy Dannewitz startled the throng by sinking a free throw.

In a curtain-raiser between the "Weaknighters" and a team of high school senior girls, the business women were administered a sound drubbing. The winners were led to a 20-5 victory by Shirley Proeger and Darlene Rierson.

Tiny-mite Mary Negrete captured the hearts of the fans with her performance, but onlookers were a bit disappointed that she never took a swing at Referee Lowell Hass—as she seemed sorely tempted to do on several occasions. Not that Lowell deserved such treatment; it simply intrigued the imagination.

The only draw-back to the whole, pleasurable evening was the fact that it failed by more than 60 per cent to raise the $700 that will be needed to finance the summer recreation program. Too few couples in attendance came with box lunches to be auctioned—and too few dimes were coughed up by the dancers. The total "take" for the evening, reports Mrs. L. T. Murray, the committee chairman, was a bit over $265.

Greenlander Announces For Supervisor Position

John Greenlander, in today's paper, announces his candidacy for election as county supervisor on the Republican ticket in the June primary election. He has been a member of the county board since Feb. 20, when he was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of the late Alex Smith.

Mr. Greenlander was active in business here for many years, first in banking and later in the lumber business. For 24 years he was proprietor of the Greenlander Lumber company, retiring after its sale to Spahn and Rose in 1948. He has remained active in civic affairs and was a candidate for mayor in the recent election until appointment to the board forced his withdrawal.

Offer WW2 Vets On-Farm Training

An institutional on-the-farm GI training program will be organized at Belmond High school in the near future, according to Supt. Don Faris, if enough eligible veterans evidence interest.

A meeting will be held in the vocational agriculture room next Wednesday evening, April 19, at 7:30 p. m. at which the program will be explained to World War II veterans.

At this meeting papers will also be distributed for completion by veterans who work on a farm, rent, or own their own farm—and are thereby eligible for the training.

An eligible veteran is entitled to education and training at the high school for a minimum period of one year, plus a period equal to the number of years, months and days of his active duty from Sept. 16, 1940 up to July 25, 1947.

A veteran taking on-the-job training will be expected to receive at least 200 hours of classroom work per year along with his supervised work on the farm. With no dependents, his monthly allowance will be $65 to $67.50; if he has one dependent it will be $90 to $93.75; if over one, $90 to $97.50.

Inquiries may be made at Mr Faris's office.

Baptist Church Planning Youth Center

Members of the Belmond Baptist church are keeping occupied during free time these days helping to create in the church basement a Christian Youth Center which will be open to all young people of the community.

Rev. A. T. Rollene, pastor of the church, has for many years been interested in youth activities and is the inspiration behind the proposed recreation center.

He feels that the young people of every town both need and deserve to have a place where they can find recreation and entertainment during idle hours.

A variety of games will be available to the young folks at the Baptist recreation room. Contemplated at present are ping pong, shuffle board, table hockey, darts and tire baseball for those who are looking for activity. Quieter pastimes such as checkers, Chinese checkers and other table games will also be offered.

At present the sponsors of the youth center have one ping pong table under construction, but the Rev. Mr. Rollene says that two or three more could be used to good advantage—and any persons who might have a table no longer in use will find it gratefully received if they would like to donate it to the project.

An old phonograph in usable condition, a discarded piano and games of practically all descriptions would also be welcome gifts. Any suggestions that might enhance the usefulness of the center will also be most acceptable, says the Rev. Mr. Rollene.

Free popcorn, for popping at the recreation room, will be a feature of the youth center. One member of the congregation has offered to plant an acre of popcorn this year especially for the young folks so a plentiful supply will be available next fall. Candy, gum and pop will be sold. The sponsors hope that the center, expenses of which should be small, will be self-sustaining.

It is hoped the center will be ready for its grand opening in about a month. It is the present plan to have it open afternoons and evenings, with adult supervision present whenever it is in use.

The Rev. Mr. Rollene emphasizes that all young people will be most welcome to use the recreation facilities, regardless of religious affiliations.

CHRISTIAN

As Rev. A. T. Rollene (at rear) put the finishing touches on the Christian Youth Center sign, several young Baptist Church members were on hand last Friday morning to help with work on the church's new recreation room for young people. Left to right are: Theatta Bunjer, Beverly Meyer, Ardis Meyers, Marlene Bunjer and Gary Meyer.

SOMETHING NEW IN RANGES is shown above in the new model Westinghouse electric range which will be on view today at the Central States Electric company office. Called the "Rancho", the new- type range has the appearance of a knee-hole desk and is designed for small kitchens in which storage space is at a premium, as well as more spacious kitchens in which it will readily match modern interiors. Manager C. L. Carstens points out that the knee-hole space "gives the homemaker a place to store kitchen stool, wastebasket or other things that present a storage problem in the kitchen." Besides the new innovation, the "Rancho" model offers all accessories expected in a really up-to-date range.

Rural Women Will Hear How "Reds" Rule Czechoslavakia

Mrs. Marie Vitek, guest speaker from Cedar Rapids, will talk on "My Country, Czechoslavakia" as the feature of Rural Women's Day next Tuesday at Clarion. The program will be at the Methodist church starting at 2:00 p. m. Mrs. Vitek came to this country in 1913 and returned to Czechoslavakia for a three and a half month visit in 1949. She has worked tirelessly to tell what she saw in her native country, according to Mrs. Gerhard Thompson, chairman of the Rural Women's Day committee. After Mrs. Vitek's return to this country she was written up in the Cedar Rapids Gazette as "Woman of the Week."

Quoting from the paper, Mrs. Vitek said, "Americans cannot realize what it is like over there everything is rationed. Each month a person gets enough butter to cover two slices of bread, and one half of a large bar of soap for washing and personal use.

"Fifty to sixty per cent of the children have tuberculosis. We didn't even feel like eating when we saw how pathetically happy they were over the little bit of chocolate or coffee we could offer."

Pointing up the temperment of the state police regarding U. S. visitors, she related how her driver had attached a small American flag to his car "because he was so proud of his job." Not long afterward both his car and his truck were taken away, apparently because he had dared to display the stars and stripes.

Slides will also be shown of pictures that were taken by Mrs. Vitek and her sister, Mrs. Ann Kapaun, while visiting in Czechoslavakia.

"If you are interested in hearing how Communism got started in Czechoslavakia," says Mrs. Thompson, "make plans to attend Rural Women's Day. Everyone, rural or urban, is cordially invited to attend."

Planting More Soybeans in 1950? Tips Offered to Keep Costs Lower

With lower soybean prices definite for the 1950 crop, growers should lower their per-bushel cost of growing soybeans if they expect to continue to produce them at a profit, Geo. M. Strayer, secretary-treasurer of the American Soybean association says.

A support price of as low as $1.50 for 1950-crop soybeans is predicted in some quarters, said Strayer. With the largest crop in U. S. history possible due to conversion to soybeans from other crops under acreage allotment, the going price could be that low.

The key to a profit in 1950 may be to reduce the per-bushel cost of production, says Strayer. This can be done by producing more bushels per acre or by decreasing the total cost of production.

The cost of producing a bushel of soybeans has been estimated at from 96 cents to $1.42 in various soybean producing states, depending on the average yield per acre. There are few farmers who can't cut costs or increase yields, Strayer says. Here are some points any farmer can check himself on:

1. Are you growing the best varieties? There is a wide difference in yield between varieties, and better varieties are being developed each year. But be sure the variety you choose is adapted to your locality.

2—Are you inoculating your seed? This is old shoe to many farmers who have been growing soybeans. But it is false economy not to inoculate. Tests show that inoculation often increases yields five to six bushels per acre even on land that has been in soybeans year after year.

3—Avoid replanting and imperfect stands by planting seed which has been tested for germination and not planting too early. If you have an early dry period wait until it rains before planting.

4—Don't overplant. Seed costs money. From 45 to 60 pounds per acre is plenty. The exact amount depends on the width of row and size of seed. Plant heavy enough to allow for some mortality in cultivation.

50—On well drained or tiled soil use continuous rows. Start at one edge of the field and plant around and around until you reach the middle. This speeds up cultivation by eliminating turning at the end of the field. It also makes for easier combining.

6—Use rows as close to 28 inches as possible, depending on your equipment. In no case, go over 40-inch rows.

7—Keep your soybeans free of weeds. Cultivate shallow and often. Don't let weeds get a head start. Use a drag harrow crosswise of the rows, before you can see the first weed. Never harrow except in the afternoons of sunny days.

8—Keep down disease. Don't grow your soybeans on the same land every year. And don't cultivate when the plants are covered with dew or rain.

Your chances of making a profit on your soybeans in 1950 are better if you follow these simple rules, says Strayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Green Celebrate 55th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Green last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pals were joined by a number of relatives and friends in observing their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary.

They were married on April 10, 1895 at the farm home of the parents of the bride, then Carrie Swartz, west of Belmond. One remarkable thing in connection with the anniversary celebration was the fact that the guests included the couple who attended Mr. and Mrs. Green at their wedding — his brother, Charlie Green of Nashua, and his wife.

The Greens' only child—their son, Ray C. Green—was on hand for the occasion with his daughters Marcella and Deloris. Other grandchildren present were Harry Green of Clarion, with his wife and family; Kenneth Green, with his wife and family, Leroy Green, with his wife and son Paul, Mrs. Ray Pals, with her husband and son Mike, and Mrs. Leland Barkema, with her husband and daughter Deborah, all of Belmond.

Others who attended the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Troy Davis, all of Hampton.

At the conclusion of a social afternoon the honored couple opened a number of lovely gifts they had received and all present enjoyed a lunch consisting of ice cream, a three-tiered wedding cake and coffee.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Green have lived in the Belmond vicinity all their lives. Mr. Green was engaged in farming until his retirement in 1942. They have made their home in Belmond since that time.

WIND - SLEET . . .

and nearby the damage was quite small, but to the east a great many poles were down and there were many line breaks.

M. S. Kerr, area manager from Sac City, was in Belmond Monday evening and all day Tuesday helping direct repairs and the entire local staff and nine additional repairmen brought in from western Iowa hustled to get service reestablished.

L. C. Bruner, local Central Telephone manager, says that following the storm no rural lines were working out of Latimer, Alexander, Meservey, Thornton, Swaledale and Sheffield. Broken tree limbs produced line breaks around Meservey, Alexander and Thornton much faster than repair crews could undo the damage.

Mr. Kerr stated that well over 300 telephone poles were down in the company's four-county area of Wright, Hancock, Cerro Gordo and Franklin, with the major part of the damage in the eastern half. Repair costs will run to quite a few thousands of dollars, he said, but added he was not yet in a position to make a very close estimate.

Manager Bruner remarked that the ice alone—or the wind alone—would not have done such widespread harm; but the combination was a "killer" so far as phone service was concerned.

He predicted that temporary repairs would have all exchanges operated out of the Belmond office back to at least near normal by the end of the week.

ENTRIES WIN . . .

cash awards of $15 and $10 respectively, provided by the Iowa Chain Store Council. Junior Saunders, manager of Diamond Brothers store—only member of the council in Belmond — made the presentation.

George B. Sheehe of Des Moines, agricultural counsel for the Chain Store Council, was on hand to witness the award and congratulate the winners.

Louis Oberhauser, Belmond's entry in the extemporaneous speaking, was given honorable mention. There were 13 entries in the event.

Belmond had no entries in the other phases of competition. Geneva won gold medals for its secretary's book, treasurer's book and, along with Iowa Falls, for its reporter's scrapbook. All these books will enter the state contests.

In the contest covering chapter program of work, both Webster City and Ventura won gold medals and will advance to state competition. Gordon Grimm and James Meyer represented Ventura and Philip Phillips and Richard Jones make up Webster City's presentation team.

Beside Belmond's entries, competitors were on hand from Ackley, Algona, Clarion, Dows, Eagle Grove, Eldora, Forest City, Geneva, Grand Junction, Iowa Falls, Jefferson, Northwood, Plymouth, Rockford, Ventura, and Webster City. A delegation was also present from Stratford, which does not belong to the North Central District.

DROWNED

11-year old Gene Packard, of Renwick, drowned March 24 when he fell through the ice on the Boone river, where he had gone to take his dog Prince for a walk. A companion, Larry Kraft, also broke through in water up to his neck. He grabbed Prince's leash and managed to climb out.

OLD HEARSE

A funeral hearse which has been stored for many years in a barn at Reinbeck came to light recently, when the building was razed. The hearse was originallly purchased by a Reinbeck funeral home in 1890. Designed to carry caskets much smaller than those in use today, the vehicle is still in perfect condition.

Bowl-Mor Keglers Set New Team Game Record

A new high game mark for team play in the men's bowling leagues was established Wednesday night of last week by the Bowl-Mor Bears as Tom Greenwood set the pace with a score of 232.

The Bowl-Mor blasters totaled 957 for the line, with Joe Marchese contributing a 187, Julius Johnson 160, Henry Steenblock 179 and Kenny LaVelle 199. Their effort bested the previous high of 931 set by Dutch's Clothiers 'way back on Dec. 15.

A handicap of 90 points gave the Bears a gross score of 1047 for another top mark, erasing Dutch's 985 record. The Clothiers, thanks to a poor opening line of 708 by Bowl-Mor, still keep the gross series record with a 2813 high. The Bears' gross series last week was second best this season—a 2782.

Eddie Albers last Friday hit for a noteworthy 265, third high individual game of the season.

by "Pat" Gallagher

"Are you going to plant within your corn allotment?" we asked the farmer after he'd told us his allowed acreage was only 75 acres out of a total of 230 crop acres.

He stifled a bit of a sigh, we thought, as he replied, "Well, yes. I guess you can say that I will plant within my allotment. You see, I'm a member of the township PMA committee."

Next time, before we put out such a question, we intend to find out first if the farmer we're interviewing is—like Galen Johnson—one of the men who shouldered responsibility for setting those allotments.

—RFD—

We happened to be talking to Mr. Johnson because his name had been suggested to us by Oscar Hanson, county PMA chairman, as one of the farmers in this vicinity who has been most conscientiously observing good soil conservation practices over an extended period of time.

Though the past year or so he has been a "city-dweller" and now lives in Belmond, Galen still owns 240 acres a mile north and about two and a quarter miles west of town, which Stephen Hinman farms for him on a 50-50 basis. Galen pays close attention to the farm's operation and see to it that the crop rotation plan he's been following for the past 10 or 15 years is continued, to protect the future productivity of the farm.

—RFD—

A five-year rotation plan is employed, which provides for no fields to be in row crops for more than two years at a stretch. Galen aims to have about 120 acres in such crops — currently corn and beans. After two years of soil-depleting crops he seeds a field down with oats. A year in hay—mainly alfalfa and clover — follows; then a year as pasture land, planted in brome, alfalfa, clover and alsike.

He always plans to have his pasture in a variety of grasses to assure a good stand. Nowadays he plants only red clover, for hay and pasture. He used to plant a good deal of sweet clover, but he says enough of this volunteers now that planting is not necessary. His only plantings of sweet clover are specifically for green manure.

—RFD—

The farm was bought by his late father, Lud C. Johnson, in 1927. Galen recalls that 20 some years ago the place was farmed with the aid of 10 head of horses and mules. Tractors now do the work, other than feed-hauling—which is still the job of a team of strawberry roans, "Rosie" and "Dolly", towards which Galen obviously feels a good deal more affection than he does for his tractor.

After his father's death in 1941, Galen operated the farm for his mother until she passed away in 1944. His personal ownership dates from 1947.

He says that crops were rotated regularly from the time his father acquired the farm, but it was not until the middle 'thirties that he started to employ the current five-year plan.

—RFD—

A firm believer in the value of soil-testing, Galen conscientiously makes several tests of every field the year before it is going out of row crops and before he seeds it down he sees the field gets just the kind and amount of fertilizer recommended on the basis of the tests.

To make sure that all parts of the field get what they require, he customarily takes separate tests for high, middle and low ground to find out if the mixture should be altered for the various levels. He's found potash usually needed to counteract alkali content.

The land devoted to row crops he has not fertilized to any great extent until the past four or five years. Now corn land also gets nitrogen and phosphates, as recommended. His pasture and hay lands get phosphate, also according to recommendation.

As a fairly large scale stock feeder, Galen has been in the habit of planting 80 to 100 acres of corn. Consequently, the 75 acres of this year will leave him with feed to buy.

He feels, however, that even the stockmen will be sensible to go along with the PMA allotments rather than risk the price drop that further increase in the corn surplus might bring on the open market. He's aware that meat prices would follow, if the corn price went down.

Forty choice whiteface steers—weighing about 1,000 pounds at present— are currently being fed on the farm. There are also 40 sows due to farrow next month. The Johnson and Hinman combine has three Guernsey cows, nine bred ewes (this is only the second year that Galen has experimented with sheep) and 275 laying Leghorns. Galen adds that for 25 years care has been taken that CLEAN ground has been available for hog-feeding.

—RFD—

Summarizing his reasons for paying close attention to sound farming practices, Galen nodded at his daughter Marjory Sue, who is 10, and said, "Some day that farm will probably be hers. I want to see that those acres will remain productive for generations to come—and the only way to assure that is to stick by the rules of good soil conservation."

"My yields, so far, may not have been a great deal higher than those on some farms whose soil has been mistreated in recent years. But in the long run, it will be a much better, more productive farm because I've refused to mine the soil."

—RFD—

A chat with Mrs. Johnson, during the course of our visit in the Johnson home, brought to light that her bed-ridden mother on last Friday reached her seventy-sixth birthday and had been pleasantly surprised by an avalanche of cards from a host of relatives and friends. About 100 had already been received when we were there.

Mrs. Edith Humphreys has been an invalid for the past year, but her daughter says that her philosophical acceptance of ill health has been an inspiration to all who know her; that a complaint never passes her lips and that she always has a word of encouragement for others.

We didn't get a chance to meet Mrs. Humphreys, but we'd like to add our greeting to the others she received on her birthday.

—RFD—

Incidentally, Mr. Johnson—and a communication we received last Friday from the American Soybean Growers' association—put us straight on a statement we made in last week's RFD column in regard to inoculating soybean seed.

We'd gotten the false impression in our earlier conversation with Dale Hauge that inoculation had little if any effect on bean yield, and that its primary purpose was to cause a maximum release of nitrogen into the soil. It is true enough that inoculation has the effect of obtaining maximum enrichment of the soil with nitrogen — but it seems that it also has a noticeably beneficial efefct on yield.

The Growers' association declares that inoculation stands to increase yield by four to 20—TWENTY—that's what it said!) bushels per acre—which would certainly make the modest expense of inoculation a sound investment.

Galen was a bit dubious if the resulting yield increase would be as great as five or six bushels, on the average, but nevertheless completely convinced us that inoculation is a sound practice for any soybean grower and one well worth following from the immediate dollars-and-cents standpoint as well as for the purpose of soil-building.

GRANT GO-GETTERS

Are you going to paper your room this spring? Or choose new curtains or new pictures? These are some of the topics the Grant Go-Getters discussed at their all-day meeting at the home of Joann Lindvall on April 1.

Nine members, two leaders and two mothers gave the 4-H pledge.

It was decided that the club would have a softball team this summer if the members can find a manager. Barbara Barnes was chosen as candidate for county office, with Rosann Nigg to act as her campaign speaker. Joann Lindvall will represent the club at state convention, and Rosann Nigg and Judith Woodin will be delegates to the district camp.

Plans for a Mother's Day party were discussed, and the following committees appointed: program, Jeanine Hardy, Linda Barnes, and Donna Schumacher; decoration, Rosann Nigg, Janet Kee, and Judith Woodin; serving, Joann Lindvall, Barbara Barnes, Conine Bell, Margery Murphy, Janice Sann, Kay Kastler and Nancy Barnes..

Picture studies were presented by Linda and Nancy Barnes. Jeanine Hardy told how to choose proper frames for pictures. Joann Lindvall discussed the selection and hanging of pictures. Rosann Nigg explained how to choose a wallpaper pattern and Barbara Barnes talked on how to properly hang window curtains.

Recreation was led by Judith Woodin, and Donna Schumacher acted as the associate hostess. The May meeting will be at the home of Connie Bell.

Among those present at Thursday's meeting were representatives of the Motor Club of Iowa. They showed both moving and still pictures of highways in the State of Iowa and also of various school patrol units. Emphasis was placed on the fact that proper road engineering must supplement highway safety education.

WHICH?
Starting Cost... or... Total Cost?

There's a big, difference in automatic gas water heaters!

Starting cost is first-price. Total cost is cost for the total months or years of the water heater's satisfactory operation.

1. Low starting cost and short life make a high total cost.
2. A starting cost that's a few dollars higher and a life many years longer combine to make a lower total cost.

The Ruud-Monel Automatic Gas Water Heater is engineered and built for long life. Its extra years of perfect service quickly repay the few extra dollars of first price to make the total or real cost well below price-built, performance-shy water heaters.

Ruud-Monel lasts longer and by lasting longer, costs less—much less. Gallon-for-gallon, year-for-year, dollar-for-dollar, it's the best investment in water heater satisfaction and economy.

If You Don't Want to Read About Yourself, Drive Accordingly

The new mayor and council have given evidence that they're determined that some lately "unused" city ordinances shall be dusted off and put back into action.

If traffic regulations are going to be enforced, as Mayor Loats promises, that means some toes are going to be stepped on. Many drivers have fallen into careless habits in the past couple of years that may be a bit difficult to correct. And a few of the teen-age Barney Oldfields will have to mend their ways.

Let's all remember that the price of law enforcement involves publicity as well as payment of a fine. What goes on the public record, the public has a right to know about. Further, we feel that it's a newspaper's responsibility to see that such information is published.

Consequently, we want to make it clearly understood that all cases heard in the mayor's court will be reported in the Independent. It is not our intention to make an "example" of anybody; there will be no exceptions. If any members of the newspaper force, their families or friends get tabbed, you'll see THAT in the Independent, too.

So if you're averse to seeing your name in print as a court customer, watch that speedometer, observe those stop signs and limit your U turns to unrestricted intersections.

If Those Gas Bills Go A-Kiting, This'll Be The Reason Why

If Senator Gillette's guess as to the effect of the Kerr gas bill—which two weeks ago was passed by both houses of Congress—is correct, residents of gas-heated communities such as Belmond are in for a bad jolt before long. This bill specifically exempts natural-gas producers from price regulations set by the Federal Power Commission and is characterized by the Iowa senator as "an outright, special-interest bill with no popular mass support whatever."

The issue involved in the campaign of the oil and gas interests to force the bill through Congress was this. A question existed as to whether natural gas, sold by the producers directly to interstate pipeline operators at the source of supply, constitutes an item of interstate commerce and should therefor be subject to FPC regulation.

Since the demand for natural gas has been expanding tremendously, a sellers' market definitely exists in the the industry; and freed of the threat of FPC control (it hadn't actually been exercised, so far) the producers could take advantage of the situation to boost prices to any height the traffic might bear.

Now that the Kerr bill has passed (44 to 38 in the senate and 176 to 174 in the house), gas producers would be allowed to charge the pipeline operators whatever they please—and, of course, any increases over present prices would promptly be passed on to the consumer. That means YOU and ME.

At first defeated in the house, the measure passed when four representatives asked to switch their votes (as someone appropriately shouted the question, "How much did you get?").

Senator Gillette warns, "If the FPC cannot regulate the price of gas where it enters the interstate pipelines, neither the State of Iowa nor any municipality within it can successfully prevent high prices in the field from being passed on to the ultimate consumer."

So if those gas bills next fall and winter are higher than ever before, you'll know the reason why. It remains for President to make the bill a law with his signature; but we can't see Harry alienating a source of party funds such as the oil and gas interests represent. . . . It It might interest you to know, incidentally, that Senator Hickenlooper voted FOR the bill. The reasons he might have had for doing so are not readily apparent.

If We Paid A Millage Tax On That Federal Budget—WOW!

We thank the Iowa Taxpayers Association for providing a graphic illustration to impress us with just what sort of a burden President Truman's recommended 1951 budget would let John Q. Citizen in for. Let us tell you about poor John Q.

He lives right here in Belmond. He owns a home with a taxable value of $2,500. His property tax amounts to $120 a year—less $62.50 for homestead exemption; so actually he's sliding by for $57.50 and getting a pretty good bargain from his county, town and school district for that money.

But say that he was going to pay his per capita share of that nearly 42 and a half billion dollar federal budget in the form of a millage tax on his modest home. Here in Wright county the millage would just represent a neat 301.75 mills! Multiply $2,500 by that figure and you get $754.38 as John Q.'s divvy for 1951.

Yes, yes, we know that fighting even a cold war is an expensive proposition and Uncle Sam can't economize to the point of weakening his defense. But what about the 5.1 billion (EXCLUDING foreign assistance, national defense and interest on the national debt) by which funds for domestic-civilian appropriations would be increased in comparison to 1948? Is that much more required to provide John Q. with the services he received two years ago?

Of course, that would only represent 90 bucks off the $754 — and to those buck-happy birds in Washington, what's $90.

If you hear John Q. forlornly mumbling, "Well, $90 would pay the year's heat bill, with perhaps enough over to take care of utilities for a couple of months or so!"—just pay no attention to him. Heck, that fellow-Truman WORKS FOR John Q.—and if HE pays him no mind, why should we?

One thing can be said for an Easter like last Sunday's. After an experience of that sort, when spring REALLY arrives it will be DOUBLY appreciated.

The way customers extend their hands for Lucky Bucks after making purchases at Belmond stores, you'd think they were getting coin of the realm. The idea of getting money BACK — ANY kind of money — seems to have a definite appeal. Congratulations are in order to the Chamber of Commerce for making it more FUN to spend money than it's been in a long time.

Farmers Urged to Use Soil Sampling Service

Wright county farmers are reminded by PMA Chairman Oscar J. Hanson that they have available again this year a soil testing service that could prove of great value to them.

"In quite frequent instances, sampling indicates to a farmer that he has not been using just the right kind or right amount of fertilizer or sufficient liming for some of his fields," Mr. Hanson points out. "The investment of a dollar to have a field correctly sampled and tested is small compared to the possible benefits."

S. W. Witzel of Clarion, a former Lake township farmer, has been appointed to do the sampling; specimens are sent to Iowa State college for analysis. A work sheet is completed, also, covering past crop rotations and other information pertaining to the field which might be useful in determining the test.

Anyone wanting soil tests made or information pertaining to the service may contact either the county PMA office or Mr. Witzel at Clarion, or his township committeeman.

John Lunn of Grinnell was injured last week. A piece of machinery fell on both his knees—and broke his heel. Apparently, the heel was driven against the pavement so hard that the bone was fractured.

Iowa's Wider Roads

Glad to see they are widening some of our highways!

"It's going to save a lot of accidents," Ed remarked as we drove west from Colfax on newly-widened No. 6.

"Narrow roads are like narrow-minded people — they're dangerous."

And that's certainly true. Think what trouble and unhappiness a few narrow-minded people can cause in a neighborhood. If we could only broaden their outlook as easily as we widen our highways!

After all, broad-mindedness is one of the keystones of our democracy. Tolerance and good will, help make America the wonderful country it is.

Neighbor Ed goes in for bowling and baseball, while I prefer reading and the radio. Ed likes his coffee; I prefer a temperate glass of beer. These sound like little things. But, tolerance in little things means tolerance in big things, too.

The highway officials have a sign — "Danger—Narrow Road." Our democracy would be safer if we had a sign like that for folks with narrow minds, too.

Fallen Leaves

Autumn strips the sturdiest tree, but does not make it barren . . . for in another year will come new leaves. So must the Tree of Life be stripped of leaves that have faced sun and storm . . . but in their passing lies the promise of inevitable rebirth into a glorious New Life and New Beauty. . .

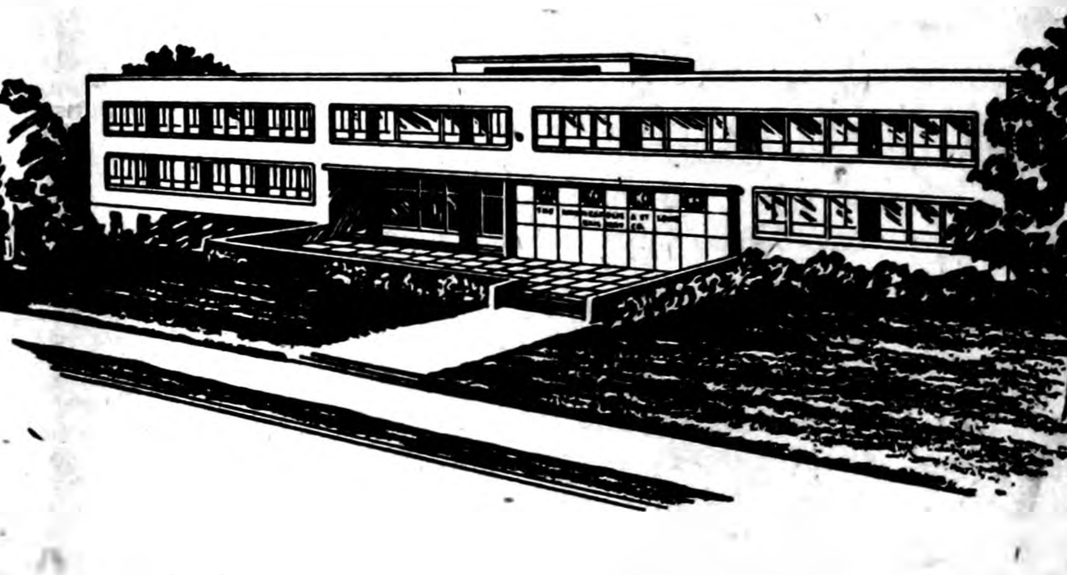
New Home of The M. & St. L. Railway



This is the new General Office Building of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway, as it will look when completed in early 1951 on Franklin Avenue between Stevens and First Avenues South in Minneapolis, near the edge of the downtown business district. Construction was begun April 4.

To cost nearly $1,000,000, the project climaxes an improvement program on which the M. & St. L. has spent more than $35,000,000 since the present management, headed by President Lucian C. Sprague, assumed charge in 1935.

The new headquarters building, attractive in appearance but modern and utilitarian in design and equipment, will comprise two stories and basement. It will be U-shaped, with frontage of 201 feet on Franklin Avenue, 181 on First Avenue and 161 on Stevens. Foundation and walls will be built to carry additional floors when needed. Floor space will total some 80,000 square feet and nearly 300 M. & St. L. officials and employes will occupy the various offices.

Walls will be faced with red Minnesota granite and cream-colored brick. A raised terrace will extend 75 feet along the front. Materials and equipment produced in Minnesota will be used extensively. An escalator will run from the first to the second floors and an auto park for employes will occupy the rear of the site. Clyde W. Smith of Minneapolis is the architect and the James Leck Company of Minneapolis is the general contractor.

Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, whose collection of salt and pepper shakers was the subject of a feature story in the recent student edition of the Independent, is convinced "it pays to advertise."

Not long after the piece appeared, she received a very nice letter from a total stranger and fellow-collector—and the gift of a new set of shakers for her collection.

The Goodell woman's benefactor was Mrs. Howard Hoffman of Canton, S. Dak. Mrs. Hoffman had received a clipping of the story from an aunt in Buffalo Center, Mrs Guy Barton. Both ladies are former Belmond residents. Mrs. Hoffman was known here as Marjorie Tomson and has a number of relatives still residing in Belmond.

It is responsibly stated that as the Easter bunny on duty at Newport, Minn., beat a shivering retreat in the cold grey of early dawn he was heard to mutter between chattering teeth, "Well, for Easter of 1950 my tale is told."

Or maybe he said "tail." The dope had plainly been laying pure-ice Easter eggs — witness specimens exhibited by little Joyce Peterson, above. The background behind Joyce suggests that Pete wasn't too astute at finding hiding places, but certainly no one could say he was niggardly in his distribution of eggs.

MEN ! ! Do you have your grass seed bought? Have you decided just where and what size your garden is to be this year? Has the mulch been loosened on those strawberries and removed from your flower beds?

All of which is our way of reminding you that it's time Friend Wife got to work on that gardening. Otherwise, how are you going to enjoy a refreshing salad of delectible home-grown vegetables when you come in from a hard afternoon at the country club?

—M-S—

From the Iowa State Department of Health comes notice of another racket that is currently being conducted in the state by door-to-door salesmen. These vendors of cooking utensils are informing their prospects that the use of enamelware, aluminum or stainless steel pots and pans will send them to an early grave—the victim of stomach ulcers, cancers, arthritis, diabetes, or any one of a number of horrendous diseases. Of course, this is all a lot of malarky.

In this connection we can only repeat what we've had to say in the past. When approached by door-to-door salesmen, FIRST ask to see credentials provided them by the local Chamber of Commerce. THEN, whether they've got Chamber approval or not, send them to peddle their wares elsewhere—and do your buying of established, home-town merchants. It will save you money in the long run.

We have it on the very best authority that outboard motors do NOT affect either a fish's physical well-being or the state of his nerves. Ellis Elliott has handed us the results of an experiment conducted to determine just those facts.

The U. of Michigan selected six test ponds of similar size and with equal stocks of fish. Three were churned to a veritable froth with outboards; the others were kept scrupulously free of putt-putts. Fishing on all six proved equally good during the experiment—and the survivors in correspondingly good health at the conclusion of the tests, which were held over a three-month period.

Ellis deduces from this that "outboard motor boats seem to concern some fishermen much more than they do the fish"

Oh, yes. We nearly forgot to mention it, but if you want to buy a good motor, Ellis has 'em.

Four Teachers Not Returning Here Next Year

Twenty-three members of Belmond's 1949-50 school faculty had returned signed contracts by Monday night's deadline, according to Supt. Don Faris, while four indicated that they would not be back.

Heading the list of teachers who have decided not to remain at Belmond was Coach Lloyd Patterson, who has also been instructor in industrial arts. "Pat", whose football teams have given a good account of themselves, is undecided as to what he will do next year.

He says he may take advantage of the GI education privileges to do more college work with a view to obtaining a master's degree. Or, if the right opportunity presents itself, he may remain in the coaching field.

The other instructors who returned their contracts unsigned were Mary Molstad, first grade; Mary Alke, fourth and fifth grades; and Mildred Henry, girls physical education. All three plan to remain in teaching but are applying for positions elsewhere.

Departure of these four teachers will leave five vacancies for the school board to fill, as it is planned to add one instructor to the number heretofore engaged to teach in junior high.

Of the 23 faculty members who signed their contracts, Mrs. Viva Parker has had the longest period of service in the Belmond schools. She will enter upon her fourteenth year next fall. Gladys Darrah is next in the matter of seniority. The junior high principal will be starting her sixth year.

Superintendent Faris will likewise be entering his sixth year. He has served in his present capacity for three years and, prior to a two-year sojourn at Seymour, was principal here for two years. Ceaburn Squires, high school principal, has been here four years.

No other members of the faculty have been employed here for longer than three years. Those who have served in Belmond for that period of time are: Jim Scott, coach and history; Charline Miller, dramatics and English; Minnie Haas, fifth grade; and Artie G. Haines, second.

Those who have had two years on the faculty are: Duane Cunning, band instructor; Clair Hugh, chemistry and mathematics; Josephine Hugh, commercial; Alpha Sandage, junior high; Ella Friestad, sixth; Gladys Kline, third and fourth; Gertrude Lee, third; Crystal Thompson, second.

Duane Sandage, vocational agriculture, and Milo Lauffer, junior high, came to Belmond a year and a half ago. Those who have just concluded their first year are: Edwin Bruner, driving trainer and English; Carol Kepler, home economics; Eldoris Kintzi, vocal music; Doris Lewis, first grade; and Lorraine Seim, kindergarten.

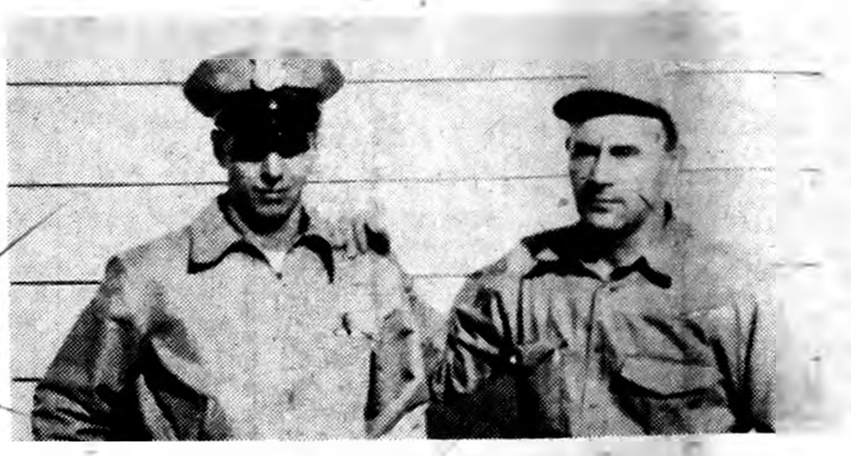
Final Rites Last Friday For Henry M. Meinderts

Funeral services were held last Friday at the Reformed church in Meservey for Henry Martin Meinderts, 66. He passed away on Wednesday of last week at the Bert Stadtlander home; he was a brother of Mrs. Stadtlander.

Born in Germany on Sept. 9, 1882, he came to this country at an early age and lived most of his life in the Meservey community.

The final rites were conducted by Rev. E. Kampmann and burial was in the Reformed cemetery near Belmond. Boone Funeral Home was in charge of the services.

Besides Mrs. Stadtlander, Mr. Meinders is survived by another sister, Mrs. Annie Witte of Parkersburg.



NOW IN CHARGE OF LAW ENFORCEMENT in Belmond are the two officers above, appointed by Mayor A. W. Loats. Dale Walrod (left) is day marshal and Harve Seals is on duty during the night shift.

Senator Gillette Asks Federal Aid On Borer Control

Senator Guy M. Gillette has informed the Independent, "After officials of Iowa State college at Ames informed me of plans being formulated for the Corn Borer Control program in Iowa, I discussed the subject with the Department of Agriculture.

"Bureau of Plant Industry officials told me that the sum of $240,000 had been requested for a research program, an amount considered as the absolute minimum needed for essential agricultural research to develop effective methods for controlling corn borers and other pests.

"The House of Representatives eliminated this sum from the appropriations bill," Senator Gillette reports. "I am urging the Senate Appriations Committee to reinstate these funds, pointing out that estimates of losses from corn borers this year are running as high as $150 million or more.

"Losses suffered by Iowa farmers in just a small area last year amounted to more than the sum requested for the program in the present budget.

"It is false economy to eliminate such highly important programs," the Iowa Senator declares, "particularly when there is evidence that research already done will in time result in finding successful methods of controlling corn borer infestation."

County-wide Road Parley Scheduled For Next Tuesday

How Wright county can completely modernize old primary and secondary roads without voters having to pay one cent of additional motoring taxes will be explained in detail at a county-wide meeting next Tuesday, according to the newly formed Wright County Civic Affairs committee. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. at the Legion Hall in Eagle Grove.

This is one of a series of 50 meetings being held in principal cities throughout the state. All are being arranged by local committees and the Motor Club of Iowa to call attention of motorists and taxpayers to the critical highway problems which must be solved in the state.

Among the highlights of the meeting will be motion pictures and slides showing how it will be possible to reduce the number of unnecessary traffic deaths and accidents in this county and throughout the state.

At the Wright county meeting, special attention will be paid to modernization of both primary and secondary roads in this county. Facts and figures will be presented to show how much money is available from present taxes to pay for this work. Proposed methods of financing the highway improvement program will be analyzed.

Invitations have been mailed to over 350 members of the Motor Club in the county. Others interested in securing safe, modern highways without additional motoring taxes are also invited. Refreshments will be served.

Death Accidental, Decision of Jury

A coroner's jury Tuesday noon gave a verdict of "accidental death" in the shooting of Max McClelland, 38, of Clarion which occurred at the man's home early Thursday morning of last week. According to reports, the mishap took place in the bathroom of the McClelland home, where he had apparently been accustomed to keeping his guns.

Investigation revealed that his flock of chickens had been plagued by a dog and the jury assumed he had gone after a gun to protect the chickens when the accident happened.

Mr. McClelland had been struck in the forehead by a bullet from a .22 rifle, which was lying nearby the body. His son Ronnie, 13, discovered the tragedy.

Coroner R. A. Young and Sheriff Bob Blecker had at first believed the case to be a suicide, as Mr. McClelland had been the victim of poor health for a number of years and also had been despondent over the accidental death of a brother, L. R. McClelland, on March 17.

However, facts brought to light by the jury's investigation convinced its members that the gun must have accidentally discharged as he was withdrawing it from behind the bathtub, where a 410 gauge shotgun and air rifle were also kept.

Mr. McClelland was survived by his wife and three children.

Patterson also plans to enter men in six individual events. Duane Trager will compete in the football throw, high jump, shot put and possibly the 100-yard dash. Robert Redmond is slated for the 100 and shot put. Dean Dorr will take part in the 100 and broad jump.

Other individual entries will be Dick Elliott in the high jump and Dick Simpson in the pole vault.

Fort Dodge Glee Club Here Monday, May 1

Music lovers of Belmond and community will be offered a real treat when the Men's Civic Glee club of Fort Dodge presents a concert at the high school auditorium Monday evening, May 1, at 8:15 p. m. This concert, sponsored by the Belmond Chamber of Commerce, was scheduled several weeks ago but had to be postponed.

Everyone in town and surrounding territory is invited to attend the program and no admission will be charged.

The chorus has a membership of 40 and the singers include businesmen, teachers, medical men, a dentist, a cabinet maker, several shoemakers and a number of college students. Lowell Trafford, formerly of Belmond and now a Fort Dodge teacher, is in the chorus and also sings with the club's quartet.

Three objectives govern the club's activities: to support worthy community enterprise in northwest Iowa; to promote good music; and to provide a musical fellowship for its members.

Members of the club receive no remuneration. The group has been sponsored from the beginning by the Fort Dodge Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' and Jobbers' association. All concerts are given only upon request and invitation.

The club has appeared in more than 90 Northwest Iowa cities and towns since its organization, and in recent years has won honors at the All-Iowa Music Festival held in Des Moines. It also has twice received outstanding recognition in the Chicagoland Music Festival.

Clayton C. Hathaway of the Fort Dodge High school and junior college music department is the director of the group; and Helen Nelson Frye of the junior high school faculty is the accompanist.

The high school girls sextet will appear with the Glee Club and also present two numbers. The Troubadours, a male quartee made up of glee club singers, will present three numbers as their part of the Belmond program.

Pay Your Hospital Pledge NOW, Board Asks; Fund Up to $170,000

With the issuance of $36,000 in municipal bonds approved in the recent city election, all pledges of funds toward construction of the new hospital became binding and the hospital committee now asks that these pledges be paid to Albert C. Hanson, project treasurer.

With somewhat over $170,000 of the $200,000 fund goal now assured, although reports are still due from several finance sub-chairmen, activity on the part of the hospital committees has been accelerated with the aim of getting actual construction of the hospital under way as soon as possible.

Of course, a good deal of work remains to be done by the pledge solicitors before the campaign "goes over the top", but the committees in charge of selecting a site, engaging an architect and letting contracts intend to have their assignments as nearly completed as possible by the time the entire amount of the construction fund is guaranteed.

Finance Chairmen W. H. Trafford and R. W. Courson announced the first of the week that Belmond's pledge total, including the bond issue, was up to $132,000 at that time. A total of approximately $40,000 more had been pledged by the townships adjacent to Belmond, the communities of Goodell and Rowan, and Norway, Avery and Twin Lake townships.

No report had yet been received from Alexander and Meservey and their neighboring rural areas. Further canvassing is still planned in some areas in order to see individuals who were previously missed and in an effort to obtain larger pledges from some who clearly under-subscribed through misunderstanding of what would be required of them to assure the project's success.

In regard to collection of pledges, Mr. Hanson states that cash or checks can be left at his office or pledge money can be mailed in to him. In those instances in which comparatively large amounts were promised with the understanding that they could be made in two payments, it is asked that the first half be paid and definite arrangements made as to when the remainder will be available. He understands that, for tax reasons, some of the large half-payments will be delayed until after the first of the year.

The architectural committee has received letters from several architects expressing interest in the local hospital. A group of planning board members plans to visit Alta, Storm Lake and Sac City today or tomorrow to visit new hospitals in those communities with a view to getting ideas.

The site committee, at a meeting last Sunday, announced it has examined about half a dozen different plots and that two—in particular—seem to have obvious advantages.

City Pavement Bids Received

Last night bids were received by the city council on the Third Street N. E. pavement widening, with the low figure being submitted by Central Construction company of Indianola. This is the same firm that has the contract for the farm-to-market portion of the paving job.

The amount of the bid was $14,240.37. Only one other bid was received—from R. E. Johnson, Sioux City, the concern currently completing installation of storm sewers on the project.

The Johnson company resumed the sewer work last week and is expecting to have work completed by the end of this week.

Central Construction this morning began rough grading and laying of the county portion of the storm sewer, which will extend east from the railroad tracks and will outlet to a county drain.

The bid of the Sioux City firm for the margin pavement has not yet been formally accepted by the council, pending posting of bond by the company. Actual laying of paving is expected to start about May 1.

Softball Fans Will Meet Friday Eve at City Hall

Claude Larkin, president of the Belmond City Softball association, announced Monday that there will be a meeting of managers, sponsors and others interested in the coming softball season at 7:30 p. m. Friday at the City Hall.

Eight teams competed in the city league last summer, playing their games at the General Mills field.

The association hopes that this year's games can be played at the school diamond, where larger attendance might be attracted and the hazard of children riding bicycles along the highway after dark would be eliminated.

The possibility of reducing the number of league teams will be considered, with a view to maintaining a higher level of performance and providing the public with better games.

Riggs Will Go To Boys State

Jack Riggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Riggs, has been selected to attend this year's Boys State as representative of the Belmond post of the American Legion. Announcement of his election was made Monday night by Commander Mac Jensen at the regular meeting of the Legion.

A vote of the high school student body was the basis of Jack's selection. He won out over a field of six candidates.

A committee comprised of Principal Ceabern Squires, Clair Hugh, Edwin Bruner and Jim Scott of the faculty and Student Council President Keith Greenfield chose the list of candidates on the basis of citizenship, scholarship and activities.

Other junior boys whose names were on the ballot were Roger Toft—who drew the second heaviest vote and was made alternate—Paul Griesy, Don Faris, Dwight Whelan and Louis Oberhauser.

Jack's athletic prowess is well-known. He is a three-time letter winner in football, has won two monograms in basketball and is seeking his second in baseball. He was a member of the junior class play cast and, according to Supt. Don Faris, has maintained a better than average scholastic rating.

SPEAKER AT PTA MEETING - -

Will Tell How She Prepares Deaf Tots for Normal Lives

How deaf tots are being taught to read lips, employ normal speech and prepare themselves for normal contact with society will be told the audience at next Monday night's Parent-Teachers meeting by Doris Wood, a special instructor at Des Moines' Smouse Opportunity school. The program will be held at the school auditorium starting at 8:00 o'clock.

Miss Wood is presently training Cindy Cox, little three and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luin Cox, and six other pre-school tykes whose ages run from three to four and a half.

It is the contention of Miss Wood that children of normal intelligence need not be isolated from ordinary social contacts by resorting to sign language, just because they are handicapped by deafness. She believes they can be taught lip-reading and can also learn how to speak, so they can obtain a formal education with their contemporaries in regular public schools.

To equip such unfortunate children to live normal lives is the purpose of the specialized training Miss Wood is giving her little proteges at the Smouse school

At Monday's PTA meeting she will describe the methods she follows and explain why she is confident they will prove effective. Her talk will be supplemented by color movies that have been taken of her teaching activites, and she will also have Cindy Cox with her to assist in a demonstration.

Miss Wood trained for her present work at the Lexington School for the Deaf in New York City and taught there for 10 years. She later taught at the Sarah Fuller Foundation in Boston.

As a WAC during the war, Miss Wood was assigned to Hoff General Hospital at Santa Barbara, Calif., where she helped rehabilitate soldiers who had lost their hearing.

A psychology major as an undergraduate college student, after coming to Des Moines she took graduate work at Drake university and earned a Master's degree in education.

Miss Wood's work received world-wide attention last summer when a feature picture was taken by Jervis Baldwin of the Des Moines Register showing her working with Cindy and another of her tiny students.

The photo, which was judged one of the 10 best news feature pictures of 1949, was transmitted by Associated Press Wirephoto and appeared widely in papers not only in the States but in many foreign countries.

Cunning Plans to Open Ice Cream Bar Saturday

Duane Cunning, high school band instructor, is proprietor of Belmond's newest business enterprise—Cunning's Ice Cream Bar, which will open for business on Saturday.

The new establishment is located on Highway 69, in front of the former Legion Hall. Mr. Cunning announces in an advertisement in today's issue that he will ladle out free ice cream cones Saturday from 4:00 to 5:00 p. m. to all youngsters under high school age.

As an added inducement to "come in and get acquainted" he is also planning to serve a free malt to every customer on Saturday who orders a half gallon or more ice cream. The new Ice Cream Bar will offer Clarion Dairy packaged and bulk ice cream and the customary line of of vari-flavored malts and sundaes.

Another Dance Tonight At Veterans' Building

Inspired by the fine public response to the dance held last week by the American Legion and Auxiliary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their Auxiliary this evening will hold a dance at the Veterans' Memorial building.

As last week, music will be provided by the Dixieland Ramblers. They will again have a "guest artist", presenting on this occasion Ralph Geer, popular pianist on the staff of radio station KGLO.

Admission will again be 75 cents for men, 50 for women—$1.25 per couple.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING POSTPONED

Postponement of the regular Chamber of Commerce meeting originally scheduled for this noon has been announced by Secretary Luin Cox. The program committee, consisting of Mayor A. W. Loats and Russell Dougherty, is having Ellis Elliott obtain a colored, sound picture on fishing as the post-luncheon entertainment and the film will not be available until a week from today. Consequently the delayed meeting will be held next Thursday.

NOTICE!

Householders and business men are requested to observe the city ordinance which demands that some sort of recepticle be provided or wire netting erected in which to burn trash in alleys. Open burning of papers and refuse represents a serious fire hazard, which cannot be permitted. Please cooperate and help keep fires down to a minimum.

COOK'S House Paint
The Whitest Houses Are Always Painted with COOK'S
Many home owners have discovered that ordinary white paint doesn't always stay that way . . . not so with Cook's House Paint. A new formulation makes it initially whiter, adds extra features to keep it white and make it self-cleaning. For a more durable, whiter white use Cook's House Paint.
Give Your House Paint A Chance
Don't let the film-forming oils of your house paint soak into the wood! Seal the surface with a foundation coat such as
COOK'S SUPERWHITE PRIMER......
An especially formulated first coat with amazing "controlled penetration" that provides a firm, non-porous foundation for the finish coat.

Broncos Outlast Rowan by 11 - 9

Belmond broke into the baseball win column Tuesday afternoon at Rowan as the Broncos stemmed a sixth inning rally to eke out an 11-9 verdict.

Don Faris, starting moundsman for Belmond, hurled good ball for five innings and the Broncs were ahead 10 to 3. But in the near-fatal sixth, with two out, a series of Belmond errors and walks combined to allow six Rowan runs before Curt Mennenga finally put out the fire.

Highlight of the afternoon was a monstrous homer powered by Olson of the losers in the third. "Sonny" Greenfield, who was catching for Belmond, tallied four runs on a single hit—twice reaching base on walks and twice on errors. Faris scored three times and got two hits, on a nice triple.

Olson caught five innings and finished on the mound for Rowan. Knuths was the starting hurler. Freese finished the last two innings behind the plate.

Faris struck out eight and walked seven, while Mennenga fanned one and passed three.

The Rowan hurlers struck out six and walked four. Six errors fouled up the losers' defense. Belmond was guilty of three bobbles.

The Broncos are scheduled for a return game with the Eagles at Britt on Friday afternoon.

McNeal Reveals County's Independence Bond Drive Quota Set at $285,332

Clark H. McNeal, chairman for the savings bond division of the treasury department in Wright county, today announced that the county's quota for purchases of series E, F and G savings bonds during the Independence drive, May 15 through July 4, will be $285,332.

Quota for Iowa during the drive is $30,000,000 for series E, F and G bonds, but competition among states will be based on sales of E bonds only.

Activities of volunteer county committees throughout Iowa promise to be greater than at any time since the war drives and should reach an all-time peak, the chairman has been advised by Roger F. Warin, state director of the savings bonds division.

"Farmers and wage earners are becoming more and more conscious of the wisdom of saving regularly," the county chairman said, "and even though net farm income is lower now than it has been in recent years, we believe that the Independence drive quota can be attained, both in this county and in Iowa."

You Set the Teeth to Suit the Job!

...An Exclusive JOHN DEERE-VAN BRUNT BETTER-WORK FEATURE

Individual tooth adjustment, an exclusive feature, multiplies the usefulness of the John Deere-Van Brunt Model "CC" Cultivator. This feature readily adapts the Model "CC" for alfalfa and pasture renovation and many other specialized jobs as well as regular field and orchard cultivation.

By simply raising or lowering the teeth and inserting break-pins in the adjusting bracket (as shown above), you set the teeth for shallow, medium, or deep penetration. Because these pins serve as break-pins if the teeth strike an unyielding object, they prevent breakage.

The Model "CC" also gives you such additional features as the positive power lift and screw depth regulator, "wheel-inside-the-frame" construction, variable tooth spacing, and many others. The Model "CC", equipped with either spring or stiff teeth, is built in 5-, 6-1/2-, 8-, 10-, 11-1/2-, and 14-1/2-foot sizes. Both wide and narrow shovels are available. See us soon for complete information.

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY—Iowa Drivers Save
Up To 10% On Collision Insurance
Again State Farm leads the way! The State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, which writes more full coverage automobile insurance than any other company, has just reduced premium rates for the second time in the past fourteen months!
Why has State Farm been able to offer low cost, full coverage protection for the last 27 years?
1. Policies are written for a period of six months rather than the usual twelve-month period, which makes it possible to adjust rates at more frequent intervals.
2. State Farm desires to insure only careful drivers. This reduces the number of accidents and contributes to the low cost of operation.
3. State Farm is a mutual company Savings benefit the policyholders!
EXTRA BENEFITS, TOO!
A State Farm full coverage policy meets every requirement of your state financial responsibility law. And, since automobiles were made to travel, State Farm service is geared to travel with the car. Wherever trouble occurs in the United States or Canada, claim service is available.
INVESTIGATE NOW!
Call your neighboring, licensed State Farm agent. He will be glad to discuss your insurance problems—and give you full details on the new money-saving, low rates.
Note to new car buyers: If you are planning to buy a new car, ask your Farm State agent about convenient, low-cost financing through the Bank Plan. And remember, your State Farm Insurance—at the new reduced rates—can easily be transferred to your new automobile.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

As the owner of a recently acquired house, your reporter realized that the "new" owner of an old house inevitably finds a hundred and one things he wants to do to "fix the place up". It never occurred to us, though, that the purchaser of a farm would find himself in the same sort of a situation—only much more complicated due to the fact that he has acquired not only a house, but out-buildings, fields, fences, trees and all the other things that go to make up a farmstead.

However, after a talk last weekend with Bert Heykants, who lives a mile east of town, we got a pretty good grounding in just what the new owner of a farm is faced with. Not that the 150 acres he bought three years ago from the Leinbach estate was badly run down or had been mis-managed. It's just that every fellow has ideas of his own about what he wants HIS place to be like.

—RFD—

The Heykants moved onto the farm only a year ago, having had a tenant on it for the first two years after Bert obtained ownership. In the first 12 months, Bert has gotten a number of licks in. For one thing, he removed—stumps and all—about two dozen trees to the west of the farm yard which had previously separated fields of five and 16 acres, respectively. Now he can farm all 21 acres as a single field, when and if he chooses.

There was an obsolete hog house adjacent to this field, just to east, probably 100 yards from the stock barn. The old tile and cement structure has been largely dismantled and Bert will put up another one nearer the center of his feeding operations.

Not far from the site of the old hog house, he has built (to a considerable extent performing the labor himself) a fine chicken house in which he has a handsome flock of some 450 White Leghorns.

—RFD—

Entirely "on his own", Bert has erected a new garage in a central part of the farm yard, which accommodates two tractors and his car. In the 20x30-foot interior there is ample room for a work bench at the rear.

A decrepit corn crib stands just to the northeast of the chicken house, and Bert intends to tear this down before long and erect a new crib farther back in the yard. On the site several large cottonwood stumps still stand, where he removed trees during the past year, and these will have to come out to make room for the proposed crib.

The stock barn at the left rear of the farm yard, and a large machine shed clear at the back of the yard, are in pretty good shape and Bert intends to keep them as more or less as they are.

—RFD—

There is quite a nob on the land between the present farm driveway and the house. This, Bert plans to grade off. He also plans to grade up and level off a portion of a field to the east of the house, create for himself a "nice big yard" and build another drive to the east of the house to replace the one presently used.

That pretty much takes care of his current plans—except for tiling a 23-acre field of permanent pasture at the southwest corner of the farm, to replace as crop acreage some of the land that has been worked rather hard in past years. County drainage tile already passes through the pasture, so it will simply involve connecting branch tiling onto this in order to give the field good drainage.

—RFD—

Probably we've forgotten several proposed improvements Bert mentioned to us, but that's about as we remember 'em. Incidentally, after listening to him outline all his plans, we're feeling much more philosophical about the few minor things about our own house and yard that we feel we should look after. Heck, we've got it easy.

—RFD—

What we'd really gone out to Bert's for, was to see the crop of 176 new spring pigs he has on hand. After breeding Chester Whites the past 10 years, this spring he has a first-cross of hybrids. He bought a hybrid boar last July and bred 23 white sows for spring farrowing. Most of them had only seven to 10 in their litters and he lost only about 10 of the pigs. The first litter made its appearance about Feb. 3, and nine more came during the ensuing week. Nearly all of these are coming along in fine shape, but some of his later litters he's not so happy about at this stage of the game. The pigs aren't bad, but they aren't taking ahold quite as well as the earlier ones.

Like most of the rest of the hybrid "experimenters" he is biding his time to see how well he'll like his crop of first-crosses. He says he likes their liveliness (a trait Dale Hauge, a week ago, said he didn't care much for).

—RFD—

Bert is a firm believer in bringing pigs along at a good rate. He doesn't believe in trying to adjust their feed to outguess the market. His present crop he expects to hit the ideal 225 to 230-pound average by the end of August and early part of September—and then they'll go.

He doesn't regularly keep records on feeding, but recalls an experiment one fall when he did. He found that each 100 pounds of gain required six and a half bushels of corn and 40 pounds of supplement. He adds that that was a particularly thrifty batch and he suspects that his feeding experience with them was rather better than his average.

—RFD—

The farm also feeds 35 western steers—20 whiteface and 15 blacks. Bert believes in buying light steers; thinks there's better profit in them than in the larger, older ones that some farmers favor.

Incidentally, he has bought all of his corn for feeding, up to the present. His entire last year's crop is still in the crib.

Last year he had 46 acres in corn, and he's not at all happy over his 1950 allotment of 43 acres. Over the three "history" years of '47 through '49 he averaged 59 acres and figured his allotment would be equal to the 46 he planned to plant again this spring. He has appealed his allotment, but so far has heard nothing from the PMA. He says he intends to plant the 46 acres, regardless. Another 41 acres will go into oats.

—RFD—

Bert takes a good deal of pride in that chicken flock; also in that new hen house. The latter is well laid out, with an ample, insulated egg room to one side of the entry way and a sizeable feed-storage room on the other.

From his 450 pullets he gets from 360 to 380 eggs a day, which is a pretty respectable performance. He's got an order in for 600 day-old chicks—Leghorns, again—for delivery on May 6. From them he expects to have a laying flock next fall measuring up to the 500-hen capacity of the chicken house.

We asked Bert if the chickens were a project of his wife's, or whether he looked after them. He shook his head when we suggested Mrs. Heykants might be "ruler of the roost" and declared, "Nope, the chickens are my business."

We're just sticking this in because we didn't get a chance to check the statement with Bert's wife. If he was taking credit where all the credit wasn't due him, we're relying on Mrs. Heykants to put us straight.

T. D. Rankins of the street committee seems to be the right man in the right place. He is making a good road out of the gullies on the hill. It is too bad that some of the roads into town are in such poor condition when a little work with a King drag would put them in good shape. We understand that Perry Loomis has offered to drag his road from bridge to bridge if he is furnished with an extra man. This road is now one of the worst and could be made one of the best if Perry's liberal offer was accepted.

There Was NOTHING 'Twixt the Lines; We Like the New Marshal Fine

One of the hazards of the newspaper business arises from the fact that on occasion members of the public read something BETWEEN the lines of a story when there's nothing there to read. Such a case arose last week and we'd like to set the record straight.

In the story announcing appointment of the new day marshal, a few individuals thought too much emphasis was placed on the age of the appointee—and that a criticism was thereby intended. It so happens that nothing could be farther from the truth.

The young policeman happens to be 22. In this regard, we can only ask, "so what?" He is also an ex-Marine and an alumnus of the Marine Shore Patrol. He's of legal age to hold the job and was estimated to be the best qualified for it of all the applicants. Those facts, to us, add up to good and sufficient reason why he should warrant the complete respect and obedience of the public as he executes the duties of his office.

We also happen to have as a law enforcement officer one of the youngest county sheriffs in the state. To our notion, this is all good and proper. Strength, agility and quick-wittedness are all valuable assets in maintaining law and order—and all of them are attributes of youth.

So any who misinterpreted our introduction of the new marshal can rest assured that the appointment has — for what it's worth—our complete support and approval.

High-Handed Tactics Won't Bring "Approval of the People"

In connection with signing the so-called cotton-peanut-potato bill recently, President Truman — who found some provisions of the bill not to his liking—stated: "If each step made in improving the farm program in one place is to be accompanied by a step backward in another place, we will fail to make the advances in that program which are necessary if it is to retain the approval of the American people."

"If "the approval of the American people" is really his foremost concern, we would suggest that he expend a little more effort in ascertaining the public's actual opinion of the Brannan plan—and a little less effort in trying to ram it down the public's throat.

There is no question that the problem of a federal farm program needs careful study in order that the best possible solution can be found. The administration's attitude that the Brannan plan is not only the BEST but the ONE and ONLY feasible solution is unlikely to win for it that whole-hearted approval which the President agrees is so essential.

Mr. Dolliver! Mr. Hickenlooper! We'd Like to Know, "How Come?"

Two of our elected representatives should be called upon to do some explaining, in connection with their vote on the much discussed Kerr gas bill. As we mentioned in an editorial last week, this bill bids fair to transfer many a hard-earned buck from our pockets into the pockets of natural gas producers—who were already doing all right.

Both Senator Bourke Hickenlooper and our congressional representative, James I. Dolliver, voted FOR this money- grabbing measure. It's a dead cinch that their votes didn't reflect any effort on their parts to represent their constituents. Quite the contrary. That President Truman last weekend vetoed the measure doesn't alter the fact that Hickenlooper's and Dolliver's votes supported it.

Ordinarily, on matters not of regional scope, we believe in letting our elected representatives vote according to their own best judgment — on the assumption that their vote may be influenced by information they have access to and we don't. In this instance we can see no justification for a vote opposite to the obvious interests of the people who put them in office. And we'd like to know, "How come?"

We've Kinda Got A Feeling That Earl Hall Called This One Wrong

We have the deepest respect and admiration for Earl Hall, editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette and one of the ablest and shrewdest commentators on current affairs in not only this state but in the nation. Every now and then his thoughtful editorializing on a subject of contemporary significance causes us to re-examine comment we've made on the same topic and wonder if we shouldn't have deliberated a little longer before we spoke out in meeting.

Consequently, when Mr. Hall made an editorial comment last week which we'll bet he'd now like to "take back", we were just mean enough to get a little satisfaction out of the situation.

In remarking on the fact that President Samuel N. Stevens of Grinnell college had been drafted to serve as toastmaster at the Iowa Democrats' Jackson Day dinner at Des Moines, the Globe-Gazette commented — with what we could take only as sarcasm, "This evening of intimate exposure to the Pendergast brand of idealism should be extremely beneficial to him as an educational administrator and preceptor for college-age youth."

But did President Stevens "go along with the act" and agreeably tell the $25-per-plate diners what they wanted to hear? He did not.

Today," he told his listeners, "is a day in which greatness, not success, is needed . . . We are rediscovering that we do not have to have a group of experts in one place, continuously, perpetuating themselves in power, in order to have good government."

When a Democrat good-and-true asked, in effect, "You mean US?", Doctor Sam admitted that he did and added that in his opinion continuous power tends to have a corrupting influence.

We don't know just how well—by the end of the evening — the Democratic nabobs liked the committee's choice for toastmaster, but we feel that President Stevens returned to the Grinnell campus completely unbesmirched by "Pendergast idealsim" and still well qualified as "an educational administrator and preceptor for college-age youth."

Do you suppose, Earl, that if politicians were a little OFTENER exposed to professorial forthrightness, a little "ivory tower idealism" might rub off on on the former?

Oh, for the pride of a child over small accomplishments. Seems the older we get the smaller our pleasure becomes, even over our best efforts. But witness the five-year-old who's just "extracted" his first loose tooth. After gazing at the gap reflected in the mirror, he remarked with complete satisfaction, "Gee, I look just like a house with a window busted out!"

——0——

Now comes the biggest gamble of them all, as the farmers prepare to plant their seed, invest their labor — and see what the future will bring.

——0——

After witnessing the actions of some high school Romeos as our favorite season approaches, we're led to wonder if Shakespeare didn't carry on at greater lengths than necessary. We're inclined to believe that this would have covered the situation: In the spring a young man's fancy. Period.

——0——

We read recently that the U. S. Department of Agriculture has discovered by means of a survey that 25 per cent of this nation's men don't know their shirt collar size. While the experts are "surveying", might we suggest an effort to ascertain what FARMERS' thoughts are on a proper FARM program?

By George - Dick - Pat

Get those Lucky Bucks counted out in neat bundles and have them on hand at Auction No. 1 tomorrow night on the library steps. There'll be many worthwhile items up for bidding, and your money's as good as the next fellow's; so get in there and bid.

To frustrated auctions fans who customarily have to hold a tight rein on themselves when they hear that siren chant, "Going , going GONE", it will provide a happy opportunity to bravely voice bids without having to wonder, "Now, how in blazes am I going to pay the rent?"

—M-S—

Little Cindy Cox made a complete conquest of her audience Monday night at the PTA meeting. If any of the onlookers were dubious when the performance began, by the time Cindy and her teacher, Doris Wood, completed their demonstration there was certainly not a Doubting Thomas in the crowd.

Deafness is certainly NOT an insurmountable handicap to a dedicated pair like Cindy and Miss Wood. And if Mr. and Mrs. Luin Cox's 3½-year-old has any feeling that fate dealt her an unkind blow in depriving her of hearing, you'd never guess it from her gayety and sparkle.

—M-S—

Part of Cindy's training consists of learning the names of objects and the significance of commands through the medium of printed word cards. Miss Wood informed the audience that she was going to put Cindy on the spot by including a couple of cards in the object-selection test that she'd never before used in that connection.

The teacher handed one card at a time to Cindy, who correctly placed them on a table beside the appropriate object — a ball, a top, a baby doll, etc. Then the tot received one that said, "Cindy", and Cindy gleefully pointed to herself.

At the very end of the exercise, the final card specified "Miss Wood". After another hesitant gesture toward herself (which suggested such an alliance of spirit between the two, that Cindy can hardly tell where her own personality leaves off and that of her beloved teacher begins) she delivered the card to Miss Wood.

—M-S—

The "command cards" instruct Cindy to hop, bow, march, etc., etc. She likes to play a game at home with these cards, the whole family following out the instructions. Her father suspects that passers-by, watching the performance through the window, must sometimes certainly think that the occupants of the house are all a bit screw-loose.

One of Cindy's favorite maneuvers is to follow the "march" card with one that orders, "fall down". Consequently Cox's army may one moment be vigorously marching about the living room, only to break ranks by a sudden and unanimous collapse to the floor. It's fun, but from the street outside it MUST look a bit queer, Luin concedes.

ROWAN WINS HONORS

At the high school district music contest at Charles City last week, Rowan's mixed chorus won top honors, a Division I rating. Two soloisits also qualified to go to the state contest at Perry on May 6. Donna Keleher received a I rating in treble voice high and Leroy Knuths as bass soloist. Mrs. Leland Lieuwen of Corwith, formerly of Belmond, is Rowan's musical director and Mrs Nina Heathershaw is accompanist

Washing Machine on Sale List For First Lucky Buck Auction

An impressive line-up of items has been gathered by the Chamber of Commerce Lucky Bucks committee to go up for auction as the lucky green-backs become temporary legal tender Friday night at 8:00 o'clock on the library steps. Heading the list is an electric washing machine, a sparkling-new bicycle, an automatic toaster and an electric razor.

With Ray Frye and Jack Munnis doing the calling, spirited bidding is anticipated as hundreds of shoppers set out to make an extra good thing of their shopping in Belmond by acquiring loot with Lucky Bucks they've received during the past three weeks.

R. B. Thompson and Walter Hotvet, members of the committee which is obtaining the auction items, announce that other merchandise to be offered at Friday night's sale will include: a thermos bottle, sportsman's flashlight, alarm clock, chenille bath set, rayon gown, nylon hose, shag rug, felt rug, men's and women's toiletry sets, man's tie and tie chain, costume jewelry, exhaust deflector, fishing plug and package of gladioli bulbs.

Luin Cox will clerk the sale and will have on hand a group of assistants to count the bundles of bucks as successful bidders pay for their purchases.

Mr. Cox suggests it might be advisable to have the Lucky Bucks done up in $25 or $50 lots to expedite counting—particularly in the case of persons who have their eyes set on one of the major items.

If rain should necessitate cancellation of this week's auction, a double auction will be held on Friday of next week.

Post Office Will Cease to Deliver Afternoon Mail

Other than elimination of Belmond's afternoon mail delivery, the reduction of services ordered last week by the U. S. postal department will have little effect on this community, according to Postmaster J. C. Brady.

There will be one other change that will have an effect on a select group of post office patrons. Third Class bulk mailings (advertising circulars) which previously have usually gotten the equivalent of First Class handling, if labeled "time value", will hereafter get no special handling.

Mr. Brady explained that such mailings consisted largely of advertising announcements that involved "specials" effective only for the ensuing two or three days and therefor required prompt distribution to serve their purpose.

Now such "time value" bulk mailings must be in the post office by 1:00 p. m. at the latest to be assured of "same day" service — or the advertiser must gamble on the clerical force having opportunity to handle the circulars. Late mailings will be assured prompt distribution if First Class postage rates are paid.

Another minor change will see the money order window closed at 5:00 p. m. instead of 5:30. Postage and registry service will be available during the same hours as before.

Curtailment of service — intended specifically as an economy move—will definitely reduce the man-hours of work performed by the local post office staff, Postmaster Brady says. He estimates that the reduction will total at least 60 man-hours per week.

CHICKEN SUPPER TONIGHT

Persons who have not yet had an opportunity to view the interior of the new Trinity Lutheran church are particularly urged to attend the chicken supper to be served this evening (Thursday) in the dining hall, starting at 5:30 o'clock. This is the first public supper the church has held since the new edifice was put into use. Members of the Ladies Aid and Mission Guild are preparing the supper.

BELMOND NAMED SITE FOR BASEBALL MEET

Belmond High school will be host to one of the 128 sectional baseball tournaments of the Iowa High School Athletic association, according to an announcement received last weekend by Supt. Don Faris.

The tourney here will have a field of six teams and play will start on Monday, May 1. At 2:30 p. m. Belmond will clash with Rowan and at 4:00, Goodell and Latimer will meet. Dows and Alexander receive first-round byes.

On May 3 at 2:30 p. m., Dows and Alexander will go into action and at 4:00, the winners of the two first round games will oppose each other. Finals will be played on Friday, May 5, starting at 3:30 p. m.

DATE FOR OPERETTA SET BACK TO MAY 3

"Tom Sawyer", an operetta based on the familiar Mark Twain classic, will be presented by a junior high cast next Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium, starting at 8:00 'oclock. Originally scheduled for Friday, the performance was postponed to avoid conflict with the Lucky Bucks auction.

Bonnie Abbas will read the poem which accompanies the operetta's action, and several choruses will supplement the major cast of characters, which includes the following students:

Margo Gowdy as Aunt Polly; Dwight Beavers, Tom Sawyer; Gary Gartz, Joe Harper; Ardith Johnson, Amy Lawrence; Sandra Simerson, Becky Thatcher; Sam Leinbach, Huck Finn.

Arnette Terhark, Injun Joe; Ray Busick, Muff Potter; Theatta Bunjer, Widow Douglas; Richard Kling, Dr. Robinson; Larry Larson, Ben Rogers; Keith Madsen, Alfred Temple.

Mrs. Dana Howell President of PTA

Mrs. Dana Howell was elected president of the Belmond Parent-Teachers association for the 1950-51 school year at the organization's regular monthly meeting held Monday evening at the high school auditorium.

Mrs. Grant Chapman was elected vice president and Doris Lewis—first grade teacher—was named secretary-treasurer.

A larger turn-out than normal was attracted to the meeting by the prospect of seeing the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luin Cox, Cindy, and her teacher at Smouse Opportunity School in Des Moines, Doris Wood, demonstrate modern methods of teaching pre-school deaf tots how to speak and read lips.

Retiring PTA President Mrs. Fred Pals announced appointments to the summer recreation planning committee for this year. Laurence Murray will serve as chairman of the group, which will include Mesdames Gunnar Kling, Fred Gordon and George Hansen.

WHAT WOULD BE A SELL-OUT HOUSE, if there were to be any admission charge, is anticipated when the Fort Dodge Men's Civic Glee club appears Monday night in a free concert at the high school auditorium starting at 8:15 o'clock. Shown above with the widely-known choral group are the white-gowned members of the Fort Dodge High school girls' sextet, which also will offer two selections. Between the members of the sextet are Helen Nelson Frye, accompanist, and Clayton C. Hathaway, director. A highlight of the performance will be several numbers by the Troubadors, a featured quartet of which Lowell Trafford, formerly of Belmond. is a member. The glee club previously appeared here in 1947.

Pipeline Company Asks Increase In Its Rates on Gas

Increasing costs of pipeline service has forced the Northern Natural Gas company (which supplies Central States Electric with gas used in Belmond) to ask Federal Power Commission for an increase in natural gas rates, Burt R. Bay of Omaha, president of the company, said today.

Revenues under present rates are less than the cost of service, said Mr. Bay. The four important factors, he said, which force the company to ask for a rate increase are:

Increases in the cost of gas purchased in the field; substantial increases in labor costs; increases in the costs of operating and maintenance supplies and materials; increased cost of constructing facilities to provide additional capacity.

The request for an increase came after a series of rate reductions, made in face of rising costs, said Mr. Bay.

In 1942, 1943, and 1947, Northern made rate reductions which totaled—on the volumes at that time—about $4,000,000 a year, or a total of more than $28,000,000 through 1949. For the 12 months ending Oct. 26, 1950, these reductions were expected to amount to about $7,695,000.

The recommended general increase—first in the 20-year history of the company—is a 14 per cent gain over the present rate, but still is 19 per cent less than the price which prevailed before the 1942 reduction, said Mr. Bay.

If the proposed increase, applicable to residential and small volume users, is passed on to the ultimate customer by the gas utilities, Mr. Bay said it would average over the system to about the following:

The average residential consumer's cooking bill would go up about two and one half cents a month; for cooking and water heating, the average bill would increase about five cents; for cooking, water heating and refrigeration, the total average increase would be about seven and one half cents.

The average annual house-heating bill would go up about 45 cents per month.

GOP CAUCUS MAY 3

The Belmond township Republican precinct caucus will be held the evening of Wednesday, May 3, at Belmond Township hall. The purpose of this caucus is to nominate delegates to the Republican county convention, which will be held at the courthouse at Clarion on June 30.

Members of FFA Team Go To State Convention

Members of Belmond High school Future Farmers' parliamentary procedure team, accompanied by Adviser Duane Sandage, are in Cedar Rapids for the three-day state convention of the F. F. A. which extends through Saturday.

Alvin Halfpap, Lawrence Ziller, Ronald Ketchum, Fred Loats and Jim Riekens compose the team, which won a gold medal rating at the recent district convention here to qualify as a competitor in the state contest.

Jim and Ronald are their chapter's official delegates to the convention and Alvin is alternate.

Assessments Out Later This Year

Customarily notice of personal property assessments are mailed out to Wright county taxpayers about the first of May, but assessor F. Ross Henry stated this week that the mailings will be somewhat delayed this year.

There was a later start this year than usual in determining assessments because of the year-end rush on the tax lists, says Mr. Henry, which were delayed by a controversy over a utility valuation.

Also an effort has been made, for the first time, to obtain the personal property statements by mail. While many persons have returned their completed reports, Mr. Henry says that a large enough per cent have neglected to return statements that the work of his office has fallen behind its usual schedule.

The board of review is to assemble at the courthouse next Monday, May 1; it ordinarily receives appeals throughout the month. Whether special provisions will have to be made this year, due to the late mailing of assessments, remains to be seen.

Assessor Henry urgently requests all who have so far failed to return their personal property statements to his office to do so at once. Any who have lost the forms that were mailed to them can obtain extra copies by writing the assessor's office.

Mr. Henry says it is not desirable to mail out assessment notices in any districts until notices for the entire district can be sent at one time. Consequently, a relative handful of laggard reports can hold up notices for a whole district.

MRS. BARRY SLATED FOR WRIGHT COUNTY AUXILIARY PRESIDENT

Mrs. Veronica Barry of Belmond today was to become county president of the American Legion Auxiliary at the annual spring conference of Wright county units being held at Eagle Grove.

This honor is rotated among the member units and 1950 was Belmond's year to provide the president and secretary. At the same time that the local nominating committee selected Mrs. Barry to serve as president, Mrs. Bessie Thompson was named to become county secretary.

Mrs. Sue Hammond of Rowan is the retiring president and Mrs. Florence Aldinger, also of Rowan, the retiring secretary.

A fairly sizeable delegation from Belmond was planning on attending the county meeting, at which Mrs. Lola Dunlap of Tama, Third District president was to be guest of honor. A pot-luck dinner was planned for noon, with the business session to follow in the afternoon.

LUNCHEON SITE CHANGED

This noon's Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting will be held at the Veterans' Memorial building, rather than the library basement, according to Secretary Luin Cox. The entertainment will consist of a colored, sound film on fishing, provided by Ellis Elliott.

JIM RIEKENS NAMED "HOOFBEATS" EDITOR

Jim Riekens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Riekens, has been named editor of "Hoofbeats"—the Belmond high school student newspaper — for the 1950-51 school year. He served during the past year as sports editor.

Another Softball Parley Scheduled Next Tuesday

Final plans for the coming softball season will be completed and officers elected for the current year at a meeting of the Belmond City Softball association scheduled for next Tuesday evening at Elliott's Hardware. Most of the details in regard to the season's play were worked out at a meeting held last Friday night at the city hall.

Claude Larkin, association president, says that an announcement will be made following next week's meeting as to site, schedules and sponsorship, and other matters pertaining to play for the 1950 season.

Pledge Payments Coming in Good

Hospital pledge payments have been coming in at a very gratifying rate, Fund Treasurer Albert Hanson reported yesterday. A large majority of those donors who have so far left their money at his office or mailed a check to him have made their payment for the entire amount of their pledge, he added.

All who made pledges are urgently requested to make their payments at the earliest possible moment, so the first steps toward actual construction of the hospital can be taken in the near future.

Gene Woolley, chairman of the planning board, headed a party of eight hospital committee members on a visitation trip last Thursday during which new hospitals at Sac City, Storm Lake and Alta were inspected. It was the concensus of the group that the one at Alta might well serve as a basic plan for the local structure.

Mr. Woolley also said that plans are being made for a conference with representatives of the state board of health in respect to potential sites.

It is hoped that several of the likeliest sites can be personally inspected by one of the board representatives soon, to ascertain whether they would meet with the approval of the health authorities.

No further report has been turned in by the finance committee in regard to pledges lately received, but it is understood that the canvass in Meservey, Alexander and environs is progressing satisfactorily and a report from those areas should be available next week.

GMI Defendant In $2,389 Suit

Petition was filed in district court on Friday of last week by William R. Rotterman and Frank Rotterman, residents of Kossuth county, for a judgment in the sum of $2,389.77 against General Mills Incorporate.

The suit is the outgrowth of an unauthorized sale of soybeans to the Belmond plant in the fall of 1948 by an agent for the Rottermans.

According to the plaintiffs' petition, they had an agreement with Garry Grain company of Ledyard, Iowa, to store oats, corn and beans from the Rottermans' farm in Kossuth county, and to sell said grains upon order.

In October of 1948 the grain company made four deliveries of beans to the Belmond plant between the 5th and 15th, aggregating 1,002 bushels, and through the manager of Garry Grain, Larry Walsh, the beans were sold without the plaintiffs' knowledge or consent.

Not until the Garry Grain company at a later date filed petition for bankruptcy did the owners of the beans learn of their disposal..

The Rottermans state that the fair market price for beans on the date of sale was $2.38½. The plaintiff asks for the equivalent sale price on 1,002 bushels, plus 5 per cent interest per annum since Oct. 16, 1948 and costs of the case.

CANCER FUND TOTAL UP TO $594 TUESDAY

With some solicitors' reports incomplete, Belmond by Tuesday evening had given a total of $594 in response to the 1950 local campaign of the American Cancer Society.

While this fell considerably short of the excellent response of last year, when Belmond's contributions totaled $729, it nevertheless surpassed the community's quota of $500.

Mrs. Jeanne Bamford, chairman of the local drive, expressed the hope sufficient further donations would still come in to bring the fund up to $700.

Anyone who was not contacted and wishes to make a donation can leave it with Mrs. Bamford at Dr. A. M. Nelson's office, with Mrs. Hattie Allison at Infelt's store or with Mrs. Ethyl Papousek.

Three Musicians Win Top Ratings

Three Belmond entries in the district music contest at Charles City last Friday and Saturday were awarded Division I ratings and thereby qualified to compete in the state contest at Perry on May 6.

All three of the Belmond winners of "superior" ratings were solo contestants. Jerry Hanson and Paul Griesy competed in the "bass" classification and Marilyn McNutt as a "treble voice medium".

Marilyn Ellis, a "treble voice high" contestant, and the girls' trio—made up of Connie Benson, Adelaide Jenison and Miss Ellis—were awarded II ratings.

The Belmond music groups that competed in the contest held two weeks ago at Webster City—the concert band, mixed chorus and girls' glee club—all won "excellent" ratings but did not qualify for further competition.

Genevieve Monson has returned from her stay in Story City.

Mrs. Edward Obrecht spent the weekend at the Merton Wiggins home in Emmetsburg.

FFA Will Again Sponsor Corn Yield Contest

Belmond's chapter of Future Farmers of American will this year again sponsor a 10-acre corn yield contest in conjunction with the Iowa Corn and Small Grain Growers' association. Farmers in Pleasant, Belmond, Iowa and Grant townships will be eligible to enter.

An entry fee of $5 will be charged. A handsome trophy, similar to the one awarded to Wes Braner in the 1949 contest and currently displayed in the window of Thompsen's Clothing store, will be presented to the winner.

Entries should be filed within the next few weeks with Duane Sandage, F. F. A. Supervisor. Mr. Sandage expects a great many more to compete this year than last, when announcement of the contest was not made until August 25. He also anticipates much higher yields, since the 1949 contest plots—like all other corn plantings—were hard hit by the near-hurricane in late October.

Last year's winning plot produced just over 103 bushels to the acre. All entries surpassing a 100-bushel average will receive a Master Corn Grower medal and special certificates of merit will go to contestants whose yields exceed 125 bushels per acre.

There will also be a special award for the highest yield from a plot planted on contour.

Members of the Belmond F. F. A. chapter will run tests to determine yield, moisture content and other contest qualifications. General rules governing the contest are as follows:

A. At least three individuals must enter the local contest.

B. The yields must be from 10 acres in a rectangular or square block in either contoured or straight rows.

C. The yield must be calculated on the basis of one sample taken from each acre in the contest area. The length of each acre sampled must not be more than two times its width.

D. (1) In checked corn the yield must be on 50 consecutive hills in a row, including missing hills. No adjustments are to be made for missing hills.

(2). In drilled or in power-checked corn the length of the row harvested must be exactly 50 times the width between the rows. Example: Where rows are 40 inches apart, the length of the row harvested must be 166 feet and eight inches.

Demonstration of Sheep Tick Control Scheduled At Drury Farm, May 4th

Sheep raisers of Wright county will have a chance next Thursday, May 4, to see modern methods of applying new chemicals for sheep tick control, according to Aaron R. Bowman, Wright county extension director.

Earle Raun, extension entomologist, and Eugene Francis, extension animal husbandry specialist, both for Iowa State college, will be in the county to conduct the demonstration. It will be held at the Frank and Lloyd Drury farm (mink farm), six miles east and one mile north of Clarion, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Bowman says that sheep ticks and other external parasites cause serious losses in most Iowa flocks. These insects irritate the sheep by their feeding, reducing thriftiness, causing ragged wool and—in severe cases where rubbing breaks the skin—cause maggot infestation.

With the advent of modern chemicals and methods of application, it's no trick at all to control these parasites of sheep, say the experts. Spraying the animals with DDT is effective and easy; and use of wetting agents makes it possible to get effective control of ticks even by low-pressure sprays.

IF YOUR FARM SUPPORTS RATS CLEAN-UP WILL PAY WELL

(No. 1 of three articles)

April marks the beginning of Iowa Spring Clean-Up period and the opening of another campaign in the state-wide program to control rats, County Extension Director Aaron A. Bowman reminds Wright county farmers.

He says rats cost Iowa farmers a staggering sum of money each year. They eat and contaminate millions of bushels of grain. They undermine buildings and feeding floors. They attack and kill young livestock and they carry livestock diseases from farm to farm.

Harold Gunderson, extension entomologist of Iowa State college, estimates that it costs $2.00 a year to keep one rat on the farm. There probably are 20 million rats on Iowa farms, so chances are the total yearly loss from all rat activities ranges upward from 40 million dollars.

A good clean-up campaign is the first essential to getting rid of rats, says Bowman. On every farm there are many places where rats may live and find protection from their natural enemies.

These include lumber and fence posts piled on the ground, garbage, junk — such as old machinery, woven wire and broken equipment—stack bottoms and cob piles.

If the lumber and posts are worth saving, Bowman suggests piling them up off the ground on supports at least two feet high. If they aren't worth saving, they should be burned.

Here are some other suggestions: sell scrap metal; set wagon boxes on supports off the ground two feet so that light and air can penetrate; scatter edible garbage, stack bottoms, cobs and manure in the field; burn other junk, fill in rat burrows in and around buildings and cut weeds around buildings.

Clean-up work can be done to remove the hiding places and make a dog's job easier when chasing a rat. It also tends to concentrate a scattered population so the rats are easier to poison.

Bowman says to start killing the rats only after the clean-up job is completed. Poison, traps, gas or shooting are methods often used. A dog can do an effective job, especially if the rats can't find holes to escape him.

There's a rule of the thumb for determining rat populations, Bowman points out. He says if you never see rats, but see signs of rats and rat damage, chances are there are from one to 100 rats on your farm. If you see rats occasionally at night, there may be from 100 to 500 rats.

If you see rats every night and a few occasionally in the daytime, you are probably boarding from 500 to 1,00 rats. If you see lots of rats at night and several every day, you more than likely have from 1,000 to 5,000 rats. He says to figure that each rat costs fully $2.00 each year for living expenses and you can easily determine just how big the bill is that you are paying.

Britt in Diamond Win Over Broncs Friday, 7-0

Belmond High's baseball team dropped its third game in four starts last Friday at Britt, bowing to the Eagles 7 to 0. According to Coach Jim Scott, Curt Mennenga hurled first-class ball for the Broncos, but the batters were unable to bunch their hits in order to get runs across.

Roger Hanson turned in the best performance at the plate, getting two hits for the locals and walking in his other trip.

It was a fairly tight contest until the Eagles put four runs across in the fifth, with two hits preceding three walks and an error. Mennenga allowed only three other walks and the Broncs committed only one other error beside that costly one in the fifth.

Mennenga stuck out four, while Sheets fanned six Broncos and walked only one batter.

Which Comes First - -

The Lemon or The Egg?

- - Answer's Surprising

We have proof that the citrus cuties who get caught wearing a bathing suit and smiling down prettily from somebody's ladder in somebody's orange grove are strictly peaches working for peanuts!

They should get into the egg business with the Iowa farm wife whose so-called "pin money" take from the fruits of the barnyard hens amounts to more than $200,000,000 a year. It takes the combined cuties of five citrus crop states, with stems and peel both showing, to best that record of the modestly-garbed Iowa farm wife.

Furthermore, if the Iowa eggs were graded before market, the value of the Iowa poultry crop would exceed the combined value of the citrus fruit crop of the nation.

This comparative picture of the mighty egg pitted against the lemon et al was compiled by the Statistical and Market Research Division of the Iowa Development Commission in response to, some inclination to minimize the importance of less glamorous products of agriculture like the common egg.

In a representative year, 1948, with crop prices equally high, the citrus crop production of five states—California, Florida, Texas, Arizona and Louisiana—barely nosed out the poultry record of Iowa alone. The scores on the respective cash registers were: citrus crops, $252,916,000; Iowa poultry products, $215,258,-0000.

The Iowa poultry products for that year included eggs, chickens and turkeys sold at the market. The citrus cuties sold oranges, grapefruit, lemons and tangerines.

Cash market receipts from Iowa eggs in 1948 amounted to $132,600,000; from chickens, $53,-095,000; and from turkeys, $16,-730,000. The line-up for four citrus fruit crops for California totaled $110,077,000; for Florida, $126,019,000; Texas, $11,517,000; Arizona, $2,948,000; and Louisiana, $550,000.

Egg and chicken production in Iowa, while increasing in quality and quantity over many years, has not matched the strides advanced by turkey growing in the past two decades. Turkey raising here 25 years ago was an almost impossible project due to the sensitive nurturing of the big birds, later discovered. Now, as indicated by the figures, it is nearly $17,000,000 Iowa industry.

A four-county area around Wellman, home of the famous Maplecrest Turkey farm, is a leading turkey growing region in the nation. Maplecrest last year, for example, shipped 75,000 birds to eastern and a few midwestern markets for Thanksgiving alone.

Place Iowa then in the production hopper, armed with its poultry production record for the representative year, with the nation's five top citrus fruit states and the Hawkeye business comes out holding its own against the odds.

And consider that if the Iowa farmer was more careful in culling his eggs the citrus cuties of not only five states but all citrus fruit growing states in the nation would be chasing him. Culling, according to authorities, would increase the value of eggs and likewise hike the total value of poultry production in Iowa.

But as it is, it's five cuties to a hen! That's plenty to cackle about, and if we laid an egg we're glad of it. It's a golden egg!

Fertilizer Applied Near Corn Hill Should Bring Very Best Results

Shoot for top corn yields by applying fertilizer when you plant this year, suggests Aaron Bowman, Wright county extension director.

He recommends going after big yields the way you'd hunt big game — by concentrating your ammunition right where it will do the most good. In other words, by putting the fertilizer right alongside the hill of corn you can get excellent results and you use the fertilizer most efficiently.

Hill dropping the fertilizer about two inches away from the seed and on the same level takes about half as much fertilizer as broadcasting. When mixed fertilizer is drilled beside the row the rate must be increased by one-half over the planter attachment method, which puts the fertilizer beside the hill.

In short, for most Wright county conditions, a mixed fertilizer such as 4-16-8, 3-12-12, or 4-16-16 applied near the hill or row at planting time is the best way to fertilize corn. Recommendations may vary some with soil type and test results.

H. B. Cheney, Iowa State college extension agronomist, says that in this part of Iowa the usual rate of applications is 125 pounds per acre for 4-16-8 and 165 pounds per acre for 3-12-12 or 125 pounds of 4-16-16.

The 4-16-8 fertilizer usually is recommended for lighter Clarion soils, while the 3-12-12 and 4-16-16 for the heavier Webster soils.

Small amounts of mixed fertilizer at corn planting time usually give best results on land high in active organic matter and nitrogen. On the other hand, the agronomist points out that hill-dropped fertilizer response may not be up to expectations on badly eroded soils or other soils very low in nitrogen and organic matter, unless extra nitrogen is supplied by green manures or commercial fertilizers.

Ordinarily, the amount of nitrogen applied to corn at planting time is quite small. It helps get the corn plant off to a good start and give it a chance to get ahead of the weeds right away.

Results on the same field may vary markedly from year to year, depending on weather conditions, Bowman reports. Best response has been in cool moist spring seasons and in soils that remain cool and moist at planting time.

At the same time, midsummer drouth has been known to limit fertilizer results that are expected to show up in higher yields at cribbing time. Instructions for using fertilizer for corn are included in Pamphlet 154, "Using Fertilizers Right," which may be obtained at the county extension office at Clarion.

County Teachers Elect Lauffer Vice President

Milo Lauffer, local junior high school teacher, was elected vice president of the Wright County Teachers association at a meeting of that organization held last week at Clarion.

Martha Kabele of Dows was named president for the next school year and C. W. Sankey, county superintendent, will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Besides Mr. Lauffer, the Belmond teachers association was represented by Edwin Bruner and Doris Lewis.

The meeting was mainly devoted to a discussion of the Iowa State Education association. Dissatisfaction was expressed over the manner in which the state association has been conducting its placement bureau for teachers.

Stock Judging Contest For 4-H Boys April 29

The first 4-H countywide livestock judging contest of 1950 has been scheduled for this Saturday afternoon, April 29, at 1:30 p. m. The scene of this activity will be the Morris Miller farm, where classes in dairy cattle and hogs will be provided. If time permits, several classes of fat cattle may be judged on a nearby farm.

This contest is open to all 4-H boys in the county. Its main purpose is to provide instruction in judging and also serve as a basis for selecting a team which will compete with other counties at the Iowa State Fair and Dairy Cattle Congress.

Elliott's Notified of Cut In Maytag Washer Prices

Elliott Hardware and Appliances has been notified by the Maytag company of Newton, for whose products it is local distributor, that a price reduction has been made on all Maytag washing machine models

Attributing the action to "large scale production and manufacturing economies," Maytag officials announced a reduction of $10 on automatics and $5 on conventional washers.

"In the past 18 to 24 months, the Maytag company has spent millions of dollars for new and modern equipment and facilities to achieve cost reductions, which would make the price cuts possible," dealers were informed by Roy A. Bradt, vice president in charge of sales and advertising.

Break in Water Main At Alexander School Is "Break" for Kids

While their contemporaries in neighboring schools were kept nose-to-grindstone with no hope for further respite from classes until summer vacation arrives, students at Alexander Consolidated school the first three days of last week were enjoying freedom.

A break in the water main that joins the school house proved a "break" for the kids. However, that difficulty might have been ironed out with relative dispatch had not the ditching-machine employed to dig up the pipes run into trouble.

The heavy machine, in effect, dug its own grave; as the soggy ground gave way under it, the digger made an embarrassing descent into the ditch it a moment before had been excavating.

Old Felt Hats Requested For Vets' Hobby Classes

The American Legion Auxiliary of Meservey is currently sponsoring a drive to collect all the old, discarded felt hats in town. The ladies are not interested in them as head-gear for wash days or for raking the lawn, however.

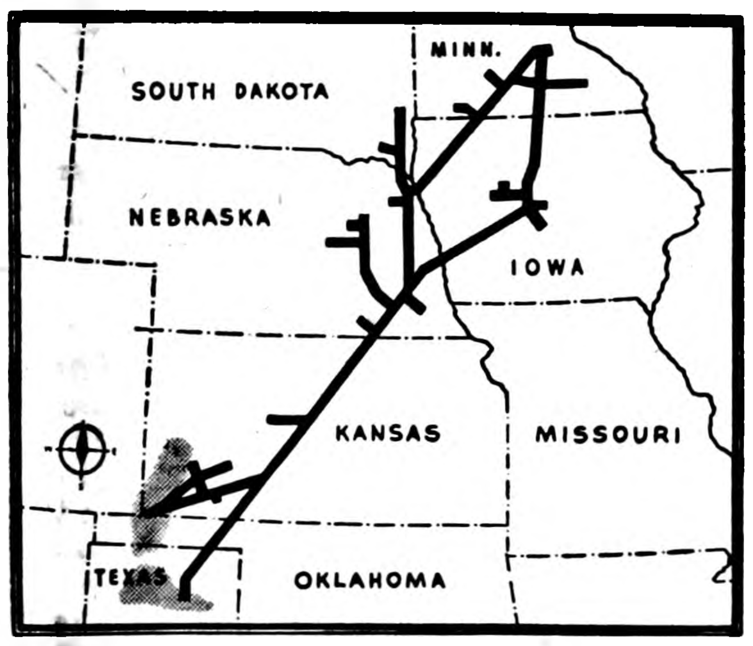
Town Border Rate Revision Will Help Insure ADEQUATE, DEPENDABLE NATURAL GAS SERVICE for You!



It's costing more these days to bring natural gas to you . . . a lot more. In fact, under present rates charged by the Northern System, revenues are LESS THAN THE COST OF PROVIDING THE SERVICE!

When this happens, something must be done in order to continue your natural gas service dependable and adequate.

That's why Northern Natural Gas Company has been forced to apply to the Federal Power Commission for an upward revision of rates for all types of services, including the price of gas delivered to the 222 towns and communities on the Northern System.

For many years the cost of gas has been downward. Northern has made three rate reductions since 1942 with an estimated accumulated saving to gas customers of more than $28,000,000 up to the end of 1949. All these reductions were made in the face of constantly rising costs.

There are a multitude of reasons for the rising cost of bringing you gas service. Here are a few:

1. Increased cost of natural gas at the wells where it is produced. (Gas reserves, for example, have risen in cost 150% since 1942.)
2. Labor to operate and maintain the pipeline system costs more. (For example, common labor rates have DOUBLED since 1942.)
3. Increased cost of operating and maintenance supplies and materials. (Sample: Cost of 26-inch pipe has risen 92% since 1942.)
4. Construction of additional facilities to meet growing demands cost more. (Over-all construction costs are estimated to be almost double over 1942.)

This means, that despite our constantly improved efficiency and economy of operation, the present rates for gas just will not foot the bill any longer.

The new average town border rates are actually 19% less than the 1942 rates and, if passed on to the consumer entirely, would increase monthly gas bills very little . . . about 7½ cents, on the average, for the customer using gas for cooking, water heating and refrigeration. For cooking alone, it would amount to only about 2½ cents! Househeating customers would average only an estimated 45 cents a month.
The need is great; the increase in cost is small . . . and we know you want to keep your Natural Gas Service dependable!

Natural Gas Remains Most Economical of Fuels

While the cost of natural gas has gone down, costs of other major fuels (coal and oil) have gone up. This can be readily visualized by the accompanying chart showing the comparative average fuel costs for househeating on the Northern System. In 1949, for illustration, the average cost per million British Thermal Units of heat for lump coal was 66 cents; for No. 2 fuel oil, 86 cents; for natural gas, 54 cents. Natural Gas remains considerably below the cost of solid and liquid fuels.

Since the war the demand for natural gas has multiplied many-fold. Clean, dependable and economical . . . natural gas has become the coveted, preferred fuel in the home and in industry. To meet these increased demands the capacity of the gas pipe line system has been increased as fast as possible. In 1944 the system capacity was approximately 250 million cubic feet of gas per day. By the end of this year we hope to have it up to 600 million cubic feet. In 1950 alone we will spend $51,800,000 on expansion of the system.

by "Pat" Gallagher

Your reporter has been hearing so much about soil testing that it raised a curiosity bump. We decided to find out a bit about it—why to test, what to test, when, where and how to test—thinking maybe we'd scare up a few details that might possibly be new to our RFD readers. We further decided the best way to learn was to go direct to an expert—the expert in this case being S. W. "Bill" Witzel, who's doing testing in behalf of the PMA for any farmer willing to invest a few bucks to find out what his crop acres may be lacking.

We made connections with Bill as he was starting out to do some soil sampling on the 120-acre farm of Mrs. Marie Bailey of Spencer, which is located a half mile west of Morse lake and is managed by the owner's son, Ray Bailey of Clarion. Tenant on the farm is Clarence Mickelson. He didn't get in on the act because he was otherwise occupied—getting married—last Friday.

—RFD—

First of all Bill discussed crop history with Mr. Bailey, after learning that the farm is, generally speaking, broken up into a north, middle and south 40. The north portion is rather hilly and therefor poorly adapted to bean planting, since soybeans tend to loosen the soil and induce erosion on such land. The west portion of the middle 40 is composed of muck, which would produce such lush oats that the grain would be likely to lodge—so, that's "out" as far as oats are concerned.

Bill discovered that in 1948 the north 40 and mucky part of the middle were planted in corn. The higher middle portion and a 10-acre strip of the south 40 went into oats—and the south 30 acres were planted in soybeans.

In '49 the hilly north portion was in oats, the mucky west half of the middle 40 in beans, and remainder in corn. Mr. Bailey always seeds Huban (an annual sweet clover) with his oats to get the soil-building benefits of a legume and provide green manure for plowing under after the oats are harvested.

—RFD—

This spring Mr. Bailey proposes to plant his full 47-acre-allotment of corn — which will cover the north 40 and dip into the muck area for the other seven acres. The rest of the mucky area will be in beans. Oats (seeded with Huban, of course) will be laid in the rest of the midde 40 and a sufficient strip at the top of the south 40 to comprise about 34 to 36 acres all told. The lower part of the south 40 will also be planted in beans. So that's how the farm has been, and is going to be, cropped.

—RFD—

With this history recorded, Mr. Witzel said it was time to pull stakes and get out to the farm. He explained there are really only two ways to correct deficiencies in farming soil. One, by-guess-and-by-golly. Try one fertilizer and then another, and hope that along the way you happen to hit it right. The odds, naturally, are predominantly against you with this method. Improvement may be accomplished, but the method is unlikely to be successful to anythink like a maximum degree.

Or, like Mr. Bailey, you can provide a cropping history and then have soil samples taken, have the samples analyzed at a soils laboratory, and follow the laboratory's recommendations as to what each soil type and topographical area requires. Then you KNOW what you're doing, and improvement should follow as the night the day.

Mr. Witzel emphasized, however, that commercial fertilizers must in any event be supplemented by barnyard manure or green manure—to provide the soil with humus material — or you'll fall far short of gaining maximum benefit from your mineral applications.

When we arrived at the farm, Bill took from the car an oversized cork-screw (that's what it looked like to us; it was an "auger" to him), a galvanized bucket, a clip-board with paper for note-taking, and proceeded with his job.

—RFD—

Mr. Witzel takes about an auger-full of dirt to the acre. He keeps his samples separated according to topographical area, soil type and crop history.

From a farm like the Bailey's, he may take from 50 to as many as 125 or 150 auger samples—which will be combined to provide four or five actual test samples (at only $1.00 per test—which goes to the Iowa State college laboratory — believe me, you get a lot of labor out of Bill for the money!)

At the outset, Bill drafts a rough topographical map of the farm, showing high spots and low spots, and then indicates on it the approximate spot every sample is taken. By the time he gets through, the laboratory is going to know not only what soil deficiencies exist and exactly where, but it's going to have a pretty good idea what caused them and will be able to recommend exactly how to correct them.

The "lab" will also make valuable recommendations as to what to plant and what not to plant in particular areas. If you don't "know" your land by the time you've read the "lab" report, brother, you're never going to!

—RFD—

So we'll say you've chanced a few dollars, gotten yourself an analysis of your land and received the college's recommendations as to how to correct your soil deficiencies. AND you go ahead and apply minerals as suggested. Then what do you have a right to expect?

Well, Mr. Witzel says that—assuming weather conditions are normal—you can reasonably expect a yield increase of very possibly 10 per cent due to the soil improvement. Or, say you've got some fairish-sized spots you haven't even been able to get a crop on—and the fertilizing puts them BACK in PRODUCTION — well, whatever you get from them is pure velvet.

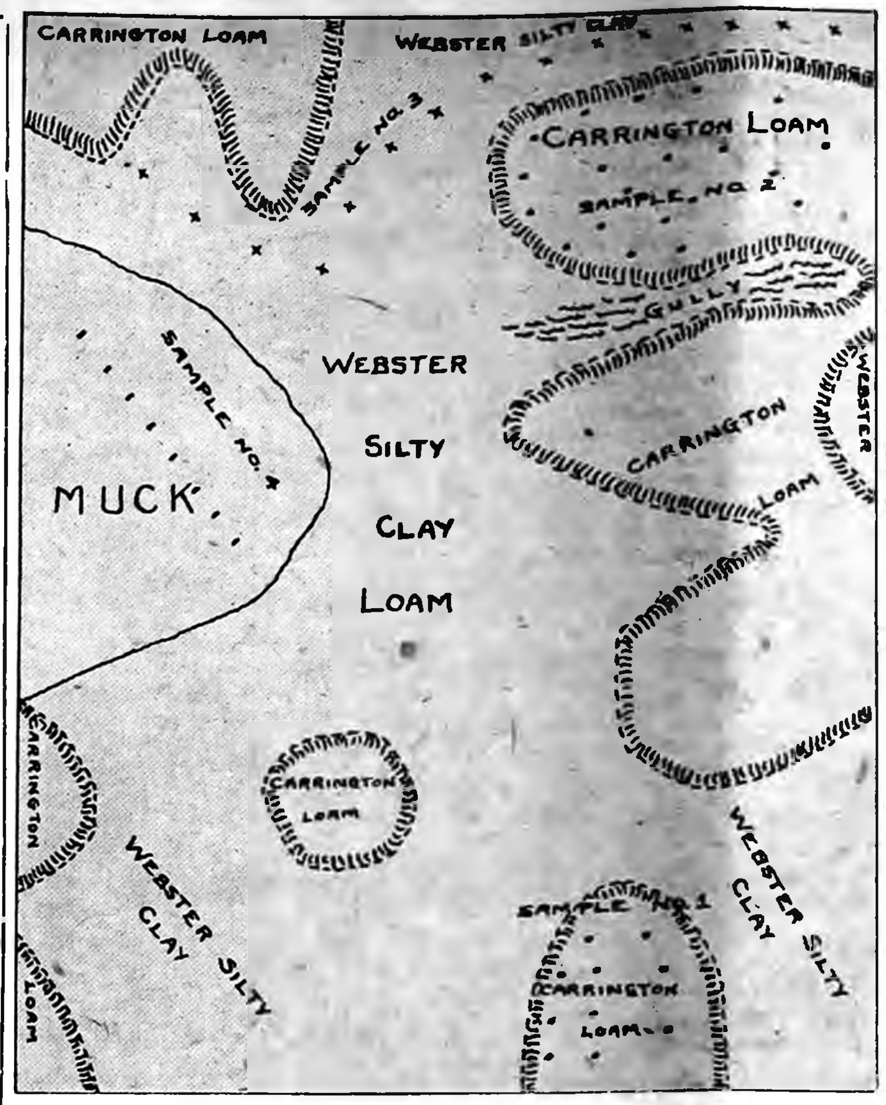
If your land is very run-down, of course you won't get it back into top shape in a single year—so regular, if diminishing, yield increases can rightfully be expected each season until your fields approach top condition.

Bill suggests that the fertilizing recommendations be followed each year for three or four years and that then another sampling be performed to check on what's been accomplished and to see if formula changes are required. It's also advisable to learn how the humus content is stacking up.

—RFD—

NOW comes the question of what all this fertilizer is going to cost you. That, of course, depends so much on the formulas recommended, the amounts required, etc., that a general answer can hardly be given.

Farmers, who, by experience, have been sold on the value of soil testing will assure you, however, that in the long run the cost will be NOTHING! They say you will be more than repaid in increased yields, insuring the sale value of your farm—yes, and in satisfaction over a job well and correctly done—that the balance sheet will always be in your favor if you add soil testing and systematic land improvement to your farming practices.



In submitting the above topographical map of the Bailey farm to the soil testing laboratory, along with the soil samples he'd taken, Mr. Witzel provided the following information:

"Samples 1 and 2 were taken on top of knolls in eroded spots. Sample 3 was taken at the bottom of knolls and contained sheet erosion from knoll tops. Sample 4 also contains sheet erosion on top of muck.

"The topography is very uneven. There is no farmstead on the farm, which is operated by tenant who also farms adjacent land; rotation with legumes for green manure is a probleb.

"Should area from Samples 2 and 3 be used with soybeans in rotation? Would heavy application of nitrogen be advisable on areas which produced Samples 1 and 2?"

All shaded areas on the map represent knolls. Dots indicate where auger samples were taken to provide soil samples No. 1 and 2; x-marks where samples were taken for No. 3; and short lines where soil for Sample No. 4 was taken.

Hanson, Gordon Do Well In Bowling Tournament

Several contingents of Belmond bowlers have participated in a tournament currently underway at the Bowl-Mor Alleys at Webster City. Clair Hanson, with an 886, and Fred Gordon, with 859, last weekend were situated among the leaders and appeared likely to finish rather well up in the money.

Other Belmond keglers who looked like possible money winners were George Infelt with 829 and Jim Mariga, 816. As of last Sunday, with 580 bowlers having posted scores, low money-score was 804 — and Grover Downs was still in the pay bracket with an 806. In a second series, Gordon had an 853.

Maple-busters from here who also competed but did not finish in the pay class were Dr. A. M. Larson, George Hanson, "Dutch" Thompsen, Pat Gallagher and Jake Gruis.

New Ideas in Crops

Have you noticed how farmers have changed planting plans in the last 20 years?

Grace and I drove in the country last Sunday. We couldn't help remarking on how farmers are DIVERSIFYING now.

"Along this road you used to see nothing but corn and oats," Grace said.

Now, they're planting beans, ladino clover, sudan grass, alsike, grain sorghums, and a lot of other things. Diversity's been a good thing for our farms. And it's a good thing for everybody.

If we all thought alike there wouldn't be any program. It's the right to think and act according to our diversified lights that's made America a great country.

One farmer may go in for grain, another for livestock. Each to his preference. One person may go for coffee with his meals . . . another likes tea, or a temperate glass of beer. That's fair to both; it's the American way.

I say it's lucky we're diversified in people and opinions. That's good for us, just as it is for crops.

First Thing You Know, They'll Say How Many Letters You Can Write

In a community the size of Belmond, the reduced post office services more or less constitute a fly in the ointment. In the larger cities and metropolitan centers, we predict they will be nothing less than a monkey wrench in the machinery. Commerce and industry in this day and age are simply not keyed to one-a-day mail deliveries.

Other reductions in service may bring murmurs of protest, but we predict there will be an ear-deafening roar of criticism over elimination of second daily deliveries.

After all the publicity given the inefficiencies and poor business practices of the postal department by the Hoover Commission (directed, we might point out, at the postal administration and not at the individual post offices) it appears that the postmaster has settled upon some of the least advisable means for effecting economy.

PMA Should Not Be Involved In Political Maneuvering

"We'll bet no one regretted the unfortunate situation Minnesota's PMA committeemen recently found themselves involved in any more than the thousands of loyal and conscientious committeemen serving the PMA elsewhere over the farm belt.

When some 4,500 county and township committeemen were "invited" to hear the tub-thumping of Secretary Brannan and Senator Humphrey up at St. Paul—while drawing a regular day's pay in the process—it was inevitable that widespread criticism would follow. And while there are no doubt some PMA committeemen who look on their jobs, first and foremost, as the means of picking up a few easy bucks, it is grossly unfair that the whole PMA should sustain a black-eye out of the incident.

The way we see it, Secretary Brannan simply provided added evidence that he has virtually no understanding of primary and logical goal of a federal farm policy. And the maneuver will certainly serve to make many a rank and file farmer, who'd been open to conviction in regard to the Brannan Plan, more suspicious than ever of the motives behind it.

We don't intend to join with those who say, "See, when you come right down to it, even the Production and Marketing Administration is only a cog in the political machine." We don't think it particularly has been, and we certainly don't think it should so become.

Its functions in implementing a sound, federal farm program may well give it a status of permanency that few federal bureaus attain. In this connection, we might add that we view its soil conservation activities as strictly a temporary obligation.

Correctly administered, the soil conservation program should "sell" sound soil practices to the farmer in such thorough fashion that he will in due time be willing to carry on without any "bribe" in the form of compliance checks.

We think many PMA committeemen —particularly Wright county's—are sincerely endeavoring to attain this goal. We also fear that, regardless of innocence on their part, their usefulness can be seriously undermined if there is very frequent repetition of such instances of "political contamination" as occurred at St. Paul.

A "Darkie" Is Still A "Darkie". Radio Censorship Notwithstanding.

Every time we hear a watered-down radio version of some popular or semi-popular song in which the term "darkie" has been eliminated or replaced with an awkward substitute, we feel that the blow thereby struck for racial tolerance was a very weak one.

Maybe in some parts of the country, the familiar term for "Negro" is used derisively; but it's had no such connotation in any of the many sections we've touched in considerable traveling.

We've never seen an Irishman incited to mayhem by being called a "mick" in friendly fashion—nor a Scandinavian blow his top simply because someone referred to him as a "svenski" or "scandahoovian." And to our notion, "darkie" is no more a term of approbrium than the examples given.

For our money, "the darkies are happy and gay" in "Our Old Kentucky Home"—and race relations haven't been furthered one iota when some kilocycle thrush primly warbles, "the people are happy and gay."

Committee On Small Business Can Fulfill a Definite Need

Establishment of a Committee on Small Business as a permanent adjunct of the U. S. senate's committee line-up should give a ray of hope to this country's smaller entrepreneurs, who have been the victims of considerable economic buffeting in recent years.

There is a genuine need for such a committee, which will be assigned the study of small business enterprises and their problems. It will have no legislative jurisdiction other than to report its findings to the senate to aid in the enactment of remedial legislation.

It is greatly to be hoped, though, the committee will not become afflicted with the strange Fair Deal philosophy that on occasion leads to paternalistic protection of inefficient and poorly managed enterprises at the expense of more robust competitors who have attained leadership through sound planning and good management.

Paper-Festooned Fences Give Wayfarers Poor Impression

Don't know where all those papers that line the roadside fences south of the GMI plant come from. They always seem to abound in that neighborhood. We aren't suggesting the plant is their source; the GMI officials should know IF they are, or not. If the plant IS the source of the trash, we'd recommend a couple of hands be assigned to picking up the papers (if the plant ISN'T the source, rest assured Gene Woolley will tell us about it).

Should GMI establish complete innocence of all guilt, we feel it perhaps would be worthwhile for the Chamber of Commerce to invest a few odd shillings to pay for a clean-up expedition. With all that fence-hung litter decorating the south approach to town, a favorable impression of Belmond can hardly be expected.

One of our favorite "bright sayings" was that of a neighbor's tot who was urging his grandmother to make conversation with him. "All right. What will we talk about?" she asked. After sober consideration he replied, "I know! You say 'yes', Grandma, and I'll say 'no'." Have you ever run into him, in grown up version?

We once knew a sales instructor whose philosophy was "You throw enough mud on a wall, some of it bound to stick." We still suspect this was Senator McCarthy's method of operation. If so, it begins to look as if the gob he aimed at Owen Lattimore may "stick". We still don't approve of indiscriminate firing in the hope of hitting a worthwhile target—but if such is to be indulged in, at least it's a saving grace if a major "bull's eye" should be potted now and then.

We see where a young miner who called John L. Lewis a dictator and as a consequence has been suspended from the United Mine Workers' union since last January — and therefor, unemployed—now is deciding to back-track. Hickenlooper Explains Views That That Prompted His Vote on Kerr Bill

Last week in an editorial, the Independent expressed curiosity in regard to the reasoning Senator Bourke Hickenlooper and Rep. James I. Dolliver indulged in when they voted in favor of the much-discussed Kerr bill. This bill, passed by narrow margins by both houses of congress and subsequently vetoed by President Truman, would have exempted independent producers of natural gas from regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

In last Sunday's Open Forum section of the Des Moines Register appeared a letter from Senator Hickenlooper, in which he answers an attack directed against him by A. A. Couch (president of the Iowa Federation of Labor) for voting in favor of the Kerr bill. The portions of the letter concerned with the senator's convictions in regard to the bill are presented below.

As a summation of the Independent's analysis of the probable effect of the Kerr bill—and the reason why it should not have been passed—we (while conceding we find him a strange bedfellow) present, in brief, President Truman's explanation of his veto. The president declared he could not believe that competition would work to keep natural gas prices down to a reasonable level because "pipeline companies, and in turn the consumers of natural gas, are bound to the producers" by the "physical location of their pipelines."

We, also, question that the independent gas producers are so altruistic—or disunited—that they would refrain from taking advantage of the essential monopoly which these circumstances, in absence of FPC regulation, would create.

* * * *

This belief is clearly not shared by Senator Hickenlooper, who wrote:

At the present time the Federal Power Commission has authority over the rates charged by interstate pipe lines and these rates cannot be increased without the approval of the FPC.

The Kerr bill does not change this authority. Local regulatory bodies, such as state utilitiy commissions and city councils, have control over the rates charged by wholesalers to the consumers and these rates cannot be increased without their approval. The Kerr bill does not change this authority.

Therefore, no increase in the price of gas to the consumer, either before or after the Kerr bill, could be made without the full approval of the FPC and the public regulating bodies. This is certainly full protection for the consumer.

The Kerr bill prevents the FPC from reaching out and dictating the price at the well which the individual producer of natural gas, and there are thousands of them, must accept from the gatherer. This price has never been controlled in the past, and while it may fluctuate from time to time, nevertheless, the price of gas to the consumer has gone down steadily in the last 10 or 12 years until it is as cheap to the consumer now as coal or oil. In the same period, incidentally, coal and oil have both gone up substantially in price, but neither of these fuels are under any kind of control.

The fellow who goes out and takes a chance, with his own money, on producing a gas well has the right to bargain with the purchaser for the price he receives for gas at the well.

There is no evidence that any monopoly exists among the thousands of independent producers or that conspiracy exists among them either in restraint of trade or to fix unfair prices.

Mr. Couch should familiarize himself with the record and he would find that the same legislation was proposed by Representative Priest of Tennessee in 1947 (before Senator Kerr was elected) at which time the Federal Power Commission, itself, unanimously wrote as follows:

"The Federal Power Commission urges the enactment of this bill at this time to make it perfectly clear that independent producers and gatherers of natural gas are exempt from the provisions of the natural gas act and the the jurisdiction of this commission.

"The enactment of this bill would dispel the uncertainty regarding the status of such independent producers and gatherers which has been created following the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the interstate case. Such action by the congress now should dispose of this important and non-controversial matter."

Whenever there is monopoly and unfair price fixing among the independent producers of natural gas, or a reasonable threat of it, I shall vote to regulate them, but I shall support free competition as a basic principle of our American system as an incentive and inducement to enterprise. We need more gas fields opened up rather than to have exploration discouraged by government dictation and with an increased gas supply we can expect more competition from it in the fuel field and better service to the public.—B. B. Hickenlooper, Washington, D. C.

Starting Cost... or... Total Cost?

There's a big, difference in automatic gas water heaters!

Starting cost is first-price. Total cost is cost for the total months or years of the water heater's satisfactory operation.

1. Low starting cost and short life make a high total cost.
2. A starting cost that's a few dollars higher and a life many years longer combine to make a lower total cost.

The Ruud-Monel Automatic Gas Water Heater is engineered and built for long life. Its extra years of perfect service quickly repay the few extra dollars of first price to make the total or real cost well below price-built, performance-shy water heaters.

Ruud-Monel lasts longer and by lasting longer, costs less—much less. Gallon-for-gallon, year-for-year, dollar-for-dollar, it's the best investment in water heater satisfaction and economy.

'We Give Lucky Bucks' and that's not all!

That solid Ruud-Monel tank can't rust, so its hot water is sparkling-clear, completely rust-free. Ruud-Monel has extra temperatures (all the way to 180 degrees) for whiter white washes and special uses. Performance-Ratings are highest in the Ruud line. Each is Performance-Proved for long life. Extra-liberal, comprehensive preferred-protection plan.

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS OF the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman . . . upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have braz[illegible] rejected them. They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

> "The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good . . .
> "Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good..."

PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT

Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

> "The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."
> "The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation . . ."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

Persons who might have been occupying those empty seats at the Monday night performance of the Fort Dodge Men's Civic Glee club have only themselves to blame for missing one of the outstanding musical events of the year in Belmond. It was indeed too bad that a capacity audience instead of an approximate half-filled house didn't hear the excellent concert.

The home-folks really gave Bud Trafford a rousing welcome on his return as a member of the chorus. When the quartet, of which he is a member, was engaged in a number they were abruptly interrupted by the entry of a brass band with attendants bearing placards which expressed the high esteem in which Belmond holds this native son. Chamber of Commerce President George Infelt, after a few appropriate words, presented Bud with a key to the city—and gave corsages to Bud's wife and mother, Mrs. W. H. Trafford, as "the ones most responsible for Bud's success."

It's difficult to select outstanding contributors to the evening's success because the entertainment was so consistenly fine. Special mention should, however, be made of the skilled directing of Clayton C. Hathaway. Certainly no one could be a member of a musical group led by him without pouring heart and soul into every note. He's GOOD!

As if the recent Alaskan weather weren't enough to keep a person glowering at his best friends, the force at P and G Grocery found an extra fly of blue-bottle proportions swimming in their soup last Friday.

For no apparent reason other than pure cussedness, a whole section of display shelves suddenly collapsed, leaving the staff with a clean-up job that lasted well into the evening . . . As the feller on the radio sings, "Life gets 'tedjus', don't it?" "Life gets 'tedjus', don't it?"

—M-S—

And speaking of winged critters in the chowder, we drew one of our own last week in trying to bring you the very latest, up-to-the-minute news. We'd been informed that Mrs. Veronica Barry was due to become the new president of the county American Legion Auxiliary on the day the Independent hit the street.

The incumbent officials knew it was Woolstock's turn, actually, to have the top officers—but that unit had refused the honor for a number of years hand-running. So, in alphabetical order, after (W)oolstock comes (B)elmond—and the unit members here had been told to make their selection for president.

So what happens? This time Woolstock DOESN'T refuse the honor and the down-south unit submits a candidate, who is automatically elected. And we're caught with our headlines showing. Oh, well! Mrs. Barry WAS elected vice president—and SHOULD be elected president NEXT year. But we'll tell you about it AFTER it happens!

—M-S—

Remember our telling you how disappointed Duane Sandage was when his all-sophomore FFA parliamentary procedure team won the right to compete in the state contest? Duane felt certain the boys weren't ready for state competition yet — and having qualified once, they would not be eligible for future state contests as a parliamentary team.

Well, a story elsewhere on the front page tells just how much Instructor Sandage under-rated his proteges. Not only did they walk off with a gold medal at Cedar Rapids, but they were the only entry from the entire North Central District to achieve this distinction.

Duane now says philosophically, "Well, if I hadn't been so pessimistic about their chances, probably the boys wouldn't have worked so hard between the district contest and time for the state contest. AND, if they HADN'T worked so hard, they certainly never would have gotten that gold medal."

Two other distinctions fell to the lot of the five sophs. They were picked to present a parliamentary demonstration before the entire convention; and they were selected by radio station WMT to participate in a wire-recorded interview, which will be broadcast sometime next week. Sorry we can't yet announce the day, but Mr. Sandage will be informed several days in advance so the boys, their families and friends can tune in.

Jim Riekens Will Head Belmond's FFA Chapter

At a meeting of the Belmond chapter of Future Farmers of America held Monday, Jim Riekens was elected to head the organization during the 1950-51 school year.

Other officers elected were: Alvin Halfpap, vice president; Louis Oberhauser, secretary; Clelan Redmond, treasurer; Marlyn Wattermiller, reporter; and Calvin Dorenkamp, sentinel.

Editor W. Earl Hall Will Give Commencement Speech May 24

W. Earl Hall, managing editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette, has been engaged to present the commencement address before the 1950 Belmond High school graduating class at the auditorium on the evening of May 24. Supt. Don Faris also has announced that Rev. J. Heber Miller, pastor of the Methodist church, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon on the preceding Sunday, May 21.

The complete program of graduation activities will appear later.

Although he took over the pastorate of the Belmond church only last July, the Rev. Mr. Miller is already too familiar a figure in the community to require an introduction. A native Oklahoman, he is a graduate of Southwestern college at Winfield, Kan., and took his ministerial training at Garret Bible Institute, Evanston, Ill.

Most residents of north central Iowa are almost as familiar with Mr. Hall and his innumerable activities as if he were a "home-towner." Born near Jefferson, he graduated from the schools there and received his B. A. degree from Iowa U. In 1916 he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by Cornell college.

After service in World War I, Mr. Hall entered the field of journalism, in which he has acquired an enviable reputation. After a stint with the Milwaukee Journal, he came to the Mason City paper as managing editor in 1920 at the age of 22. He was a correspondent in the European war theatre in 1944; and in 1946 he was designated by the Iowa Press association as an Iowa "Master Editor."

His public services have been many and varied. He served as state commander of the American Legion in 1932-33. Mr. Hall was first president of the Iowa Safety Council, acting in that capacity from 1934 through '39; was vice president of the National Safety Council, 1944-48; and was chairman of the public support committee of the President's Highway Safety Conference in 1949.

From 1937 through 1949 he was a member of the Iowa state board of education; in 1941 he was on the Carnegie fact-finding commission to South America; and from 1942 to '45 he was Iowa member of the national advisory committee on wartime censorship.

The wide span of Mr. Hall's interests can best be summed up by reference to his primary hobbies; they are weatherlore—and barbershop quartet singing!

Dance Tonight At Country Club

The lid will be pried off Clarmond Country club's 1950 social season this evening when a dance will be held at the club house, starting at 9:00 o'clock. Of course, the first stag was held last week, but the distaff side doesn't generally consider that a social event.

An aggregation bearing the nom-de-jive of "The Country Clubbers" will provide music for the festive occasion. The five-piece orchestra boasts an attractive young lady soloist to lend additional glamour to its offerings.

Women to Meet May 12 to Form Voters' League

All women of this community who are interested in the League of Women Voters are urged to attend the organization meeting to be held on Friday afternoon, May 12, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Clark McNeal. Temporary committees, which were appointed several weeks ago, have meanwhile met and drawn up a set of by-laws suitable for use by a league working toward the best interests of Belmond, as well as on state and national issues.

The League of Women Voters, in existence for about 30 years, has been guided by the basic principles of non-partisanship and action in the public interest. Its officers or board members do not hold prominent party positions and leagues may be disaffiliated for partisan activity.

All women citizens are invited to become members so that no single group of professional, economic, political or social description predominates. Through these varying points of view, the League is a practicing democracy. It aims to alert the citizen to the fact that politics is HIS job and shows him how to do his job effectively.

The League accomplishes its work through service to voters by furnishing information about

Lem Long 1950 President Of Softball Association

Lem Long was elected president of the city softball association at a meeting held Tuesday evening at Elliott's Hardware. Edward "Moke" Obrecht was named vice president, and Bud Boelman was made secretary-treasurer.

Six teams have been lined up, with the following sponsors: John Deere (Farmers Implement), General Mills, Elliott's Hardware, Mello Maid, Helland and Long and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Another meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday at Helland and Long Implement. Sponsors are particularly urged to be present. Final discussion will be held on the schedule and choice of playing field.

Statement Shows City Receipts Up --It's Deceiving

According to the city financial statement for the period of March 31, 1949 to April 1, 1950 Belmond received from the county tax levy in those 12 months some $5,000 more than in the similar period of a year earlier. Last year's financial report showed receipts of $13,063.84, and this year's $18,195.98. However, that doesn't mean that Belmond has $5,000 more to do with than it had on April 1, 1949.

This pleasant but misleading impression derives from the fact that tax collections were delayed in the spring of last year due to a "foul up" regarding the World War II bonus. Actually, receipts from the county were somewhat short in '49 and somewhat long in the fiscal year just ended.

The statement did show a bit more money from some sources however. Under division of state road funds as set up last July, the cities get somewhat more for their streets. In '49 the amount from the state was $3,249.54—this year it was $5,417.97.

Also the amount from beer permits was increased by $625—to $1,500; and receipts from cigaret permits was increased $328—to $2,175.

Another item that gives the incorrect impression that city receipts were higher is the $2,787.98 from voluntary sewer assessments. This was strictly an "in one pocket and out of the other" proposition, involving the Third Street sewers.

All in all, city finances are running just about the same as in recent years.

Local FFA Team Rates Gold Medal

Belmond's all-sophomore parliamentary procedure team at the FFA state convention last week at Cedar Rapids won a triple distinction in earning a gold-medal rating in their particular competition.

They comprised the only sophomore team of Future Farmers to win a top rating; they were the only representatives of a newly-formed chapter to walk off with a gold medal; and they were the only entry from the entire North Central district to win top rating in a contest.

Alvin Halfpap, Lawrence Ziller, Donald Ketchum, Fred Loats and Jim Riekens make up the team. The boys competed against 11 other district contest winners from all over the state. Only two other teams were awarded the gold medal rating.

Adviser Duane Sandage is very proud of his boys' performance. He reports that they really got in some stiff training between the time of the district contest, two weeks earlier, and last week's state contest—which was largely responsible for their ranking with experienced Sac City and Indianola teams as best in the state.

Wall plaques were presented to each of the three teams.

Two Future Farmers from this vicinity — Norman Stromer of Garner and Russell Schaub of Northwood—were among those awarded the degree of Iowa Farmer. Since candidates have to have a full year as Greenhands and another year as Chapter Farmers, no members of the year-old Belmond chapter were eligible for this honor. Mr. Sandage plans to have some good candidates in the running next year, however.

Mother of Coach Scott Passes Away at Age 70

Mrs. Jennie Scott of Williamson, mother of Coach Jim Scott, passed away on Monday morning of this week. She was 70 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott had gone to Williamson on Saturday in response to a call regarding his mother's serious condition.

Funeral services were to be held this (Thursday) afternoon, Coach Scott informed Supt. Don Faris in a phone conversation Monday, but he did not state the time and place the services would be held.

Hospital Board Members Active

During the past week, hospital board representatives consulted with state health department officials at Des Moines, interviewed one architectural firm and made arrangements to confer with three other firms interested in providing plans for the new Belmond community hospital.

With all this activity pointing toward the promptest possible start on actual construction, members of the finance committee repeat their request that hospital pledges be paid to Treasurer A. C. Hanson immediately. It is stressed that all plans hinge on collection of pledges, so payment is essential to assure further progress on the project.

On Thursday of last week Gene Woolley, planning board chairman, and John Greenlander and George Hake of the building committee went to Des Moines to confer with R. C. Hanlon, director of the state health department's hospital division. They learned what phases of the project would require state approval and were assured the complete cooperation of Mr. Hanlon's office.

On Tuesday of this week, five members of the planning board met with a representative of Thorson and Thorson, Forest City architects who designed the Belmond gymnasium, to discuss plans. They also obtained his views in regard to the sites under consideration.

In the very near future, representatives of three other architectural firms will visit Belmond to obtain data necessary to submit bids. These firms are Morgan and Gelatt of Burlington, Buettler of Sioux City and Long and Thorshov of Minneapolis.

HELLO WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kinseth of Decorah are the parents of a seven-pound, two ounce daughter, who was born last Wednesday, April 26. She has been named Julie Ann.

Set 'Em Up Again! Milk's Cheaper Now

Whaddya know! The price of somethin' is going DOWN!

Tracy Dairy and Belmond Cooperative Creamery in an advertisement in this issue announce that, effective today (Thursday) their prices on both milk and cream are taking a substantial drop.

Two cents will be clipped off the previous price of a quart of milk, bringing it down to 15; and eight cents is being lopped off the price of a gallon, reducing it to 56. Whipping cream will be three cents cheaper, or 24 cents for a half pint; and coffee cream comes down to 17 cents, a two-cent reduction.

New Seats, Lighting Fixtures, Paint Spruce Up Classrooms

Probably few Belmond taxpayers realize it, but besides paying for teachers, books and classroom equipment their school tax mills are also paying for a program of classroom modernization that has been in progress for some five or six years.

By purchasing new lighting fixtures, new seats and applying new paint jobs a relative few at a time, the school officials have kept the cost from being heavy in any one year—but they've been accomplishing a good deal.

When systematic purchase of new seats was begun around 1944, nearly all the desks in the school were relics from the old building which was Belmond's high school prior to construction of the present one in 1916.

According to Supt. Don Faris, some of the desks still in use are probably 35 to 50 years old. There's a good start, now, toward replacing the antiques with attractive, light-weight, portable desks of the latest design. Currently about 40 new seats are purchased each year, at a cost of about $1,000. Mr. Faris estimates another five or six years will be required to complete the seat-replacement program.

Probably even more important than the new seating has been the installation of new lighting fixtures. This program was inaugurated in the fall of 1946, after an illumination engineer had been employed to survey the entire school and present plans as to what lighting would be required to provide ideal artificial light in every room.

First room to benefit by the program to provide scientifically correct illumination was the high school study hall. Since that job was done in 1946-47, five rooms on the first floor and two on the third have been equipped with fluorescent lighting fixtures. Cost of this project runs approximately $700 each year, and Superintendent Faris estimates that lighting throughout the school will have been modernized within another three years.

To demonstrate how effective the correctly spaced fluorescent lights illuminate a room, Mr. Faris put an exposure meter to work—first in a room still lit by old-fashioned incandescent bu

How much contrast there is between the antiquated seats that are being "weeded out" of Belmond's schoolrooms and the attractive new models that are being added is shown above. In the two old seats in the rear of the first row are Jerry Frohling and Robert Lee. Occupying the new seats are Patty Hensel, Steven lley and Gary Luick.

Kirksville Teachers Graduate Hired as New Football Coach

DONALD MERRITT

Donald Merritt, 21, who was graduated from Northeast Missouri State Teachers college at Kirksville in March, has been named by the school board to succeed Lloyd Patterson as Belmond High school football coach and industrial arts instructor.

Seymour is the new mentor's home town, as it is Patterson's. However, Mr. Merritt received his high school diploma the spring before Supt. Don Faris started his two-year stint as Seymour superintendent — five years ago; so that Don was known to Mr. Faris only by reputation prior to last Thursday, when the new coach visited Belmond.

Mr. Merritt was promptly hired after he'd been interviewed by members of the school board during his appearance here. He comes to Belmond highly recommended by members of the Kirksville athletic department, who only with reluctance permitted him to seek a job elsewhere.

"If funds had been available, we would certainly have kept Don here as a full-time assistant," said Athletic Director Jim Dougherty in a phone conversation with your reporter. "Not only was his athletic record here outstanding, but he was a leader in campus activities. If ever I was certain of one of my boys making a success in the coaching field, I'm sure Don will."

Don lettered in football for three years at the Missouri school and twice in basketball. He was deprived of a third cage letter when a broken collar bone in the final football game last fall kept him out of action during the basketball season just completed.

His coach described him as a really outstanding halfback. Last year he was named on the second all-star team of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic association, of which Kirksville is a member.

His other extra-curricular activities included membership on the student council and in the Blue Key, national collegiate service organization.

Don is an ex-serviceman. He spent 17 months in the Army, from August of 1946 to the end of December, 1947.

Eager to see his fellow-townsman make good in his first coaching assignment, "Pat" Patterson has turned over to Don all the plays the Broncos have used the past three years so it will be unnecessary for gridders returning next fall to adapt themselves to an entirely new style of plays.

Mason City Man Leases 'Studie's'

Rodney Urdahl, lately of Mason City, has leased Studebaker's recreation parlor and is now actively conducting the business. He was previously a salesman-deliveryman for the Mason City Coca-Cola Bottling company.

A Mason City High school graduate in 1941, Mr. Urdahl entered the Merchant Marine Academy at Kingspoint, N. Y. during the war and completed his cadet's course in August of 1946.

Altogether he was in the maritime service for nearly four years; he signed on for his first ship duty in January of 1943 and left the merchant marine in November of 1946. He held Second Mate papers at the time he returned to Iowa.

From the end of '46 until he took his job with the bottling company in 1948, Mr. Urdahl was a construction foreman with the North Iowa Steel company.

Washing Machine Bid In Friday By Frederick Suntken

A crowd estimated at 350 to 400 braved last Friday night's frigid weather to battle with bucks for the 27 items offered for bids at the first Lucky Buck auction.

In spite of the relatively small gathering and the short time the public had had to accumulate auction money, the bidding was spirited and it took an offer of $3,000 in Lucky Bucks to win Frederick Suntken the Maytag washer that was No. 1 item on the sale list.

It is anticipated that — if the weatherman cooperates—a much larger turn-out will be on hand at the library corner come 8:00 p. m. this Friday. The Lucky Buck stunt has plainly caught the public's fancy and some red-hot bidding is in prospect at the next and succeeding auctions.

Shirley Lieuwen May Fete Queen

Crowning of Shirley Lieuwen as Queen will be the major highlight of the May Fete which is to be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the gymnasium. Chosen for this honor by vote of the high school student body, Miss Lieuwen will be crowned by Virgil Bunjer, senior president.

Other girls who were candidates for Queen, who will serve as Miss Lieuwen's attendants, are Mary Negrete, Marion Loats, Joyce Waddington and Darlene Hanson.

The fete is under the direction of Mildred Henry, girls' physical education instructor, and Coach Lloyd Patterson. It will include tumbling, gymnastics, rope-jumping, drills, relays, games, folk dancing and square dancing. All classes from kindergarten through high school will participate.

The program will open with a processional of senior girls, followed by the coronation ceremony. A May Pole Dance by the eighth grade girls will be the concluding event.

WANTED—HOMES FOR FIVE COLLIE PUPS

Kids, if you can convince Mom and Dad that you really NEED a puppy—what with summer vacation coming up, and all—there are five cuddly collie pups out at the farm of Miss Cloe Jenison, who very badly need homes.

Miss Jenison says that she must dispose of the litter and she'd prefer to place them where they'd have good homes, rather than getting rid of them any other way.

So if you can talk your folks into taking you out to Miss Jenison's, a mile and a half north of the east end of Main street, you can take your pick — as long as the pups last. Mom or Dad must come along—or no pup.

DOG

A Great Dane dog belonging to Elmer Lindhart at Humboldt broke through the ice on the river there recently. Mrs. Lindhart broke through the ice up to her knees trying to get the dog out but was unable to reach him. Finally, while on the verge of exhaustion, "Major" climbed out under his own power.

THUMB

While attempting to hitch a horse to a post, Ray Clark of near Knoxville lost part of his thumb. The horse jerked and a loop in which Mr. Clark's thumb was caught tightened up and amputated it just below the nail.

Russell Dougherty, manager of the store, says the spoons will be available in any one of four patterns and are made by Holmes and Edwards division of International Silver.

"These gifts are simply our way of saying 'congratulations and best wishes for the future' to the graduating girls of Belmond and the other four communities," Russ said in announcing the gifts last week.

Improved Lighting, New Seats Spruce Up Classrooms

In the first room, a dark corner produced a reading of 10 candle-power and a "well lit" area 45 candle-power. It was mid-afternoon and the sky was overcast, but the day was not entirely gloomy. In the correctly lighted room, a reading in the dimmest part of the room pushed the needle to 60, and in the center of the room the pointer "hit 1,000" on the exposure meter—that is to say, it whipped to the 75 mark, which was as far as it could go.

According to the lighting engineer, illumination in a room lit only by artificial light should not fall below 32 candle-power. The newly equipped rooms all meet this minimum with a good margin to spare. In the bulb-lit rooms at night the candle-power varies from 10 to 30, depending on how far the area tested is from the nearest light source.

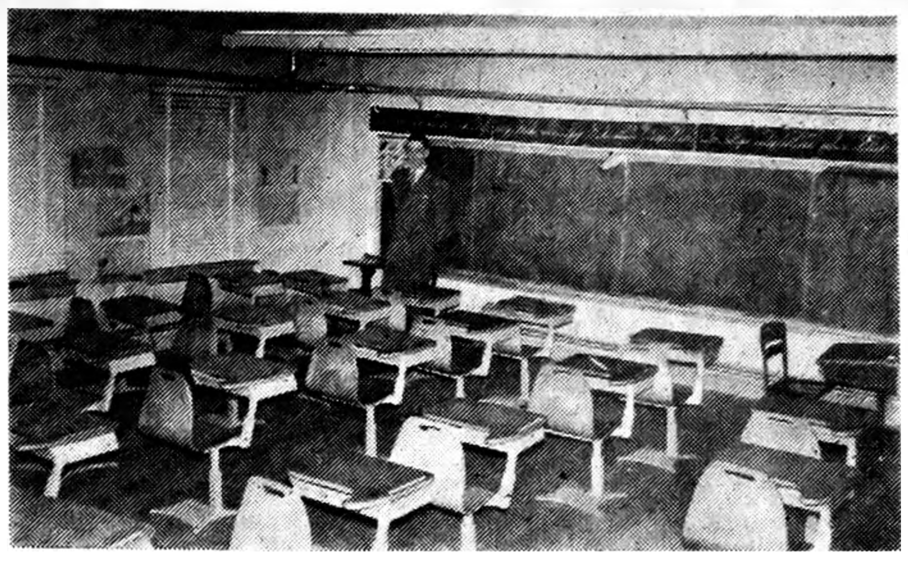
Superintendent Faris takes particular pride in a room that has been reclaimed from mere storage space to serve as a classroom. It is in the basement, and before getting "the treatment" it was dark, gloomy and generally unpleasant. Now, properly illumined, equipped with up-to-date "blond" desks and the walls attractively painted in light shades, it is as cheerful a room as could be desired.

The old grays, buffs and greens that used to be characteristic of schoolrooms are being replaced with attractive pastel shades as the painting program progresses.

White, or very light, ceilings reflect the light of the fluorescent tubes to make a large part of the classroom lighting indirect. Light colors, but a bit deeper than the ceilings, are applied to all the walls but the front one. The latter is painted a darker shade to eliminate any possibility of glare.

Mr. Faris feels that a good deal has been accomplished——without fracturing the school budget. Anyone taking a "guided tour" of the improved rooms will readily agree. And by the time that the lighting and seating projects are completed (of course the room-painting is a year-by-year matter, on a rotation basis), Belmond should have as well-lit and attractively furnished classrooms as you'd find anywhere.

* * * *



This 3rd and 4th grade room, which Supt. Don Faris proudly surveys, was serving no purpose other than storage space before a thorough clean-up, fresh paint and installation of new seats and modern lighting fixtures transformed it into a pleasant classroom.

Replica of Liberty Bell Scheduled to Visit Here On Bond Tour, June 14th

A majority of Iowa residents will have an opportunity to view an exact copper replica of the historic Liberty Bell when it tours the state during the Independence drive from May 15 through July 4.

Roger F. Warin, state director of the savings bonds division, announced today that a Ford truck, loaned for the tour, will carry the bell to 105 cities and towns in 83 counties.

The Liberty Bell replica is tentatively scheduled to visit Belmond on June 14. Only other stop in Wright county will be at Clarion on the same date.

"School children, as well as most adults, have an ambition to see the Liberty Bell, but relatively few Iowa residents have had an oportunity to visit Philadelphia to se the original. The replica can be rung and has the same tone the original Liberty Bell had before it cracked," Warin says.

WOMEN TO MEET--

candidates, get-out-the-vote campaigns, discussion of live issues, and similar means. It also carries on a program of study among its members. A few important issues are selected on each level of government and each is covered thoroughly.

It is now working nationally on three things: a strong United Nations, international reconstruction and world trade, and the federal budget. In the states it concerns itself with such problems as education, social welfare and taxation.

In local government it concentrates on issues which arise out of the fundamental needs of the community, such as housing, public school improvement and city government.

As of 1949, the League numbered 89,000 members in 720 widely scattered communities. It is supported by dues of its members and by men and women who consider contributions toward its work as an investment in democracy.

Those fostering the League of Women Voters in Belmond believe that it will give the women of this community an opportunity to become well-informed on vital issues of the day and through affiliation with a national group, to make their opinions part of a force for good.

There will be no written or telephoned invitations, other than from one friend to another, so all women are urged to consider this publicity as a personal invitation to attend the meeting next week.

Daryl Hansons Pay Visit To Headquarters of U. N.

Mr. and Mrs. Daryl L. Hanson, formerly of Belmond, recently visited the Headquarters of the United Nations at Lake Success.

Upon arriving at Headquarters, they found themselves in a converted plant, for the temporary home of the United Nations is in a portion of the Sperry-Gyroscope plant. Partitions set up in the old assembly line area have provided office space for the international secretariat, numbering some 3,000.

The problem of languages in the meeting is solved, the Hansons report, by using simultaneous interpretation. By this means one may put on earphones and, over a radio receiving set, "tune in" to one of the five official languages — Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish.

The remarks of a speaker are heard by interpreters who sit in glassed-in booths and simultaneously translate the words of the speaker into one of the languages.

FPC Turns Thumbs Down On Northern's Gas Boost

Natural gas rate increases publicly announced last week by the Northern Natural Gas company were suspended on Thursday by the Federal Power Commission.

According to FPC, the proposed rate increases would have cost wholesale customers of the company about $3,200,000 annually. A hearing on the proposal will be held at a date yet to be set by the commission.

Manager Cecil Carstens of the Central States Electric office could not advise the Independent as to whether his company was among the 15 wholesale customers of Northern Gas which filed protests against the increase. In addition to these protests, objections were filed with the commission by 11 cities and the League of Nebraska Municipalities.

Broncos Beaten In Ball Tourney

Belmond was eliminated in the first round of the state sectional baseball tournament here Monday afternoon by Rowan, 5 to 4, after the Broncos had led by a 4-3 count entering the sixth inning.

After pitching a nice game for five innings, Curt Mennenga got into trouble in the sixth with one down when two walks and an error were converted into a couple of runs on a hit by Knuths. When Belmond was unable to score in their half of the seventh, the unearned tallies meant the ball game.

Mennenga allowed only one other walk besides the two fatal ones, and struck out three. Daryl Boelman pitched the last two-thirds of the sixth frame. Sonny Greenfield was catcher for Belmond.

Olsen, Rowan moundsman, struck out six but walked 10 men. Aldrich was his receiver.

In the second game Monday, Franklin Consolidated of Latimer whipped Goodell 5 to to 1. Borcherding, hurling for the winners, gave up only three hits, struck out six and issued only two walks. Hanson caught.

Gene Robbins pitched good ball for the losers, allowing only four hits and three walks, while fanning eight men. However, five Goodell errors cancelled his effectiveness on the mound. Boller was receiver for Goodell.

Wednesday afternoon Alexander was to meet Dows and Rowan was to oppose Franklin in the semi-finals. The final game is scheduled for Friday at 3:30 p. m.

Monday's summaries:

Statement Shows Wright Paid $60,197 on Bonuses

At a meeting of the county board of supervisors held Monday at Clarion the semi-annual settlement with the state treasurer was read, showing that the state in 1948 received from the Wright county levy for the World War II Soldiers' Bonus a total of $60,197.22.

As other business at the meeting, the board approved the bonds of Gerald W. Campbell and Kenneth Mosher of Clarion, thereby making official their appointment as special sheriff deputies for duty exclusively at Lakeview Ballroom on Lake Cornelia.

Stark Given "30 Days"; Arrested on Two Counts

Milo Stark of Clarion was arrested Monday by Patrolman Harland Sievers at the junction of County K and Highway 3 on charges of operating a motor vehicle without a license and operating the same while intoxicated.

Stark's latest previous brush with the law occurred last fall in Belmond when he was picked up for intoxication. He had had his driver's license lifted some time prior to that occasion.

In the justice court of O. E. McGahy at Clarion on Tuesday Stark was sentenced to 30 days in jail for driving without a license. On the OMVI charge—the second such count filed against him—he was bound over to the grand jury for hearing after he has completed the jail sentence.

FILES FOR DIVORCE

Petition was filed in district court last Thursday by Floyd L. Wirtz of Belmond from Eva M. Wirtz on a charge of cruel and inhuman treatment.

BELMOND HAS THREE CANDIDATES RUNNING FOR STATE OFFICES

Three of the four Wright county candidates who by last Wednesday's deadline had filed for state offices in the coming primary election on June 5 are members of the Belmond community, according to the candidate lists released by Secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst.

Included in the trio is Rodney Urdahl, who lately leased Studebaker's recreation parlor. He is an unopposed Democratic candidate for nomination as state senator from the 37th District, which includes Hamilton and Harding counties in addition to Wright.

Mr. Urdahl has been active in the Young Democrats organization the past few years and is currently a Third District committeeman, by recent appointment. Before moving to Belmond a couple of weeks ago he was secretary-treasurer of the Cerro Gordo county Young Democrats.

Two candidates for state representative are from this community — Clark McNeal, candidate for the Republican nomination; and Vernon, McLaughlin, unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination. Mr. McNeal has been active in Republican circles for a number of years and Mr. McLaughlin has been similarly active in Democratic politics.

The fourth Wright county candidate, George F. Peterson, who farms four miles west of Clarion, is also a candidate for nomination to the office of state representative on the Republican ballot. His announcement for office appears in the Independent for the first time today.

Mr. Peterson has lived near Clarion all his life and at present operates a 240-acre farm. He is a member of the Clarion Presbyterian church and has taken part in Farm Bureau activities. He is married and has four children; one son is in the Coast Guard and stationed in Alaska.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Kelley of Davenport came Saturday to James went back to Davenport visit relatives and friends.

Kanawha News

By Mrs. D. L. Wilkie

WHITE ROBIN SEEN, SHOT AT KANAWHA

Donald Carpenter of Kanawha sighted a white robin last week, got his gun and shot it. The bird had a white back but had a breast of normal brownish-red. It is assumed it was an albino.

He brought the bird to his school class and the teacher, Mrs. Mascia, reports that the class is having the robin mounted so anyone may view it.

(Ed's Note: There is a very good possibility that more people might have seen the robin had it remained alive and going about its business than will bother to view the unfortunate bird stuffed and in a classroom.)

Mr. and Mrs. Truman Nelson and family of Boone, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Maland and family of Charles City, Mr. and Mrs. Lismore Maland, and Mr. and Mrs. Omar Maland and Sharon Sarber and Miss Evelina Maland helped Mrs. E. J. Maland celebrate her birthday anniversary Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Johnson have moved in with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gundvel Johnson, until Roger's house is ready for occupancy at Hanna. He has charge of the Davis elevator at Hanna.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roskamp, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Roskamp and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seebeck spent Thursday evening at the parental George Roskamp home, the occasion being George Roskamp's birthday anniversary.

Wrastlin~ Is an Honest Sport, But Love is a Different Story

By BILLY ROSE

The other night at Lindy's, I was introduced to a Popocatepetl of a man named Ezaklios Pappanokiyulikos, the Greek wrestler—better known to the toe-hold set as the Hooded Cobra.

"You inressid in wrastling?" the mash-and-maul artist asked pleasantly.

"Not particularly," I said. "I hear tell the business is full of crooks."

"Is wrong," said the Cobra. "In United Schnapes, wrastling is mos' honest sport what can be. Why? Because no wan bet. Is lak betting on feenish of musical comedy show."

"What makes you think people don't bet on musical comedy shows?" I said. "But never mind, go on."

"Only place wrastling is crooked sometime in Sout' America," the Cobra continued. "Frinstance, Ecuador, where tree months ago I ween plenny money by losing."

Billy Rose

"I am amaze," I said.

"Is funny story," said Ezaklios. "Day before I wrastle Aloicio Macombo, champ of Quito, Senor Ramon, matchmaker, walk een my hotel room. Ramon is beeg shot in Ecuador.

"'Poot on show twanny, twanny-fife minoot,' he says. 'Then Aloicio weel take fall for you. Mak it bear-hug an' body-press.'

"I cannot believe ears. I say: 'You want me to beat champ?'

"He say: 'That is only way you gat return match. Mak sure no mistake. I bet plenty for you to win.'

"NIGHT OF MATCH, when I walk down aisle, crowd have bottles, is boo, want kill me. When Aloicio comes in, they chuck flowers an' cheer.

"Everybody is bet on champ—poor, rich, Spaneesh, Indians — an' theese mak me sad. I am honest man an' do not like cheatin' poor, ignorant peoples. So I decide to be fair and lose—I even bet all I got on Aloicio.

"Well, at first is very good match. For twanny minoot we poosh, mak noises an' stick fingers in eyes. An' then Aloicio says, 'Is too hot to wrastle more. I take fall soon.'

"I am smart an' say nothing, an' minute later I fall on back with Aloicio on top. But Aloicio is smart, too. 'Oh, no,' he says, an' begins to fight dirty. An' before raferee can count tree, he twist my arm round his head so I got headlock. Then he geeve jerk, mak like he trip over my leg, an' fall on hees head. Only he fall harder than he think an' gats very deezy.

"Queeck, I jump on heem, making beeg tangle weeth arms and legs— no one can tell who got who. Then I' feenish up on my back. Raferee counts tree, announces Aloicio ween, an' crowd go crazy."

WASN'T SENOR Ramon sore?" I asked.

"I no wait for Ramon," explained the Cobra. "I slip out of the arena, then out of town, then out of Ecuador . . . ."

Just then, a good-looking woman pushed her way through Mr. Lindy's revolving door, spotted the wrestler at my table, and began jaberwockying away at him in Spanish.

"Wait for me in car, babies," Ezaklios said, affectionately. "I am weeth you in minoot."

"Who's the lady?" I asked, when we were alone again.

"Wife of Senor Ramon," said the Cobra. "When she gat final divorce, she become Meesus Pappanokiyulikos."

"I thought you said wrestling was an honest sport," I said.

"Wrastling, yes," said Ezaklios. "Love, my frien', of course, is horse of different collar."

Farmers to Hear Of Proposed Soil Experiment Farm

Sixteen counties in the Clarion-Webster soil area are working together to establish an experimental farm upon which research can be done on drainage and erosion control best adapted to these soil types.

A meeting has been announced by Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director, for this evening at the courtroom in Clarion at which the project will be explained. The meeting will start at 8:00 o'clock and a large number of farmers who have shown past interest in soil conservation have been invited to attend.

"Since practically no research has been done in the Webster-Clarion soil area on tile drainage and erosion control, the sponsors of this project feel it can mean much to the future progress of agriculture in Wright county," says Mr. Bowman.

Wright county sponsoring organizations include the county PMA committee, Farm Bureau, extension service and the soil district commissioners. Actual research on the proposed farm would be carried on by the Iowa State college research station. It will in no way conflict with research being carried on at the Kanawha experiment station, the sponsors emphasize.

The last step completing change-over to the dial system will be started next Monday by Central Telephone company, according to Manager Lloyd Bruner, when transfer of major equipment from the old telephone building to Belmond's new exchange building begins. The process will require about three or four days.

Manager Bruner says that postal cards have been mailed to all subscribers in Belmond, Alexander, Goodell, Meservey and Rowan explaining that service between these communities will be affected during the moving period and explaining how inter-town calls should be placed during that interim.

Movement of equipment will start Monday at 1:00 p. m. Every effort will be made to complete the transfer as quickly as possible. New directories will be issued soon afterward, listing all dial numbers — and the special numbers phone users in other towns will use to reach Belmond subscribers.

We Like A Man Who Speaks Out To Defend His Point of View

There appears on this page a letter received by the Independent from Rep. James I. Dolliver defending his vote in favor of the much-discussed Kerr gas bill. While some of his reasons are not convincing to us, we certainly must concede that his vote was well-considered and we do not question his good faith in voting the way he did.

In a bill as controversial as the one proposed by Senator Kerr, there are many "IF's" involved. And in defending a stand on either side of the question, assumptions must be made as to what the actual effect would be if the legislation passed.

For example, Mr. Dolliver writes, "We were assured by people who know the natural gas industry that the enactment of the legislation would not increase the cost of gas to the consumer." On the other hand, there are many individuals who felt there was good reason to believe the contrary.

And Mr. Dolliver writes further, " . . the (federal power) commission threatened to make rulings which would virtually put them (producers of natural gas) out of business." The Third District representative obviously felt that such drastic action might conceivably occur if the Kerr bill were defeated. We can't see it as even a remote possibility.

However, we feel that Mr. Dolliver plainly indicated by his kind letter to us that he IS interested in the viewpoints of his constituents, and that his primary aim is to represent us to the very best of his ability. Notwithstanding such isolated instances of disagreement as the one above, we further feel that Jim Dolliver is "doing right by us" in Congress and hope that he may continue to represent this district.

P. S.—We hope this final comment on the Kerr bill will serve to bury the issue—which with President Truman's veto became a dead one, at least for the time being.

An "Economy Plank" Presents GOP With A Tough Problem

The 1950 "off-year" election should be an invaluable testing ground for the Republican party in estimating the progress—if any—that it has made toward recapturing popular support of nation's voters. If no significant gains are made, it will require no blueprint to prove how much building remains to be done if the party is to create a substantial platform for the big doin's in 1952.

At present, one of the most obvious potential planks is "economy"; and never was there a more awkward plank to handle. Whatever way it's pushed and shoved to make it fit, it is bound to black some eyes and gouge some shins — for the only way economy can be effected is at the expense of specific "vested interests."

There are few who will question the necessity of keeping up the nation's military strength and continuing to foster domestic enterprise throughout the world. The only place that wisdom will permit wholesale reductions in expense is in government functions that at present are duplicated or inefficiently administered.

This certainly does not mean that there is no waste or inefficiency in the administration of the defense or state departments, but the prevailing international situation makes any drastic cut in these budgets improbable—and, possibly, undesirable.

Consequently, the GOP is faced with the unhappy task of suggesting how economies can be effected, without thereby alienating such large blocs of voters that the cure will be as undesirable as the ailment. There's no doubt about it—that "economy plank" is going to be a tough one to fashion.

Financing of Summer Recreation Needs Some Careful Study

There seems to be few arguments against the desirability of a summer recreation program for Belmond's school children, but the problem of how the program is to be financed has the PTA—its sponsor—more than a little disturbed at present.

Some funds were raised for the peewee baseball activities, through bringing the colored basball team to town for a benefit game, but this money was more or less ear-marked for lighting the ball diamond to make night games possible. If the benefit proceeds are devoted to their intended purpose, the PTA will be left with only some $285 to finance the summer recreation.

That is, $285 plus whatever donations they may receive from local organizations that have been invited to lend a hand. The money presently available was acquired through sponsorship of the recent businessmen-faculty basketball game.

Last year the PTA had $700 to do with, derived from its carnival. The shut-down on bingo and allied pastimes more or less eliminated such carnivals as fund-raising projects. So there we are. The need for a recreation program is apparent; but the difficulty of financing the program is equally apparent.

So what's to do about? It has been suggested that the expense of conducting an annual recreation program be incorporated in the school budget, thereby eliminating any need for the annual conduct of benefits and solicitations.

This would have certain obvious advantages. The expense would be spread amongst a large group of individuals, a large share of whom have children who would benefit. The amount to be available would be known well in advance, so plans could be laid accordingly. The additional tax burden would be negligible (a half-mill should provide very adequate funds).

If the summer recreation program is sufficiently desirable to be made a permanent thing, its financing should be studied in that light. We're not saying that adding its cost to the school budget is necessarily the right answer. But thought should be devoted to the problem; and if there is a better solution, discussion should bring it forth.

It will be interesting to see how the avowed Brannan proponents fare in the primary election. The result should be a pretty good measure of whether Iowa farmers feel Brannan "has something there"—or whether they feel Brannan's selling job represents an attempt to foist something off them.

———0———

To illustrate how convincing a one-sided argument can be, the statement of the Northern Natural Gas company's president in last week's paper almost had us brushing a tear aside in sympathy for the concern's sorry state. Then the following day th Federal Power Commission vigorously turned thumbs down on Northern's proposed rate increases. If we were left somewhat confused in mind, at least our pocketbook was happy about the whoe thing.

———0———

The county PMA, soil conservation commissioners, county farm bureau and extension service deserve a cordial pat on the back for lending their aid to the proposed experimental farm on which research can be conducted on proper drainage and erosion control of Clarion-Webster soil. These two soil types largely predominate in the county and a great deal of dollar-and-cents knowledge could come out of this project. It certainly warrants the whole-hearted support of the farmers of this county.

Dolliver Offers Views Regarding The "Kerr Bill"

The following letter has been received from Rep. James I. Dolliver in reply to the Independent's recent editorial inquiry as to his reasons for voting in favor of the Kerr gas bill. We present it in its entirety.

* * * *

Belmond, Independent,
Belmond, Iowa.
Gentlemen:

I have just seen your editorial titled "Mr. Dolliver! Mr. Hickenlooper! We'd Like to Know, 'How Come?'"

Of course you are entitled to hear from me in response to your inquiry. The fact is that there has been a great deal of discussion about the Kerr bill and a vast amount of mis-information about it. I quickly recognize that there is ample room for difference of opinion on the subject and I quickly accord to you the right to criticize the vote that I made on it. I think you are entitled to know the basis for my vote, to the end that you not consider it entirely irrational.

As in so many issues that come before the Congress, there are perfectly valid arguments on the other side of the question. The fact is that I believe I have had access to information which perhaps has not come to your attention, since I sat through the hearings on this legislation.

(1) In the first place, the Kerr bill does not affect the power of the Federal Power Commission except as to the "production and gathering of natural gas." This provision was also in the original gas act of 1938, but has been misinterpreted by the Federal Power Commission in their endeavor to secure authority over all phases of the natural gas industry.

(2) The cost of natural gas at the entry of the pipeline involves less than 5% of the total cost as the product is delivered to the consumer at the end of the pipeline. In our committee which held hearings on the bill we were assured by people who know the natural gas industry, that the enactment of this legislation would not increase the cost of gas to the consumer. This statement was reiterated on the floor of the House in the debate.

(3) In my opinion, this legislation was necessary if the consumers of gas in Iowa are to continue to have an abundant supply of natural gas. The producers of this commodity are understandably unwilling to come under the complete control of the Federal Power Commisssion, especially where the commission has threatened to make rulings which would virtually put them out of business.

(4) Actually, the production and gathering of natural gas is a local enterprise and should not come within the purview of the federal government. It is not "interstate commerce."

(5) As you well know, gas and other public utilities rates are controlled by the local authorities in the State of Iowa and of course natural gas is subject to this control in Belmond or wherever else it may be used in our state.

Again, let me say that I have no disposition to question your viewpoint. You are entirely within your rights. I merely write this to illustrate the fact that there are two sides to the question.

All good wishes.

Very truly yours,
James I. Dolliver.

by "Pat" Gallagher

Dairy farming may not be very widely followed in the Belmond area—but it would be if more farmers shared the viewpoint of Ralph Baker. Ralph's farm, about four miles south and three miles east of Belmond, supports a fine herd of 35 Holsteins (it also supports five Bakers in comfortable fashion). Ralph has been a dairy farmer for about 25 years and wouldn't dream of switching to any other type of farming.

The Bakers bought their present farm 10 years ago. According to Ralph, the section it is on—and an adjacent one — were in permanent pasture for a good many years after most of the surrounding rural area was put under cultivation. As a result, the soil is particularly rich and productive.

Since acquiring the farm, Ralph has put up a new silo, hog house and cattle barn, as well as improving his dairy equipment to the point where his milk house has just about everything in it a good dairyman could desire.

—RFD—

The farm produces practically all the feed required for the Holstein herd and a total annual crop of some 300 to 400 pigs. Ralph says he has to buy a few oats, but other than that the farm provides for his animals in fine style. The entire 160 acres, other than six devoted to the farm lot, is tillable.

Ralph says that the tons of manure that are a by-product of his dairy operations are a valuable asset to his farm and his fields get the benefit of every bit of it. An overhead manure carrier piles the manure some 70 feet behind the barn — and Ralph has a new loader on order which will soon make easier his fertilizing job.

—RFD—

There are usually 12 to 15 cows in production, with the farm's milk capacity running from 40 to 60 gallons per day. Ralph sells it all to the cooperative creamery and dairy as whole milk, being paid for it on the basis of butter fat and what residue of skim milk would theoretically remain after extraction of the fat.

Needless to say, Ralph is convinced his farm is more productive as a dairy unit than it would be devoted to general farming. He'd make a darned good missionary for the dairy industry. He's a "believer."

—RFD—

Ralph can recall about 10 years ago when he used to milk some 14 cows each day by hand. The milking alone required at least an hour and a half. Now, with the aid of a milking machine, he saves a good 50 per cent on his time.

Incidentally, Ralph thinks a lot more farmers in this vicinity might go into milk production if a larger amount of Belmond milk were bought in town. The local demand pretty strictly limits the amount of whole milk the dairy can buy, he says, so a good many farmers with cows have to sell butter fat only—and feed their skim milk — even though they might prefer to sell the whole milk.

Paper containers used by larger competing dairies comprise the biggest obstacle to expansion of the local dairy's distribution, Ralph says. Customers simply don't want to bother with bottles, he figures, when the paper containers are so easily disposed of. Since container machinery would cost about $20,000 he doesn't foresee installation of any by the local dairy in the very near future.

In the meantime, he wishes something could be done to encourage greater use of locally produced milk—regardless of the bottle-washing that might he entailed. He insists there's no finer milk than that distributed by the home dairy, and the town as well as the farmers could well benefit by a larger demand for the local product.

—RFD—

Ralph is one farmer who openly admits he is by-passing his corn allotment. He's been raising about 80 acres per year lately. He intends to cut down to about 70 acres this year — but this is still well over the 61 allowed him. Feeding as many pigs and cows as he does (the corn off of eight entire acres goes right into the silo), Ralph is afraid it would be pretty costly to buy all the corn he'd be short if he cut down to those 61 acres.

Although he admits he's been cropping fairly heavily the past few years, Ralph very conscientiously rotates his crops for soil-building purposes.

—RFD—

Spotted Polands are Ralph's choice in hogs. He's raised them for a good many years and at present has 20 sows and a crop of better than 100 spring pigs. He had more than 130 pigs, but he says his luck hasn't been too good this spring—the weather being what it has. He always has both a spring and fall crop of pigs, and this autumn aims to go in a little heavier than usual to compensate for his relatively short spring crop

—RFD—

Ralph is inclined to belittle his chicken raising. The Bakers keep about 200 Leghorns, but Ralph's opinion is that there isn't enough money in eggs at present to justify their having a larger flock. (Nevertheless, while we were visiting the Bakers, Mrs. B. was temporarily disturbed when the latest egg check seemed to be missing. Those egg checks do help out as "grocery money", apparently.)

—RFD—

Ralph is mighty proud of his three youngsters and was telling us about the 4-H activities of Judy, 16, and Terrell, 10. Both are also members of the B. H. S. band. Terrell just made the grade a day or so before the musicians were to make their annual trip to the Drake Relays and was one thrilled boy.

Little Laurie, who will be five next fall, at the start of next school year will be joining big brother and big sister on their bus rides to learning

It Says Here, 'Dog's Life Isn't So Tough'

Don't make any derisive remarks about a "dog's life" to Rev. and Mrs. James T. Stewart. They have just learned from their son, Maj. Thomas Stewart, that dogs sometimes get the breaks in this day and age.

The Stewarts recently received word from their son that he and his wife and daughter Kathryn arrived safely April 20 in Austria, where the major has been assigned to duty with the U. S. Army. They made the trip by ship.

So where does the "dog's life" enter into it? Well, their pet canine, "Heinz" by name, was held by health authorities in New York for examination and couldn't make the boat trip with the family.

Rest

The moon rises in a starry sky . . flowers droop their petals in sleep . . . slowly, dark curtains are pulled . . . silence is complete. How beautiful, how tender is rest. How much more beautiful, and even more tender is that rest everlasting which marks an end of earthly strife and sorrow.

To surround the passing of a loved one with all the beauty and dignity that befits the occasion . . yet to create no financial hardship on the living . . that is the ideal that finds fulfillment in every funeral service which we conduct.

Many Thrills Feature Final Bowling Sessions As Four Titles Are Decided in Men's League

The men's league bowling season neared its close last week, with four out of the six leagues completing their regular play. The closing sessions were replete with thrills. Two games ended in ties and had to be decided in the opening frame of the succeeding game—a first place deadlock developed in one league, requiring a play-off—and Dutch's Clothiers topped the fireworks by establishing new net single-game and series marks.

Inter-City League finals found Alexander and Dows sharing first place, as the former toppled Goodell for three in a row on the last evening and Dows dropped two to Dutch Thompsen's Belmond entry. In a play-off conducted immediately after the closing session, Alexander spilled the maples for an 863 total to nose out Dows by 12 pins. Jerry Stoffer led the winners with a 194 game.

Mainstreeters League wound up its season with excitement aplenty. In the opening games between Madole-Kinseth and Rowat-Murray and between Mello Maid and Thompson's office, the end of the 10th frame found everything tied up. Rowat and Murray and Thompson's got credit for wins with the higher frames in the opening of the succeeding line.

Dutch's Clothiers handcuffed the Independent five in their effort to retain undisputed hold on second place, tossing a record-breaking 2831 series at the frustrated newspaper crew to take three straight. Mello Maid took one game from Thompson's to share second with the printers. Dutch's 48-27 record put them in first place by a span of seven games.

In fabricating their series mark, Dutch's outfit smashed 964 pins in the second game, erasing the previous best net line of 957 produced by the Bowl-Mor Bears. The 2831 series total also wiped out the previous top score of 2813, also rolled by the Clothiers.

Dan's Barbershop downed the Coffee Shop 2-to-1 in the Westenders' finals to take the league title by a four-game margin over Studebaker's pool hall, which dropped three straight to Tip Top. That final surge left Tip Top only a game behind Studebaker's.

Although they lost two of three to the last place Spahn-Rose team in the finals, the Bowl-Mor Bears easily captured top spot in the Boardsplitters' League. The Bears finished up eight games in front of Quig's Grill, the runner-up, with a 48-27 mark for the year.

Play was to be completed this week by one of the two remaining leagues. In the General Mills League, the Operators won three in a row last week to edge a game in front of the Maintenance crew, which dropped one line to the Office. With 50-22 and 49-23 records respectively, the Operators and Maintenance are well ahead of the field and one was a cinch for the title.

In the Tri-City League, Belmond Bakery (45-21) and Minnesota Woolen (47-22) were engaged in a red hot race for first place, with Latimer (41-25) still in the running. Most of the teams in this league have three rounds yet to play, to complete their 75-game season.

Tracksters Take Class D Third at Comet Relays— To Compete Next at M. C.

Belmond High's runners accumulated 20 1/6 points in the Comet Relays at Charles City last Friday to take third place in Class D.

The 440 relay team composed of Deane Dorr, Claude Larkin, Marlyn Watermiller and Duane Trager earned a third, as did the 880 team, which had the same personnel except for Robert Redmond replacing Larkin.

Dick Elliott placed fourth in the high hurdles and Dorr in the 100. Trager figured in a six-way tie for fifth in the high jump.

Other fifth places were racked up by the mile relay quartet—Ed Eccles, Vernon Meyer, Louie and Sherman Oberhauser — and the two mile team—Dean Gunderson, Eccles, David Colby and Dick Simpson.

This Tuesday the entire 17-man Bronco squad competed in the Cowboy Relays at Clarion.

BRONCOS EDGED OUT BY KANAWHA 7 TO 6

Their best game of the year wasn't quite good enough to get the Bronco baseball nine a win over Kanawha last Friday, but the winners had to go two extra innings to rack up a 7-6 verdict.

Don Faris, starting pitcher for Belmond, allowed two hits in the opening frame and walked four to enable Kanawha to build up a 6-0 lead.

With Curt Mennenga taking over mound duties in second, the Broncs held Kanawha scoreless for the next seven innings and rallied to tie the game in the seventh at 6-all.

A Kanawha run in the second extra frame decided the issue.

Jack Riggs and Faris each clouted a homer in the second. empty on each occasion, so their Unfortunately the bases were efforts only reduced Kanawha's lead to 6-2. The Broncs added another run in the fifth and knotted the count with three more in the seventh.

In eight innings, Mennenga struck out five and walked only one, while allowing six scattered hits. Mewes and Thompson hurled for the host Kanawha team, with Zeigler catching. Greenfield was backstop for the Broncs.

Belmond was guilty of four errors and Kanawha had two bobbles—both coming in the seventh and helping the Broncs force the game into extra innings.

WHICH?
Starting Cost... or... Total Cost?
There's a big, difference in automatic gas water heaters!
Starting cost is first-price. Total cost is cost for the total months or years of the water heater's satisfactory operation.
1. Low starting cost and short life make a high total cost.
2. A starting cost that's a few dollars higher and a life many years longer combine to make a lower total cost.
The Ruud-Monel Automatic Gas Water Heater is engineered and built for long life. Its extra years of perfect service quickly repay the few extra dollars of first price to make the total or real cost well below price-built, performance-shy water heaters.
Ruud-Monel lasts longer and by lasting longer, costs less—much less. Gallon-for-gallon, year-for-year, dollar-for-dollar, it's the best investment in water heater satisfaction and economy.

STEP NUMBER 2—

Pre-Baiting

—RAT CONTROL

(No. 2 of three articles)

The second important step in any rat control campaign is pre-baiting and it should take place only after all rat harbors have been cleaned up, reports Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director.

He says there are several instructions to follow in using this step. To pre-bait entails exposing weighed amounts of clean fresh food in and around farm buildings at night. Next morning, you can pick up and weigh the uneaten bait to determine how much the rats ate.

If all the bait is eaten, double the amount the next night. Continue to pre-bait as many nights as needed, using increasingly larger amounts until the rats leave some of the bait unbeaten. The largest amount eaten in any one night is the right amount of poison bait to expose, Bowman says.

If you have tried to poison rats before, pre-baiting will help regain their confidence for later poisoning. Unpoisoned bait should be exposed at sundown during clear weather on short lengths of boards or pieces of cardboards. These bait boards keep the bait clean, in plain sight and make it easier to inspect and pick up uneaten bait.

Baits should be protected from livestock by slanting a board above the bait board to the wall and fastening it securely. Under average farm conditions there is little or no danger in over-feeding the rats and making them tired of the bait.

Poisoning should take place after about five nights of pre-baiting. In some cases it might be wise to skip a night between pre-baiting and poisoning.

Bowman cautions to keep farm animals and pets locked up or put bait where they can't get to it.

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

Mrs. Nicolai Nelson is the Independent's choice for Belmond Mother of 1950. If the measure of a mother is the success with which she brings up her family, certainly there can be no quarrel with this latest selection as "Mother of the Year."

While none of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson has gained wide reknown, all have earned the high esteem of the communities in which they live. Each is filling his or her small niche in the world competently, conscientiously and with a view to making life pleasanter and richer for all around them.

Born up in the Britt neighborhoood, Mrs. Nelson was Emelia Oscarson before her marriage to "Nic" in 1912. Since 1915 they have lived on the Oscar Jacobson farm a mile north and about three miles west of town. There all but the eldest of their children were born.

Norris was the Nelsons' firstborn. He is a successful farmer, living near Scarville. Norris's World War II record was highlighted by the award of a Distinguished Service Medal—second highest military honor the government bestows. He won this decoration for stemming a German attack with the help of a single companion during the fighting in Italy.

Clifford, next in line, since last June has been pastor of the Lutheran church at Fessenden, N. Dak. After two years at Waldorf Junior college at Forest City, he farmed for several years before continuing with his education. He then obtained a B. A. degree at St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minn., and continued his ministerial training with a three year course at the Evangelical Lutheran Church Seminary at St. Paul, completing it last spring.

Mildred—Mrs. Alfred Meyer of Toledo, Ohio—studied at Waldorf and at Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn.; she has served several pastors as parish secretary and also taught school. At the present time she is a fifth grade teacher in the Toledo school system.

Everette also entered the ministry after observing the Nelson tradition of two-years-at-Waldorf, followed by a year at Lutheran Bible school, Minneapolis; two years at St. Olaf, to obtain a B. A. degree; and three years at the St. Paul seminary. He is now pastor of the Lutheran church at Wessengton Springs, S. Dak.

Reuben is the only one of the children who has not married. He remains at home and assists his father in operating the farm.

Esther—Mrs. Roy Larson of Tacoma, Wash.—after two years at Waldorf and two at the Minneapolis Bible school became a parish secretary and currently serves a Tacoma pastor in that capacity.

Ruth—Mrs. Russell Lonnevik—got in her two years at Waldorf and then, after teaching a year at Story City, accepted her present secretarial position in the business office of St. Olaf college.

There is a family of children of whom a mother could be justly proud; and "Millie", as Mrs. Nelson is called by her many friends, frankly takes pride in her offspring. Her husband says she insists on sharing equally with him all credit for the children's upbringing—but "Nic" insists, "After all, it is the mother in a home that makes children turn out as they do."

As might be assumed from the thorough Lutheran training all the sons and daughters plainly received, Mrs. Nelson is a tireless Lutheran church worker and is held in great love and esteem by the St. Olaf congregation.

Mrs. Nelson wil receive from the Independent a bouquet of roses in recognition of her selection as Belmond Mother of 1950. To each previous "Mother of the Year" a rosebud will be delivered. Mrs. Sam Johnson was awarded the title in 1946, Mrs. Mary "Molly" Barry in 1947, Mrs. Mary Lister Dillon in 1948 and Mrs. H. F. Petersen in 1949.

Mrs. McGuire, 79, Died Monday; Last Rites Held Today

Laura Parker McGuire, 79, wife of Charles C. McGuire and a long-time resident of Belmond, passed away Monday at her home. Although she had been in poor health for about four years, her death came very suddenly and without warning.

Funeral services were held this morning at St. Francis church, with Rev. R. A. Ormsby officiating. Burial was in St. Francis cemetery. Fulton Funeral home was in charge of the funeral and the following served as pallbearers: Emil Bock, Jim Finn, Ed Kennedy, A. P. Thompsen, J. W. Kaufman and L. B. Oberhauser.

Born the daughter of Patrick and Caroline Parker at Eau Claire, Wis., on Feb. 5, 1871, Laura Parker moved to Ackley with her family in her early youth. She was married to Charles C. McGuire on May 8, 1895. The sad occasion of her death occurred on their 55th wedding anniversary.

The couple spent all their married life in Belmond, and Mr. McGuire was in the clothing business here for 52 years. Mrs. McGuire was a member of the St. Francis Catholic church, a member of the Catholic Daughters and St. Anne's Study club. She was also a charter member of the Kensington club.

Mrs. McGuire is survived by three daughters—Laurette, Mrs. H. S. Leslie of Waverly; Zola, Mrs. John Boylan of Watertown, Minn.; and Ursuline, Mrs. Donald Grillo of South Bend, Ind.; also nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

She also leaves four sisters—Mrs. Thomas Cashman of Beloit, Wis., Mrs. John Schultz of Oxnard, Calif., Mrs. Fred Gross and Mrs. Francis Kelly of Brock, Sask., Canada; and one brother, James Parker of Simpson, Sask., Canada.

Mrs. McGuire was preceded in death by two sons, Harold and Cyril; a brother William, whom she and her husband reared as one of their own children; a second brother, Leo; and one sister, Lulu Finn.

During her extended ill health, Mrs. McGuire was patient and uncomplaining. Her cheerful friendliness and willing helpfulness will be sorely missed by her many friends and the entire community joins her husband and family in mourning her death.

Entry Deadline Friday For Men's Bowling Meet

Entries in the 1950 men's bowling tournament must be turned in at the Bowl-Mor Lanes by Friday night at the latest, according to Bob Townsan, who has been placed in charge of the affair.

There will be team, doubles and singles competition, and an all-events prize will be awarded. Entry fee will be $2.00 per man for each division, except for all-events. To get in the running for the high nine-line prize, a fee of only $1.00 is required.

Teams will bowl on Monday and Tuesday evenings, duos will roll on Wednesday and Thursday, and singles can be bowled any afternoon, in the evenings after scheduled team and doubles competition or on Friday night.

Bowlers who were members of two league teams, both of which are competing, can count only their first team score in all-events.

Starting times for doubles and teams will be posted at the Bowl-Mor this weekend.

LAST CALL FOR 1950 CENSUS!

The deadline for counting noses in the 1950 census is at hand, and any persons who have not been counted so far are urged to inform the District Supervisor, U. S. Bureau of the Census, Fort Dodge, at once.

Here's what needs to be known about such individuals: (1) name, (2) relationship of head of household—such as head, wife, son, roomer, etc., (3) sex, (4) color or race, (5) age last birthday, and (6) address as of April 1, 1950.

If YOU were overlooked by the enumerators, or if you know of anyone who was, see that the pertinent formation is immediately mailed to the Fort Dodge Supervisor so the census for Belmond and area will reflect the actual population as accurately as possible.

Congregational Church Presents Dick Elliott 'God and Country Award'

Last Sunday morning at the regular service of the Congregational church a Scout medal known as the "God and Country Award" was presented to Dick Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Elliott.

This is an honor more or less rarely won and Scoutmaster Glenn Martin, who made the presentation to Dick in behalf of the church, says that to the best of his knowledge it is the first such award to be made in Wright county.

To qualify for the award, a Scout must engage in extensive church work and make a comprehensive study of church organization. Although the "God and Country Award" is made only by Protestant churches, its counterpart is available to Catholic and Jewish Scouts who meet the qualifications.

RITES HELD FOR INFANT

Graveside prayer service for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Slining, who live southeast of Belmond was conducted Monday morning by Rev. O. G. Poppen. The child was born Sunday. Burial was in the Reformed cemetery, Belmond, and the service was in the charge of Fulton Funeral Home.

Patterson Takes Valley High Post

Lloyd Patterson, who resigned as Belmond football coach a couple of weeks ago, announces he has signed a contract to coach at Valley High school, West Des Moines.

During his three years here, "Pat" had teams that produced 15 victories as compared to only six losses. The Broncos tied their opponents in three other games. Every season under "Pat" was a winner. His first year Belmond lost three contests, only one the second and last year the Broncos dropped two.

The move represents a nice advancement for Patterson. He is stepping into a much larger school than Belmond's and the South Central conference, of which Valley is a member, is regarded as one of the tough leagues in the state. It includes such schools as Lincoln High and Tech of Des Moines, Albia and Chariton.

This summer "Pat" plans to take some additional college work, either at Iowa State or Drake.

Only Three Contests Slated In Primary for County Posts

Only three contests for nominations to county offices had developed as the deadline for filing came and passed last Saturday. All three of the contests are among Republican candidates.

Robert L. Blecker, incumbent sheriff, is being opposed for nomination by H. Pat Stewart. Both are from Clarion. R. Ralph Austin of Clarion is opposing County Attorney Harlan Larson of Goldfield in his effort to obtain renomination. The other scrap is a three-way affair for supervisor from District 1 between John Greenlander, incumbent, Oren Hanson and Tuck Parker, all of Belmond.

Late filings found three names making up the ticket of Democratic candidates seeking county nominations. Mrs. Josephine Mariga of Belmond filed for auditor, John Bleeker of Belmond for sheriff and Francis McNulty, also of Belmond, for District 1 supervisor.

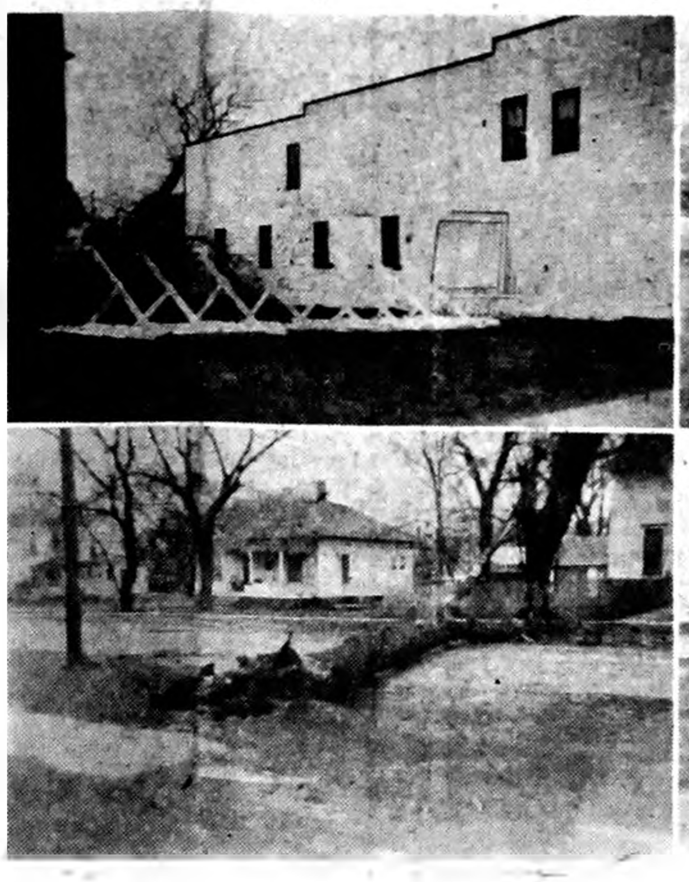
All the Republican incumbents, in addition to Sheriff Blecker and Attorney Larson, are again running for their present offices. They are Auditor Roger Charlson, Treasurer H. E. Sullivan, Clerk of Court R. V. Goslin and Recorder Grace L. Fletcher.

Only three persons, all Republicans, got papers in for county committeeman before the deadline. They were C. C. Christie, Ward 2, Belmond; Clark McNeal, Ward 3, Belmond; and Friend Bras, Belmond township.

Candidates for township clerk will be: Belmond township, J. R. Christie, Belmond (R); Grant—J. E. Ketchum, Belmond (D); and Iowa—Florence Aldinger, Rowan (D). Carl C. Benson of Belmond, Republican, filed for Justice of the Peace, Pleasant township.

Among candidates for township trustees were: Iowa — 1952-54, Clarence Gordon of Alexander and Ralph C. Baker of Belmond; 1951-53, Jay I. Knuths, Galt; Pleasant — 1951-53, Henry G. Mennenga, Belmond; Belmond—1952-54, Talferd Johnson, Belmond; Grant—1952-54, Myron E. Hill, Clarion. All these candidates are Republicans.

Widespread Damage Caused by Wind



Some time ago an American Legion committee was appointed to remove the Honor Roll from the library lawn. In the course of last Friday's wind storm, the job was half done for them (above). The large tree, below, which toppled in front of the Mrs. Ida Bullard home at Sixth avenue and First street S. E. created one of the many jobs that kept Central States repairmen on the hop; the tree made a clean sweep of nearby power lines.

City Water Tower Repairs Planned

Belmond's municipal water tower will gleam with a new coat of paint and be emblazoned with a new sign proclaiming the town's name upon fulfillment of a contract let last week to the Water Tower Paint and Repair company of Clear Lake.

Recent inspection of the tower revealed that it was in a very poor state of repair and Mayor Andy Loats and the council members feel sure that the amount of the contract — slightly under $1,950—will be quickly saved through elimination of water losses and more efficient water plant operation.

Councilman Glenn Martin, who heads the water committee, says that a new roof will be placed on the tower, the inside re-caulked and the entire structure repainted. The catwalk around the tank will also be repaired.

There has been a considerable amount of seepage through the tank's seams and one hole, apparently made by a rifle bullet, was releasing a steady stream of water.

Another major repair will involve replacement of the float which indicates the tank's water level. The present float has been out of commission for an estimated 10 years.

While repairs are being made on the tank, the entire water plant will be subjected to a thorough cleaning, including the softening sytem, tanks, aerators and other equipment.

Water to the mains will bypass the tower and softening system and be pumped directly from the well while the repair work is under way. The Clear Lake concern plans to start on the job as soon as the weather permits.

Dorris Kickbush Elected 'Queen' by Belmond Band

Dorris Kickbush, Belmond High school junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Kickbush, was selected by members of the school band to represent them at Mason City's North Iowa Band Festival on June 13 as "Miss Belmond."

The "queen" has played saxophone in the band since her family moved here from Burt two years ago.

Six other candidates contended with Dorris for the honor of wearing the queen's crown—Judy Baker, Shirley Bohning, Betty Clare Henderson, Aileen Kalkwarf, Lois Mehl and Doris Mourlam.

LEE SHAHAN INJURED IN FALL FROM LADDER

Lee Shahan, farmer living about four and a half miles northwest of Belmond, suffered serious injuries early Saturday morning when a ladder which he had propped against a tree slipped and sent him plunging to the ground.

He had been in the process of tying together the split trunk of a tree damaged in Friday's windstorm when the accident occurred. He was brought to Steele Memorial hospital by Dr. A. M. Nelson. Examination revealed he had suffered a broken left arm and a slight brain concussion.

At that time radio station WMT, Cedar Rapids (600 on the dial) will broadcast an interview with the local team which was wire-recorded during the state FFA convention at Cedar Rapids

Auctions No. 2-3, Combined, Slated For Friday Night

Barring wind, rain or some other unpleasant development of nature, the battle of the Lucky Bucks will be resumed Friday night at 8:00 o'clock in front of the city library as combined auctions No. 2 and No. 3 take place.

To the attractive list of merchandise items that were scheduled for sale last week, a number of other fine prizes have been added. With a little cooperation from the weather man, a huge crowd should be on hand for the fun.

Topping the list of articles which will be sold by Auctioneers Jack Munnis and Ray Frye are a four-wheel trailer—which should gladden the eye of any farmer—and a Westinghouse new-style Rancho range that would make an out-of-this-world Mother's Day present for somebody.

Then there'll be a handsome breakfast set, including a table and four chairs; a lawn mower—not guaranteed to cut the grass itself, but which will at least make the job pleasanter and easier; a 35-bushel Pride of the Farm hog feeder; a really dandy electric iron; a G. E. electric clock-radio, to make the getting-up ordeal less of a strain.

To catch the eyes of the kids, there's a baseball and glove—and a super coaster wagon; and getting back to potential Mother's Day gifts, there'll be a lovely set of dishes, which Mom would delight in.

The host of other items will include a large box of groceries, a dozen pairs of Rockford socks, and a long list of et ceteras that should make for spirited bidding from start to finish.

Shoppers are urged to remember that successful bids at the first auction ranged all the way from a top of $3,000 to a low of $30, so no matter how many Lucky Bucks you may have on hand, there's sure to be items you can put in bids on.

Seniors Present Play on May 19

"Seventeen Is Terrific," a three-act comedy by Esther E. Olson, is this year's senior class play. It will be presented at the high school auditorium a week from Friday, May 19, starting at 8:00 p. m.

The trials and tribulations of the Allenby family, centering for the moment on Chuck's need for $5.00 to take Ginny Grant to the senior prom and Dad's concern over aching feet and a $5,000 mortgage, provide the laughs.

Heading the cast are Richard Kriens as Chuck Allenby and Nancy Johnson as Ginny Grant, with Jerry Hanson playing the part of Dr. Allenby.

Granny, who bravely endeavors to keep the family to some degree organized, is played by Marilyn McNutt; and Florence Baxter is the maid, Hannah, who boasts 10 matrimonial-bureau sweethearts.

Other members of the Allenby menage and their various and assorted heart-throbs are: Nancy Quigley as Barbie Allenby, Joyce Waddington as Janie Allenby, Keith Greenfield as Billie Allenby, Darlene Hanson as Patsy Gardner, Carolyn Schleiffarth as Nancy Pomeroy, Duane Trager as Hugo Jarvis and Roger Hanson as George Bennet.

The play is directed by Charline Miller, English and dramatics instructor. Tickets may be purchased in advance of the performance from any member of the senior class.

Hospital Finance Group Will Meet Friday Night

Plans for a clean-up drive in territories already canvassed will be considered at a meeting of the hospital finance committee scheduled for Friday night at the City Hall, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

All members of the committee are urgently requested to be present. Several problems need to be threshed out, according to Co-Chairman R. W. Courson, and a variety of opinions on possible solutions is keenly desired.

The Faculty Potluck Bridge club met at the Duane Cunning home Tuesday evening.

Oren Hanson Announces Supervisor Candidacy

Oren Hanson, who in today's paper announces his candidacy for nomination as county supervisor on the Republican ticket, was born and raised on a farm in Belmond township about six miles northwest of Belmond. He has followed the occupation of farming all of his adult life.

Four years ago the Hansons moved to Belmond. Although they now live in a home Oren purchased at that time, he continues to farm 180 acres west of town. Mr. and Mrs. Hanson have two children. Their son, Roger, farms east of Belmond; and their daughter Nadine, Mrs. Dale Walrod, lives here in Belmond.

Mr. Hanson served on the Belmond township school board for a number of years. He is a member of the Methodist church and on its board of trustees.

Silo at Tyrrell Farm Demolished; Many Wires Down

Just to show the poor, browbeaten public that things are never so bad but what they could be worse, the weatherman dealt from the bottom of the deck last Friday and came up with three of a kind. To the unpleasant combination of rain and cold, he added a wind that will keep insurance adjustors scurrying around for days to come.

Major single item of damage done by the near hurricane was demolishment of a tile silo on the Preston Tyrrell farm. The structure had been raised only about a year ago. The wind reduced it to a heap of rubble.

Glenn Smith's vegetable stand just north of town on Highway 69 was flattened, snapping three power lines as it went down. Quite a number of road signs and billboards were wrecked, also. Surprisingly little serious damage was done to homes and business houses, although a good many shingles were ripped off by the gale and a considerable number of eave troughs were blown apart.

Managers Lloyd Bruner and Cecil Carstens of Central Telephone and Central States Electric, respectively, are both rapidly coming to the conclusion that there is a conspiracy between them. Ever since the Easter Sunday sleet storm, it's been "just one darned thing after another."

Mr. Carstens reports that Central States had 39 poles down in the vicinity of Dows and about a dozen more scattered over his territory. At least 12 line breaks were caused by falling trees or branches.

And as a P. S. to the whole business, the roof went sailing off the Jens Johnson barn a quarter-mile south of Brooks pony farm during Monday's less severe blow. That took out another line.

Mr. Bruner has the same sort of sad tale to relate. The telephone linemen had just been getting the Easter damage patched up when lightning hit a big cable south of Alexander—two weekends ago—and burned multiple breaks in it.

Friday's over-grown breeze snapped a number of drop wires leading from poles into homes and also left a mile-stretch of poles west of town leaning over at a dismaying angle. To cap the climax, Monday night's heavy rain soaked through a break in a sizeable cable north of the telephone office, putting 40 phones out of commission.

Both telephone and power service over a good part of the weekend were periodically disrupted in many areas as lines whipped and tangled in the wind.

Most line-breaks had been repaired at least in temporary fashion by Monday evening, but both company managers stat that it will take a fairly extended period of time to effect permanent repairs throughout the territory.

He was the only one of Belmond's three contestants who earned a Division I rating in the state contest, in which some 4,500 high school musicians competed.

Marilyn McNutt, who was entered in the "treble voice high" section, was awarded a Division II rating; and Paul Griesy, who was also a contender in the bass solo competition, was given a Division III rating.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hanson were on hand to hear their son's winning performance. They drove the student contestants and their teacher, Eldoris Kintzi, to Perry.

TOMAHAWK TRY-OUTS SLATED --

North Iowa Baseball League's Season Will Commence June 4

With the season's schedule now set up for a six-team North Iowa League, Co-Managers Claude Larkin and Charles Studebaker of the Belmond Tomahawks have ordered player tryouts for tonight at 6:00 o'clock and for Sunday at 2:00 p. m., weather permitting. Candidates are to report at the high school athletic field.

The League season will start on June 4, according to the schedule drafted by team representatives at a meeting held at Belmond on Wednesday night of last week. R. B. Thompson was re-elected league president and Charles Studebaker was retained as secretary.

In order to shorten the season, the loop membership was reduced to six teams instead of seven. Corwith and Clear Lake, members in 1949, have dropped out of the league and Rowan has been admitted. The other members, besides Belmond, will be the same as last year—Garner, Kanawha, Rockwell and Sheffield.

The Belmond Tomahawks, who won the regular title last year, will play their first game of the current year here a week from Sunday, May 21, against Rockwell. A return game with Rockwell will be played on the latter's diamond the following Sunday. Neither game will count in league play.

Following is the season's schedule for the North Iowa League:

June 11—Rowan at Belmond, Sheffield at Kanawha, Garner at Rockwell.

June 18—Sheffield at Rowan, Kanawha at Garner, Belmond at Rockwell.

July 9—Rowan at Rockwell, Sheffield at Garner, Kanawha at Belmond.

July 16—Rockwell at Rowan, Garner at Sheffield, Belmond at Kanawha.

July 23—Kanawha at Rockwell, Sheffield at Belmond, Rowan at Garner.

July 30—Rockwell at Belmond, Garner at Kanawha, Rowan at Sheffield.

August 6—Rockwell at Garner, Kanawha at Sheffield, Belmond at Rowan.

August 13 — Garner at Belmond, Sheffield at Rockwell, Rowan at Kanawha.

MRS. THOMPSON WILL AGAIN HEAD WOMEN'S BOWLING ASSOCIATION

Margrette Thompson was re-elected president of the Belmond Women's Bowling association at a meeting of team representatives held last week. Other officers named to retain their posts for another year were Mary Gordon as secretary, Ethel Brunes as treasurer and Naomi Downs as sergeant-at-arms. Lois Murray replaces Eva Hansen as vice president.

Plans for the 1950-51 bowling season were discussed and it was generally agreed that league play would extend over a 33-week period, starting Sept. 5. The women's season this year got a late start and continued through only 22 weeks.

It is believed that team sponsorships will remain the same as for this year, with the exception of Clarion Dairy. It is doubtful if this team will again be in the field; it will likely be replaced by another local outfit. The league will continue to include 12 teams.

Provision was made at the meeting for payment next year of a five-cent fee by each bowler for each evening of bowling, to set up a fund with which to pay the league secretary for the great amount of book work that falls her lot.

A change in the association's rules in regard to prize money distribution provides for division to be made next year on the basis of games won during the season, rather than awarding pre-determined amounts for each place as was the case this year.

BRONCO TRACK TEAM 5TH AT MASON CITY

Two third places and a fifth in relay events at last Friday's Mohawk Relays at Mason City earned 14 points for the Belmond High track team and gave the Broncos fifth ranking among the Class B entries.

Third places were won by the 440 and two-mile teams. Duane Trager, Marlyn Watermiller, Robert Redmond and Deane Dorr composed the sprint quartet; Ed Eccles, Claude Larkin, David Colby and Dick Simpson made up the distance crew.

The 880-yard relay team finished fifth. It had the same personnel as the quarter-mile outfit, except for Dick Elliott replacing Redmond.

Yesterday the North Iowa conference meet was scheduled for the Buffalo Center track. Coach "Pat" Patterson planned to take his entire 17-man squad. Forest City was favored to win the title.

Belmond's thinclads were entered in the district meet this Saturday at Fort Dodge, but at mid-week Patterson was undecided if any of the team members would actually compete or not.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Akers and children of Dows were Sunday dinner guests at the Mike Luick home.

Franklin Takes Sectional Title

Wild throwing of Pitcher Barz, although interspersed with 10 strikeouts, led to the defeat of Dows by Franklin Consolidated of Latimer in the sectional baseball finals here Saturday afternoon, 10 to 3.

Barz' offerings proved tough to hit—only seven safeties being collected off of him—but he issued an even dozen walks and they cost the ball game. Borcherding, moundsman for the winners, was also touched for seven hits; but he passed only five men, while striking out seven.

Except for the trouble, the pitchers occasionally had grooving the ball, the final game was well played. Only one error was committed, and that by the winners. Franklin had the contest all but sacked up in a couple of innings as they tallied two runs in the first and raced across for seven in the second to lead 9 to 0.

Dows entered the semi-finals by scoring 10 runs on only four hits to oust Alexander by a 10-8 count. All of the winner's tallies came in the first four innings. Alexander rallied in the sixth and seventh to bring four runs home, but couldn't make up all the ground it had lost earlier.

Barz struck out five and walked eight, pitching for the Dows team, while Paullus struck out six and walked the same number as moundsman for Alexander.

Although out-hit, six to three, Franklin Consolidated of Latimer capitalized on walks and errors to take the measure of Rowan in the other semi-final game, 6-2. Borcherding hurled fine ball for the winners, striking out seven men and passing only one. He kept Rowan's hits well scattered to keep good control of the game.

Knuths, while holding Franklin hitters to three safe blows, allowed six walks and his Rowan teammates committed five errors.

This already comprises $500 of Wright's $2,100 quota.

Women: You Need Permits To Fish on State Lakes

Just as a friendly reminder, the state conservation commission calls the attention of women fishing enthusiasts to the fact that they do not need licenses in Iowa except if they fish in state-owned lakes. But since there are a number of such lakes in this general vicinity, the ladies should be sure to get licenses if they plan to try their luck in any one of them.

In Wright county, Cornelia, Elm, Morse and Wall lakes fall in the license-required category. The same goes for Crystal, Eagle and Twin Lakes in Hancock, Little Wall in Hamilton and, of course, Clear Lake.

BUYS PUREBRED BULL

Marvin L. Wessels of this community recently purchased a registered Brown Swiss bull, Ranger's Topper 94901, from C. J. Lange and Son of Alden, according to a report from Fred S. Idtse, secretary of the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' association, Beloit, Wis.

TWO PAY TRAFFIC FINES

Two Belmond drivers paid fines in the justice court of O. E. McGahy in Clarion last week on traffic violation charges. Robert Redmond, who had received a ticket on April 28 from Patrolman Harland Sievers for running a stop sign near Lake Cornelia, on Tuesday was assessed $2.50 and costs. Melvin Anderson, arrested by Patrolman Al Sparby last Sunday for driving with defective brakes, appeared in court the same day and was fined $5.00 and costs.

MAYOR'S COURT

Three drivers were heard by Mayor A. W. Loats on charges of traffic violations during the past week and were fined $5.00 and costs in each instance. The violators were Luverne Alphs, Richard Tillotson and J. Fettkuher.

Banquet At Mason City Enjoyed by Alexander Junior, Senior Classes

The theme of the Junior-Senior banquet was "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star." The Green Mill banquet room at Mason City was the setting for a lovely moonlit garden.

A wall about three feet high resembled rocks with multi-colored flowers growing from them. A trellis camouflaged one doorway. The door by which the guests entered was a gateway also covered with flowers.

Nutcups were small wagons with a star for the tongue. The placecards were white with the same blue motif. The ceiling was dark blue crepe paper with silver stars resembling the sky.

The table centerpieces were bouquets of white sweetpeas, with a few dyed blue. There was a large silver star rising from the center with the picture of a graduate's cap on it. Down the center of the table was a strip of blue crepe paper sprinkled with stars and star dust. Light was provided by an imitation moon and blue and white candles on the table, carrying out the class colors of blue and white.

Larry Myers was master-of-ceremonies for the after-dinner program. Words of welcome were spoken by Marvin Draper. Toasts were presented on the following subjects: "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star," G. C. Hussong; "Holiday in Stardom," Duane Blau; "Beyond the Blue Horizon," Edith Schulte; "Milky Way," Mrs. Sauerberg; and "My Blue Heaven," Norma Madsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenet Ginapp and son and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Bell and sons attended a birthday anniversary party in honor of Henry Ginapp at Sheffield Sunday evening.

Mrs. Lester Bill Peters, who returned home from a Mason City hospital Wednesday, is somewhat improved but is still suffering severely with neuritis.

Good Neighbors Gather to Aid Hofacre Family, Fire Victims

A fire which apparently started from a defective chimney destroyed the house on what is known as the "Clock" farm northeast of town Tuesday of last week just before noon. The Marion Hofacre family is living on the farm.

Mr. Hofacre, who was working in the field, happened to look toward the house and saw smoke and flames issuing from the roof and turned his tractor toward the house, as did several of his neighbors. Mrs. Hofacre, who was preparing the noon day meal and doing some sewing, was unaware of the fire.

The Latimer and Alexander fire companies were called at once but the structure burned to the ground within 45 minutes from the time it was discovered. Some furniture was saved from the first floor but very little else.

Some members of the family were left with only what clothing they were wearing. Monday evening neighbors and friends gathered at the schoolhouse for a shower for them and they were presented with a purse of $476.50, along with gifts of dishes, towels, bedding, clothing, canned fruits and vegetables and many other useful articles.

Almost the entire community turned out. The Rev. E. A. Cochell led community singing and the ladies of the Community Methodist church served cake and coffee.

HEY, FELLAHS!--

100'000 'Northern' Fry Released in Cornelia

Prospects for having some "really good fishin'" in this vicinity were materially improved last Thursday, in the belief of Game Warden Bill Ayres, when he and a representative from the state fish hatchery at Spirit Lake placed 100,000 Northern Pike fry in Lake Cornelia.

Bill says that information on fish populations in the lake indicated a condition of over-population, with the result that there has been insufficient food to enable the fish to attain a satisfactory size.

There are stocks of bass, crappies, bluegills and bulheads in the lake, but relatively few of them have been reaching a length sufficient to bring a gleam to an avid fisherman's eyes.

Past experience points out that where over-populations of certain species exist, it is necessary to introduce predator fish to control them. It was with this aim that the Northerns were released in Cornelia, Bill explains.

Northerns make rapid growth and may attain a 12-inch length in the first year, so Game Warden Ayres predicts that anglers at Cornelia will be hauling in some pretty fair pike within the next couple or three years.

Sportsmen should bear in mind, Bill warns, that once a lake is biologically out of balance, it takes a period of years to correct the situation. The state conservation department has a staff of trained biologists who constantly check state-owned lakes, and it is on their recommendations that the fisheries department bases its stocking program.

Bowman Warns Against Too Late Planting of Corn

It is doubtful if delayed corn planting is the solution for corn borer control in Wright county, according to Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director. While delaying planting until the middle of May may lessen the danger of first brood corn borer damage, it also has disadvantages.

These disadvantages are danger of reduced yield of corn, more danger of early frost damage in northern Iowa, more difficulty in controlling second brood of corn borers—and continued rains in the middle of May might delay corn planting more than farmers had intended.

Experiments at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station show that delayed corn planting may result in lower yield. Results at the experiment station at Ames show that corn planted May 7 yielded 79.5 bushels per acre, May 16 yield was 66.5 bushels, May 25 was 54.1 bushels per acre and 50.6 bushels for May 31.

Planting as soon in May as the ground is ready is usually recommended for Wright county and northern Iowa. Infestation of corn borers will be heavier in the early planting, but spraying to control borers is more effective and easier for the first brood of corn borer than for the second brood.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

Textbooks on farm drainage currently used in Iowa State college classes on farm management were published—guess how long ago In 1917, believe it or not! In the nearly 35-year interval since the book was written, a generally accepted rule of thumb has developed for this area, "Tile at four-foot depth and 100-foot intervals." Whether this practice is the ideal—or even approaches it—will be determined when the proposed experimental farm for testing drainage practices and erosion control on Clarion-Webster soil becomes an actuality.

That is what some 50 farmers, who gathered last Thursday night at the county courthouse, heard as the farm project was discussed by a number of men who are actively working for it. The speakers proved good "missionaries", too, because the listeners were certainly sold on the idea before the evening was over.

—RFD—

Aaron Bowman, county extension director, opened the meeting with a few explanatory remarks and then introduced Bill Youngclas of Webster City, a director on the temporary board of experimental farm association. Mr. Youngclas told how the association had been incorporated about three years ago, after a Webster county soil conservation commissioner had originally proposed such an idea a couple of years earlier.

It was Bill who brought out the span of time that has passed since the latest ISC textbook on proper farm drainage was written. He then turned the floor over to Sam Barber, Hancock county soil conservation commissioner.

—RFD—

Sam described the kind of farm the association is interested in purchasing. The aim is to get a farm with relatively little tile already on it. What tiling it possesses will be taken out, so installation can be started "from scratch". Land with a fairly even slope, as few pot-holes as possible and largely free of high-alkali soil is what the association wants.

The land will be farmed in some three to four hundred different plots. All experimentation will be conducted by Iowa State college. The only cash outlay that will be required of the sponsoring association will be for the land purchase and, possibly, a modest amount of equipment or outbuilding construction, if any funds remain after the farm is bought.

The college will pay all taxes and running expenses and re-invest all income in research projects on the farm. Affiliation with the college would be on the basis of a lease, to be renewed at 10-year intervals.

—RFD—

Mr. Bowman stressed that the farm will have to have a proper outlet for its drainage tile—both physical and legal. The sub-soil must be uniform and both high-lime and stoney areas are to be avoided.

He emphasized that virgin prairie is not desired, since the main purpose of the experiments will be to determine proper treatment of land that has been cropped over a period of years.

With 16 counties lying in the Wisconsin drift area to be included in the project, needless to say all are hopeful of having the farm within their boundaries or as nearby as possible. The central point of the entire Clarion-Webster soils area would likely lie within Humboldt county, Mr. Bowman pointed out — but that doesn't necessarily mean that the farm will be established in that county.

—RFD—

Al Moen, Hamilton county farm planner, remarked that no one seems to know 4-foot-100-foot tiling theory widely accepted hereabouts was ever arrived at, except that experience has proved it effective in a majority of cases.

He remarked, however, that tiling—installed according to these specifications — that had been adequate for a number of years, was on many farms now failing to produce satisfactory drainage. As more and more organic matter burns out of the soil, he stated, existing tile is apt to do an increasingly inefficient job of draining the land.

"There is undoubtedly a direct tie-up between how land is cropped and how it drains," he added. "And there is no question but what maintaining soil fertility helps to maintain proper drainage. The experimental farm will not only determine what drainage systems are best adapted to Clarion-Webster soil, but demonstrate how proper soil conservation can keep that system operating properly."

Bob Locke, Wright county farm planner, said that he understood that fertilizer experiments would be conducted on the farm, as well as research on drainage and erosion control. In addition, he reported, if buildings and equipment will allow, there will likely be livestock experimentation on a small scale, involving both beef and dairy cattle.

—RFD—

When the project had been more or less thoroughly explained, Mr. Bowman questioned several men as to their personal opinions of the farm project.

Lynn Thompson, county Farm Bureau president, stated, "It seems to me that members of the experimental farm association would be well repaid for their small investment in the project."

Oscar J. Hanson, county PMA chairman, declared, "Drainage is certainly among the farmer's most important problems. It impresses me that it would be very sensible for Wright county farmers to take advantage of Iowa State's offer to conduct research on the subject."

Don Frakes, member of the Wright county soil conservation commission, told the group, "There is no question in my mind but what we soil commissioners could probably make better and sounder recommendations in years to come if some research were conducted on proper drainage."

To sum up, the experimental farm association wants to buy about 60 to 80 acres for its research project. Of the 15 counties besides Wright that lie in the Wisconsin drift area, all are presently at work raising funds for the undertaking. Eight have already met or exceeded their quotas and several others are very little short of their assigned financial goals. All told, in excess of $19,000 has been received in membership fees.

Wright's quota would be $2,100—or about $150 for each township, on the average. Membership certificates were issued to all the farmers who attended last week's meeting, and they will be contacting landowners in the next week or so in the campaign to sell sufficient memberships to meet the county quota. A membership costs $25.

On the face of it, the investment of $25 in such a project looks like a mighty wise one. Present at the meeting were several men who bought memberships in the experimental farm at Kanawha, and they were unanimous in their belief that they had been more than repaid for the outlay.

Incidentally, it was stressed that the new experimental farm would duplicate NONE of the research being conducted at Kanawha.

Anyone interested in joining the new experimental farm association, but who is not contacted by one of the men selling memberships, is asked to contact Mr. Bowman at the extension office, Mr. Hanson at the PMA office, one of the soil conservation commissioners or the Farm Bureau office.

Corn Planting Time

Well, corn planting time has rolled around again.

Remember when hybrid corn was introduced a few years ago? If it hadn't been for the progressive thinking and broad-mindedness of our farmers, we'd still be getting 10 bushels an acre less — with old-fashioned open-pollinated corn.

It's been the same with tractors, erosion control, and other up-to-date methods. Our farmers top the nation in keeping their minds open to new ideas. And it has certainly paid off.

In our daily living that same open-mindedness pays, too — in happier lives and better communities. Remember when some folks used to oppose the movies? — that's all passed now. There was a time when you'd hear arguments against coffee, or beer, or even soda pop. Now, we recognize coffee's fine qualities, and beer as the beverage of moderation.

The world progresses. We progress with it, just to the extent that we keep open-minded — even about things like hybrid corn and soda pop.

Why do they always lose? Because they have no plan for winning. They don't think ahead. So, when their opponent suddenly "goes out," they're left holding cards that count against them.

Some people, too, can never save money—even though they make as much as the next guy who has plenty tucked away.

Trouble is, they have no plan for saving. And when the next guy's retired with children in college, they may still be trying to make ends meet.

Fortunately, if you're one of these people, there's still time to sign up for one of the easiest plans ever invented for saving money regularly—the Payroll Savings Plan.

Just tell the cashier where you work to put you down for so much. Then, like millions of others, you'll have money automatically set aside each payday. And it will grow fast—by 1/3 in ten short years.

So, before you know it, you'll be talking about sending your children to college—and choosing a garden spot for later years.

Insufficient Support Threatens Compromise on Hospital Plans

When we last checked up, the community hospital pledges to date totaled approximately $175,000.

As things stand, the number of beds the hospital is to provide may have to be cut quite considerably, in comparison with original aims. In fact, this will be inevitable unless ALL who expect to use the hospital contribute toward it to the limit of their ability. Many have pledged well up to this limit. Some others have not. Those relative few who have made no pledge, and those whose pledges are meagre in comparison with the the gifts of others in comparable circumstances, owe it to THEMSELVES to reconsider their earlier decisions.

The planning board keenly desires to see that a hospital is built that will not only meet peak current demands, but be adequate for years to come. It would be a great shame if this very sensible goal should have to be sacrificed.

A hospital donation is merely an investment in the future security of those closest to our hearts—our own families, our friends and our neighbors. Let's enable those bearing the burden of planning the hospital to do the job right, and leave no room for regrets.

There's More Than Meets the Eye In State Boost for City Streets

Our eyebrows raised a bit when we discovered last week in reading the city's annual financial report that the state contribution to Belmond's street fund was about two-thirds higher for the year ending April 1, 1950 than it has been the year previous.

"How nice!" we thought, first off. Then, after a moment's consideration, we reflected, "How come?" As is our custom when the why and wherefor of a tax matter confuses us, we conferred with County Treasurer H. E. Sullivan.

As is so often the case with apparent glad tidings, we discovered that all was not as it seemed. Mr. Sullivan provided us with the following explanation.

Previous to July 1, 1949, the state's four-cent per gallon gasoline tax was divided in this fashion, between road and street funds: the first three cents provided one and two-thirds cents for primary roads and one and a third for secondary; the extra penny added another six-tenths cent to the secondary funds and four-tenths of a cent was ear-marked for city street funds. It was this four-tenths of a cent that provided Belmond with $3,249.54 in the year ending April 1, 1949.

Three months later a new road fund set-up went into effect. Besides the four-cent gasoline tax, the two per cent use tax collected on sales of motor vehicles went into the fund, PLUS 10 per cent of the state's proceeds from the general two per cent sales tax on all other merchandise.

Under the old road-and-street fund provisions, the cities got 10 per cent back for use on their streets—or four tenths of a cent out of each four pennies of tax. Disbursement under the new provisions —under which the city and town dweller is contributing much more heavily—is 42 per cent to the primary road fund, 35 per cent to secondary roads, 15 per cen to farm-to-market and 8 per cent to the cities' streets funds.

In other words, though Belmond got back about 67 per cent more money from the state in the past fiscal year, the increase in its contribution to the composite road-and-street fund must have been very considerably greater than that. So it adds up to getting an extra $2,168.43 for our streets "the hard way". What the extra couple of thousand amounts to, in effect, is just a bit of salve to apply to the extra "bite" the state puts on the town folks for improving country roads. At least, that approximates Mr. Sullivan's estimate of the situation.

"You thought Belmond was getting a pretty good thing?" asked the county treasurer, as he ducked into his office vault. He returned a moment later waving a check. It was for something more than $30,000—and represented ONE MONTH'S ante from the state for secondary and farm-to-market road construction and repair in Wright county. It made Belmond's $5,417.97 for the past fiscal YEAR look a little measly.

"We've gotten them as big as $40,000 for a month," added Mr. Sullivan. "It's my opinion that the city tax-payer, under the new road fund provisions, is getting darned little back for what he contributes."

Perhaps we're too easily influenced when we know little about a subject at hand, but it impressed us that Mr. Sullivin had at least the nub of a pretty good argument. Certainly, after we'd talked to him, we viewed that 67 per cent hike in the state's kick-back to the city street fund with a good deal less enthusiasm than before.

FOUND! One Arrow That We Shot Into the Air

We're going to paste the above Bible verse in our hat. Then maybe we won't get any more propaganda sheets dedicated to us.

Several months ago we set out to present each week to our readers the regular releases of the state publicity directors of both the Democratic and Republican parties. We felt that exposing Independent subscribers to a bit of constructive criticism directed at each of the major factions could do no harm and perhaps might even give them some fresh ideas in this election year of 1950.

Gerald Bogan's GOP gab-sheet wasn't bad. It avoided personalities and kept its criticisms on a relatively high plane. In short, we could stomach it without gulping.

On the other hand, Frank Moorhead's Demo declarations descended to drivel with exasperating regularity. His reliance on sarcasm and frequent reference to personal foibles of Republican figures who were the butt of his jibes simply rubbed our fur the wrong way.

So what happened? One night when we were already tired and out-of-sorts we got to our weekly reading of the Bogan-Moorhead offerings. Showing regretable lack of restraint, we permitted Mr. Moorhead's worse-than-usual tripe to get under our hide, good and proper. On the impulse of the moment, we sat down and gave vent to our aggravation a "Dear Sir (You Cur!)" letter addressed to our tormentor. And, while the mood was on us, we mailed the darned thing.

Mr. Moorhead did us the dubious honor of printing our unworthy outburst in his May 11th newsletter. In print, we didn't feel proud of it. Sounded too much like some of the stuff the addressee had been putting out, only more ill-tempered. Yep, Moorhead got us—and he got us good! What REALLY dismayed us, though, was the fact that the whole doggoned newsletter was dedicated to yours truly.

We're hoping we've learned something from this rather embarrassing experience. We're adopting the motto, "Don't strike till the irony's cooled off." a little."

Incidentally, Mr. Moorhead's comments in recent weeks have impressed us as being in somewhat better taste and just a trifle meatier. Could it be that our too-outspoken critique just might have led Frank Moorhead to indulge in a little self-inspection, even as his retaliation has induced a bit of soul-searching on this writer's part?

———0———

It's always possible to find justification of some sort for practically every kind of weather — whether it's cool or hot, wet or dry, it's just what SOMEBODY needed at the moment. But when the wind kicks up like it did last weekend, it simply aggravates EVERYBODY.

Bowman Names Three Poisons Best Suited for Rat Killing

(No. 3 of Three Articles)

"The only good rat is a dead rat", observes Wright County Extension Director Aaron R. Bowman. He says if you have cleaned up all the possible rat harbors around your farm and have prebaited the rats for about three to five days, you are now ready to "give them the works" by poisoning.

Bowman recommends poisoned bait, properly used, as the most efficient and most economical means of destroying rats. Rats will eat anything that humans eat and will even attempt to balance their own diet.

Any food that rats don't get in large quantities will make good bait, and ground meat or fish seems to be best on the average farm where there is usually an abundance of grain.

After prebaiting with unpoisoned bait to see how many rats are present and to gain their confidence, you can put the poison out. Three poisons are recommended by Harold Gunderson, Iowa State college entomologist. They are fortified Red Squill, Antu and barium carbonate.

Red Squill is a good poison and kills only rats. Domestic animals may become ill from eating the poison but usually recover. However, one disadvantage of Red Squill is that rats recovering from the poison recognize its distinctive, bitter taste and will not touch it again. So, if you have tried Red Squill it would be better to use some other poison.

Antu, a war-developed poison, also will kill any domestic animal, Bowman warns. It kills more quickly than most other common rat poisons and sometimes a larger percentage of the rats die in the open, but rats that recover from it become immune to further Antu poisoning. Use it only with bait and mix according to the manufacturers' directions.

Barium carbonate is tasteless. odorless and can be used repeatedly without making rats suspicious. It is poisonous to all animals and therefore must be used with precautions. Barium carbonate is soluble in water and is a good poison to mix with milk or buttermilk.

Powdered barium carbonate or Red Squill should be thoroughly mixed with ground meat, cereal or other bait material, until a uniform bait is obtained. Bowman says to mix one pound of barium carbonate with five pounds of bait, or mix one ounce of Red Squill with one pound of bait. Fruits and vegetables should be cut in half-inch cubes, moistened slightly with water, and the poison sprinkled over them.

A single cube of fruit or a small teaspoonful of the mixed bait will be sufficient poison for the average rat. In the above proportions, one pound of ground meat will be enough for 100 rats.

Baits should be put out at sundown on short lengths of boards or pieces or cardboard, just as in prebaiting. Pick a clear night for poisoning because rats tend to hole up during stormy weather.

Confine pets and other domestic animals for the night, as during the prebaiting. On farms, Bowman says to keep bait away from livestock by placing a slanting board against the wall of any building and put the bait board underneath. Uneaten bait should be picked up and destroyed next morning before releasing domestic animals.

Fifty Seniors Will Get Diplomas Wednesday Evening

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

"What some people will do to get business."

That's the title of the above picture. It's a fairly long story, but we'll make it short. Last Thursday Dan Boone was industriously washing his front window when Ed Riggs walked by.

"Might buy something out of that window for Mother's Day," Ed suggested, "if somebody'd come down and give my window a going over."

As Dan's right ear quivered at the mention of prospective business, Jack Meints approached and, overhearing the conversation, decided that opportunity was knocking.

"Ahem!" says Jack, "Now in regard to all that trash I've hauled away from behind the store for you Have you noticed that MY window's getting a wee mite dusty, too?"

How Kibitzer Chandler got into the act, we don't know. Anyway, the Independent photographer caught Boone and audience as Meints' window was getting some licks. Ed's was shined up, too.

Now comes the question, "Did he, or did he not, buy that present, Dan?"

—M-S—

The following proved a fine time-killer. Try one yourself.

PHONEY PHABLE

(All CAPITALS stand phor phamiliar pholks' names from the new phone book.)

Two FELLERs we know once kept a STILLE in a LITTLEFIELD nearby. One's an OLTMAN, the other's fairly YOUNGE. You've probably HURD of them. They used to PEDDLE BIER door-TUDOR—then one year the ELDER one had an extra good KROPP of APPELs on his CRABTREE. They switched to APPELjack, then later built the STILLE.

The spot's JUST two MILES down the road. You cross BRIDGES over a couple of little BROOKS and you're there. There's TREES all around and the STILLE was hid WRIGHT CUNNING.

Not too LONG ago, two YOUNGE ladies driving a CARR stopped by the LITTLEFIELD and decided to picnic. "While you COOK, I'll HUNT for NUTTS and BARRYs," said one. "And see you get that PANHOFF in time. If it BERNS the MACKRILL I'll be KRABBE!"

"Don't talk so SHARP," her friend replied, "You'd do WRIGHT to diet, anyway. You're so STOUT that GREEN VEST hardly FITTZ you."

JUST then the FELLERs at the STILLE HURD the talking and the OLTMAN peeked over a TREE'S ROOT and saw the HARTY-looking girl.

"Hand me that BOX," he ordered the other FELLER, "then STAMBACH! I'll BRANER."

"Don't TROE it!" the YOUNGE FELLER cried, snatching back the BOX. "You might've RECTOR. That's the last thing we WANTZ. Just KETCHUM and PEDDLE 'em. I'll get the COOK—you get the STOUT one and PITCHER out of here."

"Can't PITCHER over the fence," the OLTMAN declared. "I'll have to use the HOLGATE."

"SAVE us!" screeched the STOUT one as she HAUPT STRAIT over the fence, to the OLTMAN'S surprise. The other one HAUPT too, but got HOOKed on the barbed wire.

When safe in their STUDEBAKER, the skinny one examined where she'd PEILed her leg, blubbering, "Hope it won't leave a SKARR!"

"Better see a DOCTOR," suggested her companion. "But not DOCTOR Shattergood. He can't DOCKWELL; wouldn't even make a very HOTVET."

"NUTTs!" groused one of the PALS as the CARR disappeared. "Now we'll have to HYDE the STILLE all over again. Now ain't that good!"

"GOODELL," the other replied. "But you're WRIGHT. They're sure to tell the SHERIFF. We're FRUH in this here LITTLEFIELD. No UTHE stayin' here no MOE. Best we BERNS our BRIDGES behind us and gets out of HARMS way."

You never see a MODDERMAN in your life than those PALS as they gathered up their STILLE and BLEWETT out of there, looking LONGingly back at the pretty GREEN PASTOUR, surrounded by TREES and BROOKS.

Marilyn Ellis Elected To Go To Girls State

Marilyn Ellis has been chosen by the Eimbrink Post unit of The American Legion Auxiliary to attend the fifth annual Hawkeye Girls State to be held at Grinnell college, June 18-25, Mrs. Harley Thompson, selection committee chairman, announced today. Marilyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Ellis of Belmond, and is completing her junior year in Belmond High school.

She has taken a leading part in extra-curricular activities at the high school, particularly in speech and music. Marilyn was a member of the one-act play cast that won an excellent rating in state competition and had the feminine lead in the junior class play. She recently won third prize in the patriotic essay contest sponsored by VFW Auxiliary.

The selection of a representative girl is made by the unit from a list submitted by the local high school. To be eligible, a girl must be completing her third year of high school, she must rank scholastically in the upper half of her class and have outstanding qualities of leadership.

Two hundred and 40 girls from every county of Iowa will attend and will learn how to operate the machinery of democratic government by setting up and operating a miniature state government of their own. Hawkeye Girls State is a project of the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Iowa, to acquaint the girls of this state with the functions of a representative form of government.

SUPERVISOR CANDIDATE ON DEMOCRATIC TICKET

Tuck Parker, resident of this community for the past 23 years, has announced his intentions of running for the nomination for the office of First District supervisor on the Democratic ticket in the June 5th primary election.

Parker has been employed by the county as drag-line operator for the past 18 years. He is a veteran of World War I.

CHICKEN THIEF GETS SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Earl Thompson, 31, a farmhand who has been employed in the Renwick neighborhood, in a hearing before Judge G. R. Hill in district court Monday was sentenced to six months in the county jail on a charge of chicken stealing.

Married and the father of seven children, Thompson admitted to taking 30 hens from the Shipman farm in Troy township on April 29. The theft was reported and the chickens discovered at an Eagle Grove produce house, where Thompson had disposed of them. He was placed under arrest on May 3.

In view of the man's heavy domestic responsibilities, Judge Hill suspended the sentence on good behavior and paroled Thompson to Sheriff Bob Bleecker.

GOOD NEIGHBORS DRIVING—

—DO ARCHIE LEE'S PLOWING

Archie Lee, who farms two miles north and about six miles west of Belmond, will assure you these days that there's nothing in the world like having good friends.

About 10 days ago Archie came down with virus pneumonia, and a week ago Tuesday found him flat on his back as a patient in Steele Memorial hospital. With the season late, and having been unable to get into the field because of the weather, Mr. Lee was really doing some high-powered fretting.

Thursday morning about 7:30 o'clock neighbors started assembling at the Lee farm. No less than 12 of them came with tractors, and by 11:00 a. m. 32 acres of land had been plowed and some 75 loads of manure spread over the land. As the work was finished up, women from the neighboring farms showed up with well-filled baskets to feed the hard-working field hands.

The men who participated in the good-neighbor gesture, and whose women folk provided the "vittles" at the conclusion of the morning's work, included:

George Polmateer, Gerhard and Lester Gabrielson, Clair Hanson, Sanford Severson, Harris Johnson, Jon Rokke, Cameron Forgy, C. A. Didio, Homer Ness, Garfield Holverson, Jr., Lawrence Ryerson, Ervin Lee and Everett Anderson.

On Saturday, and again on Monday, Everett Anderson deserted his duties at Olaf Elevator for several hours and got Archie's corn in for him.

Needless to say, Mr. and Mrs. Lee are certain they have the finest neighbors that could be found anywhere. Archie returned home Sunday and Mrs. Lee says their friends' helpfulness was "the best medicine he could have had."

Three Teachers Hired for School Staff Last Week

All regular vacancies on the Belmond school staff were filled last week, according to Supt. Don Faris, with the hiring of three teachers. The fourth vacancy had been filled the previous week when Donald Merritt was signed as football coach and industrial arts instructor.

Those added to complete the faculty list are Donald E. Bunnell of St. James, Minn., junior high instructor; Rhoda Symens of Sheffield, fifth grade; and Daphne Snyder of Reinbeck, first grade.

Mr. Bunnell will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., in June. His major subjects have been speech and economics and his minors were history and social studies.

The new instructor is 25. He was in the Navy during the war. His service included 21 months as personnel yeoman on the staff of the Air Force Commander, Pacific Fleet, at Pearl Harbor; and later he served in the same capacity on the staff of the Fleet Air Commander, West Coast, stationed at San Diego.

Miss Symens next month is completing two years of schooling at Central college, Pella. She attended high school at Chapin Consolidated. Miss Symens is 22.

The new first grade instructor, Miss Snyder, was graduated from Reinbeck High school in 1946. She attended Iowa State Teachers for a year, following her graduation, then taught for two years in the Wellsburg first and second grades. Last fall she returned for another year at State Teachers. She, also, is 22.

One additional faculty member, having more or less ex officio status, remains to be named. That will be the vocational agriculture instructor for the veteran's on-the-job training course, which will be inaugurated in July. Thirty-five veterans have signed up for the course. Mr. Faris expects to have the name of this instructor ready for release next week.

Story Got Rid of---

PUPS

--In Quick Fashion

You think the home-town paper isn't generally read? You'll never convince Miss Cloe Jenison that such is the case. Two weeks ago she asked the Independent to inform its readers that she had some collie pups she would give away on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Not only did she get rid of all the pups, but she ran out long before the inquiries ceased to come in.

The pups' mother, "Toody", had a litter of 10. Miss Jenison had sold one, but she decided to give away the rest, when "Toody" became tired of caring for them.

After the announcement appeared in the Independent she had calls or callers from Dows, Meservey, Goodell, east of Belmond, west of Belmond and from Belmond itself. Miss Jenison kept the runt of the litter for the little son of her nephew, Gene Jenison, who lives at Braham, Minn. The rest were gone in no time.

There was a homely little brown-and-black mutt in the litter which Miss Jenison suspected she'd have trouble disposing of; but one tyke decided the clumsy little misfit was the cutest pup he'd ever seen and had eyes for none other.

Recipients of the puppies ranged in age from a bit over a year, up to high school age. A few adults tried to get into the act, but all the pups were reserved for youngsters. And happy kids, they were, as the lucky ones drove off with their new pets.

Janis Bailey Serves As Class Queen's Attendant

Each class chose a queen and four attendants by popular vote, so Janis' selection speaks well for her popularity on the Clarke campus.

The Most Rev. Rohlman, D. D., Archbishop of Dubuque, presided at the Mass and the Rev. Duane Brady of Loras college, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brady, delivered the sermon. A vested choir of 300 voices assisted at Mass.

Coronation ceremonies for the class queens were held at the various shrines on the campus during the afternoon.

LADIES GOLF LUNCHEON

First Ladies' Day event of the season will be held at Clarmond Country club next Tuesday with a golf luncheon being served at 1:00 p. m. Dorothy Christie is chairman of the committee in charge.

CHORUS WILL MEET

Regular monthly meeting of the Wright County 4-H Chorus will be held at the music room of the Clarion High school next Thursday, May 25, at 10:00 a. m.

High Range Bid By Mrs. VanNoy

There was little rhyme or reason to the bidding as combined Lucky Buck auctions No. 2 and 3 took place last Friday night, but a lot of fun was enjoyed by a large gathering of bidders.

As examples of the inconsistency in the bidding, a cake was knocked down to LeRoy Christie for 450 bogus bucks, while Mrs. Dale VanNoy of Goodell became owner of the handsome Westinghouse electric stove—worth $168.50 more than the cake—for only 1,500 leaves of Lucky lettuce.

All of the major items went for surprisingly small bids. Gerald Swenson acquired the $150 four-wheel trailer for a mere $1,375, Blanche Aldrich bid in the $75 Pride of the Farm hog-feeder for $1,400 and Laurence Greenwood got the $58 breakfast set for $1,250.

For Friday's Auction Items

Retail value of the 48 items auctioned totaled $612.46 and Lucky Buck bids aggregated $19,010. That made a ratio of about $31 Lucky Bucks for each dollar's worth of merchandise; but the top bid on the stove was less than $9.00 in Lucky Bucks per dollar of actual value. That certainly indicates that some real bargains are to be had at the auctions.

Young Mac Mitchell got himself a baseball bat with the lowest bid of the evening —$10. After this bid, the crowd promptly "laid off" to see that Mac got his prize.

BASEBALL OPENER SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon will see the Belmond Tomahawks open their 1950 baseball season in a non-league contest with Rockwell. The game will be played on the high school diamond, starting at 2:30 p. m. Bud Nissen will be on the mound for the local team and Bud Boelman will likely complete the battery.

JOHN BLEEKER TO RUN AS DEMOCRATIC ENTRY FOR COUNTY SHERIFF

Among the candidates filing for county office just before the May 6 deadline was John Bleeker of Belmond, who seeks the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

At present proprietor of Bleeker's Recreation Hall, Mr. Bleeker is well known in Belmond and vicinity. He had previously lived here for a period of nine years, prior to moving to Belmond from Iowa Falls in January.

Mr. Bleeker is a native of Hardin county, having been born and raised on a farm there. In 1920 he entered the creamery business in Cleves, but in 1930 returned to farming near Steamboat Rock for a couple of years. In 1933 he moved to Iowa Falls, following the carpentry trade there for two years.

For the next 12 years he was employed by the Iowa Falls Rendering company. In 1938 he moved to Belmond and served as the firm's representative here for nine years. In '47 he returned to Iowa Falls and again did carpentry for a three-year peroid.

Mr. Bleeker is married and has five daughters, three of whom are married. Only one child, Rosemary—a Belmond High school junior—is still at home.

The Democratic sheriff candidate plans a serious campaign for the job and solicits public support with the promise of conscientious, efficient administration of his duties if elected.

"Louie, the Ladies' Man" Entertains Bowling Team

Louis Tokman squired the entire membership of the Belmond Auto company's bowling team as the "gals" celebrated the closing of the league season with an all-day fling in Des Moines last Thursday.

After sight-seeing, dining and enjoying a vaudeville show, the ladies turned the affair into a busman's holiday by toppling a few pins at the Air-Lane Alleys.

The report is that "Louie", with a few more pointers from the sidelines, bids fair to develop into a champ one of these days—"As a bowler," one of the lassies explains. "He's already in that class as a ladies' man.

YOUTH, 14, CONFESSES BREAKING INTO HOUSE

Sheriff Bob Blecker and County Attorney Harlan Larson were in conference with a 14-year-old Belmond youth and his parents Tuesday evening following the boy's admission that he has twice entered a house here and taken small amounts of money.

On one occasion the young man simply walked into the house; at another time he jerked out a screen hook to gain entrance. He insisted his "hauls" totaled only a little over a dollar. The home owner reported around $7 or $8 missing.

This was the first time the youth has been involved in legal difficulties, and no charges were filed. However, the sheriff and county attorney made it clearly understood by the boy and his parents that a repetition of the offense would find the authorities completely unsympathetic.

Arlene Sheriff of Des Moines spent the weekend with relatives in Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. McNutt and family were Sunday dinner guests at the Robert McNutt home in Goodell.

Bronco Quartet Wins 440 Relay At NI Loop Meet

Lake Mills track and field experts lived up to expectations in the North Iowa conference meet at Buffalo Center last Wednesday by better than matching the combined scores of their two closest opponents to take championship honors with 87 points. Forest City placed second with 44½, trailed by Buffalo Center with 42 and Belmond with 35½. Britt was the only other loop team entered, finishing last with 14 points.

Bemond added a new trophy to its collection by winning the 440-yard relay in 50.4 seconds. The Broncos barely missed taking the 880-yard relay also, but were nipped at the tape by Lake Mills, whose winning margin was no more than a foot.

Deane Dorr, who joined with Duane Trager, Robert Redmond and Marlyn Watermiller to cop the quarter-mile baton race, won the 100-yard dash to give Belmond its only other first place. The Bronco speedster's time was :10.8.

Belmond entries took one other second place beside that in the half-mile relay, Trager finishing as runner-up in the shot put. Dick Elliott placed third in both the high and low hurdle events, Dorr was third in the broad jump —after fouling on one leap that would have won first—the two-mile relay team took third in its specialty and Dick Simpson tied for third in the pole vault.

The Broncos' only fourth was in the mile relay. Fifth places were won by Watermiller in 440 and the broad jump, Trager in the 220, Gunderson in the mile and Ed Eccles in the 880.

Other than Belmond, with its two victories, only Verlo of Buffalo Center in the 200-yard low hurdles and Conway of Britt in the 220 were able to break through the Lake Mills-Forest City monopoly of first places. Verlo's time was 30-seconds flat and Cnway's, :25.5.

The conference champions walked off with seven events and Forest City topped four. Lake Mills' victors, and their winning efforts, were: Belville in the pole vaut, 8 ft. 8 in.; Swanson, shot put, 41 ft. 3 in.; two-mile relay, 9.22; Otto, mile run, 5:23; Rogstad, 120-yard high hurdles, :17.4; 800-yard relay, 1:42.5; Hovland, 880, 2:22.3; and mile relay, 3:56.

Forest City's winners were: Gustafson, discus, 111 ft. 6 in.; Langerud, high jump, 4 ft. 10 in.; Riekens, broad jump, 18 ft. 11 in.; Gustafson, 440, :58.5.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Robinson of Cedar Rapids were visitors here from Wednesday evening until Friday forenoon.

GARNER NINE DEFEATS BRONCS BY 14-5 COUNT

Although out-hit only 12 to 10, Belmond was unable to cluster its wallops and dropped a 14-5 baseball decision to Garner on the latter's diamond last Thursday afternoon.

After allowing the Cardinals a three-run lead in the opening frame, the Broncos came back in the second and third to tie up the ball game; but Garner romped for five runs in both the third and fourth innings to clinch the verdict.

R. Koolbeck went the route for the winners, striking out six and walking only one man. Daryl Boelman, Curt Mennenga and Don Faris all took turns on the mound for Belmond, fanning a total of four batters and passing five.

Riggs, Greenfield, Hoppel and Mennenga each collected a pair of hits out of four times at bat to lead the Broncos at the plate.

Summary:

Belmond	012	010	1--	5-10-2
Garner .	305	501	--	14-12-4

Batteries: Boelman, Mennenga, Faris and Greenfield; R. Koolbeck and Dankbar, D. Joss, Beckwith.

Nancy Quigley Reigns As "Slough-foot Sue" At Senior Night Party

Ragged overalls, patched skirts, tattered hats and delapidated socks and shoes provided plenty of variety and color for the "Hard Time" costume party held in Clarion on Tuesday evening of last week at the I. O. O. F. hall in Clarion.

Selected from the group were two persons who most nearly typified the characters of "Hayseed Hank" and "Slough-foot Sue"; sharing this honor were Darwin Gates of Clarion and Nancy Quigley of Belmond.

Seniors from all parts of the county were represented as guests of the Rural Young People's group, which was recently organized. The program for the evening consisted of games, square dancing, social dancing and movies of Alaska and Europe which covered the travels of the Rev. Mr. Wogen of Kanawha during his chaplaincy in the army.

Members of the following committees planned the event: recreation—Charlene Boisell, Chairman, Mary Holmes, Lyle Dahlgren and Leroy Schaumburg; program—Earl Jergensen, chairman; refreshments—Bonnie Anderson, chairman, Paul Siemens, Ruth Soren and Darwin Gates.

FARM-FAMILY-OF-THE-WEEK

The Clarence Pals Share Their Wedding Date, Feb. 27th, With Two Other Members of Family

PRESENTING Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pals, Cheryl Ann and Derald Gene.

When Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pals spoke their wedding vows on Feb. 27, 1941, it was simply a case of a couple of "pals" getting together—for that was the bride's name BEFORE as well as after the ceremony. Berniece is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pals.

Nor was that the only way that coincidence figured in on the occasion. The couple were wed on the thirty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. Pals' parents, the late Hilko Pals and Mrs. Pals.

Moreover, Clarence was the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Hilko Pals to be married on the same significant date. His sister, now Mrs. Fred Walters, was wed on Feb. 27, 1931. So you can see it really adds up to a big day for the Pals family.

Clarence farms six miles east and two miles south of Belmond on the Herman Gruis place. Besides 160 acres there, Clarence farms an additional 120 nearby, so he has a total of 280 acres to keep him occupied. He has been farming for nine years—the past four at the present location.

Mr. and Mrs. Pals take pride in their fine flock of Hi-Line chicks. They have between 450 and 500 layers and this spring have added 1,000 chicks. Clarence is completely sold on the hybrid chickens. He says that since last August the flock has consistenly laid at an 80 per cent rate, except for a couple of weeks last fall when production dropped off to about 70.

At present, Clarence is uncertain if he will keep a laying flock through the winter or not. If the demand for hybrids is as good as he anticipates it may be, he might sell off the entire flock this fall. That, however, is a bridge he'll cross when he gets to it.

Clarence is feeding 19 head of steers—mainly Herefords; and he has 112 spring pigs—Chester Whites. He's strong for the "Whites" and says he likes the fullbreds better than first-hybrids he tried as an experiment last year.

Incidentally, Clarence is one more farmer who is sticking by his corn allotment without any quibbling. It's his opinion that the welfare of all farmers depends on their working together, and he views the corn allotments as one important way they can do so.

The Pals have two children—Derald Gene, 8, and Cheryl Ann, 6. While the youngsters are, of course, too young yet for 4-H work, Mrs. Pals already looks forward to the day when they will be able to participate. She thinks very highly of the training young people gain through 4-H activities and believes that her children will benefit greatly from them when the time comes.

Clarence is a hunting and fishing enthusiast and this past year has become a bowling fan. He customarily enjoys a fishing jaunt each spring and fall but regretfully says he's going to have to pass up the spring trip this year. Field work has fallen so far behind, on account of the weather, he doesn't feel he can take the time off.

The Pals belong to the Farm Bureau and are loyal members of the Reformed church of Meservey.

Joe Duea Finishes High In Duroc Judging Contest

Joe Duea, local Duroc breeder, placed 26th in the senior division of the 1950 National Duroc Picture Judging Contest out of a record number of 13,009 contestants from 41 different states and the Hawaiian Islands, according to results just released by B. R. Evans of Peoria, Ill., Secretary of the United Duroc Record association.

The contest, an annual event sponsored by the Duroc association, consists of placing 11 classes of four hogs each plus the selection of a grand champion boar and sow. Both side and rear views of the hogs are shown in color to give the amateur judges a fair comparison of the animals.

Official placings of the contest are made by a committee of five outstanding swine judges which this year included Wilbur Plager, field secretary of the Iowa Swine Producers association.

"Blue Shield" Plan Opened to Farmers, Residents of Towns

Membership in the Blue Shield medical plan has been opened to Wright county farmers and residents of towns under 2,500 population. Alphoretta Bunn, secretary of the Wright County Health Improvement association, said today that this opportunity is being offered as part of a new statewide program which aims at bringing Blue Shield medical benefits to thousands of Iowans who were not eligible under the old setup.

Requirements for Blue Shield membership through the local association are simple, the secretary said. Any Blue Cross member who is under 65 years of age, self-employed, or employed with a group of five persons or less may add Blue Shield. Anyone who meets the above qualifications may join Blue Cross-Blue Shield she added

When the head of a family enrolls, both he, his spouse, and all members of his family between the ages of three months and 18 years, are provided on the family contract with surgical care and medical care in the event of hospitaization.

Along with its companion the Blue Cross Plan, Blue Shield is a nonprofit organization. The plans are sponsored by local hospitals and doctors.

An added feature of the Blue Shield Plan is its obstetrical benefits. If membership has been established for nine months or longer, Blue Shield helps to cover the doctor's fee for the birth of a child, Mrs. Bunn added.

Blue Cross membership is available without Blue Shield. Applications for membership can be made through Mrs. Albert Anderson, president of the Wright County H. I. A., or Mrs. Valentine Bunn, of Clarion.

TRACTOR

Four year old Peter Jensen, of Ruthven, was run over by a tractor recently when he accidentally released the clutch, then jumped off as the machine gathered speed on a barnyard slope. A rear wheel passed over his right leg, fracturing the bone.

HOLSTEIN CHANGES HANDS

C. C. Woodin of Belmond recently acquired a registered Holstein-Friesian cow from the herd of Lynn C. Thompson of Clarion. Change of ownership for this animal, Schelwig Ormsby Chief, has been officially recorded by The Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The association reports that it issued 10,120 registry and transfer certificates to Iowa breeders during 1949.

Concessions to Crash-Free Drivers Would Penalize Many Unfairly

An editorial that recently appeared in the Wright County Monitor—which we presume was written by our Clarion friend, Wiley Beveridge—favored preferential collision insurance rates for auto drivers who go through a year without filing a claim.

What gave rise to the comment was a case now pending in the state supreme court in which an insurance firm is trying to have set aside a state insurance department ruling which denied two companies the privilege of writing such contracts.

The Monitor declares that "safe" drivers should not have to help pay for the frequent mishaps that "repeaters" are involved in. Our neighbor further states that, "If the law, as it now stands, doesn't permit (offering reduced rates after the first year for accident-free driving), then the legislature should change the law—but quick."

It happens your scribe recently submitted a collision claim for damage done to his car while it was PARKED and UNOCCUPIED. Who the dog was that dented us, we don't know. And, believe us, we'd be more than slightly put out if next year we were penalized rate-wise on account of this "accident."

Consider a similar situation on the road. Some dope tries to pass an oncoming car and the resulting highway barricade leaves you with the choice of a smash-up or taking to a deep ditch. You crash—and the party of the second part—(and this too often is the case) has no liability insurance, the law notwithstanding; you shell out for repairs or put in a collision claim. How are you going to feel about being penalized on that score?

It doesn't take long for an insurance firm to weed a majority of the "repeaters" out of its policyholder ranks. Not long ago "pooling" provisions were set up to enable rejected applicants to get liability (but not collision) insurance at an appropriate cost.

When you come right down to it, any privileged class of lower-premium policyholders would be made up not just of "good" drivers—but of drivers who are "good and lucky." It is undoubtedly that element of pure and simple chance that prompted the insurance department to put its foot down. An effort to differentiate between disqualifying accidents and "innocent" mishaps could lead to endless complications.

In view of the fact that only a driver with a reasonably good record can obtain collision insurance—and bad risks have to pay for liability insurance at the high rates their carelessness warrants—we're inclined to view the insurance department's ruling as fair and reasonable.

GOP Farm Policy Council Has The Right Idea

By and large, the seven-point program proposed by the Iowa Republican Farm Policy Council impresses us as employing a sound approach to the problem of creating an effective agricultural program.

An obvious shortcoming of any such theoretical proposal is the absence of specific suggestions as to how it might be carried out. To a certain degree, those who drafted the program did endeavor to suggest in a broad manner how the program could be put into effect; but, of necessity, these suggestions had to be of a very general nature.

When the Farm Policy Council endeavors to find a partial answer to agriculture's difficulties in the development and expansion of foreign markets, it's possible that the member's thinking is a bit more wishful than practical. It's a fine ideal to aim at, but it appears that for some years to come that foreign trade is going to be financed largely with Uncle Sam's own money.

The Council's idea of placing greater emphasis upon soil conservation — AND taking out of cultivation submarginal land, sounds most sensible; and certainly an overwhelming majority of the farmers will agree that if improved marketing methods could be devised to narrow the gap between prices they receive and those paid by the consumer, it would be of great benefit to the producers of agricultural products.

Apparently the Farm Policy Council would retain the PMA or its counterpart; and it would retain the principle of parity prices, but would restrict the use of supports to "distress periods". It would also endeavor to devise separate methods of stabilizing perishable and non-perishable commodities.

All of these aims are fine and admirable. It might take some doing to accomplish some of them, but a favorite American motto has always been, "Where there's a will there's a way."

Above all, though, we like the Farm Policy Council's proposal to establish "a bi-partisan agriculture board to govern policy-making powers over agriculture with the greatest possible administrative authoritiy held at state and local levels."

If there is any one thing we're set on, in regard to the farm problem, it is the conviction that it should NOT be converted into a political football. For it's non-partisan approach, if for no other reason, we feel that the Farm Policy Council's effort deserves high praise.

Think Editorials Aren't Read? Doesn't Pay to Count on It!

We frequently see in trade publications expressions of grave doubt as to whether editorial columns in weekly newspapers are actually read. Frankly, we sometimes get to wondering about it, too. Then we extend the editorial chin with comments on a controversial question and BINGO—We've got our answer.

So to our brother scribes, we offer this bit of unsolicited advice. Assume, if you wish, that your editorial remarks might as well be written in Sanskrit, for all the attention they're going to get. But keep your guard up, just the same.

Just about the time you plant your foot down firmly on an issue, you find yourself standing smack on somebody's pet corn. It may not happen often, but often enough that we're through assuming our gems (?) of wisdom (??) aren't going to be read.

Yep, It Looks Very Much As If Hybrid Corn Is Here to Stay

In our "'Way Back When" column last week, an item mentioned the planting of a hybrid corn test plot on the H. T. Lambert farm near Dows in the spring of 1930. There was considerable speculation as to "how much, if any, will hybrid corn outyield the common open-pollinated varieties?"

Recent release of figures on the 1949-50 world corn crop by the Iowa Development Commission provides a dramatic answer to that query of two decades ago. An estimated 5,550 million bushels was produced in all, with Iowa—planting its fields virtually 100 per cent in hybrids—accounting for approximately one-tenth of the total!

With 11,326,000 acres in corn, Iowa produced 84 per cent as much as did all of Europe, with 29,690,000 acres devoted to the same crop. Only Italy, which probably has shown more interest in hybrid seed than any other European country, made a really respectable showing in corn-raising with a total of 106 million bushels—one-sixth of the continent's total.

Of course, the fertility of Iowa land compared to that of Europe's long-tilled acres accounts for some of the difference in average yield. But by no means was it wholly responsible for Iowa farmers getting 48 bushels per acre to 22 for the farmers abroad.

If any of the Independent's readers of 20 years ago are still waiting for a published answer, it appears safe at this time to assure them that those new-fangled hybrids have a lot to recommend 'em.

MORE CORN...
Fewer Nubbins

"What's fertility-level check planting, and why will it give me more corn and fewer nubbins?" a fellow asked me one day.

"Well, you know, an ordinary planter checks either 2, 3, or 4 kernels per hill—7,840, 11,760, or 15,680 kernels per acre. But suppose your soil's fertility level requires a kernel population somewhere between those figures?"

"Right now, I'm just out of luck," he said.

"No, you're not. With the new, high-speed, clutchless McCormick 'population planter', you can plant somewhere between those 7, 11, or 15 thousand. There are 18 different speeds to give you any in-between rate. And you can drill or hill-drop to any per-acre population, too."

"Sounds good to me . . . ; and I like the planting units in front, too; where I can watch them and the marker-track at the same time."

"To say nothing of handy fingertip Farmall Touch-Control to lift and lower the planters," I reminded him.

"From now on it's more corn and less nubbins for me, too. Order me a Farmall C corn planter right now!"

"Read by More Than 5,000 People in the Belmond Trade Area"

President Roosevelt's Board said—NO!
President Truman's Board said—NO!
Still the leaders of the Railroad Firemen's Union say— "STRIKE!"

This ridiculous strike is an affront to every citizen of the nation. It's not for more money. It's not because of hours. It's only for soft feather-bedding spots for additional unnecessary firemen to go along in diesel locomotives just for the ride. A leading liberal newspaper calls the demands of the union leaders "horse-feathers!"

• The reckless leaders of the firemen's union want to force down the throats of the railroads and the public a ridiculous "make-work" proposal which has been twice ruled out by Presidential Fact Finding Boards duly appointed under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

This demand of union leaders for additional and unnecessary firemen to ride in diesel locomotives was rejected —after months of hearings—by a Board appointed by President Roosevelt in 1943.

It was again rejected in 1949 by a Board appointed by President Truman.

Recent meetings with the National Mediation Board have brought no change in the attitude of the union dictators.

Union Leaders Defy Intent of Law

The union leaders helped write the Railway Labor Act. Yet in an attempt to jam through this scheme of pure "feather-bedding" by leading the members of their union out on strike and threatening paralysis to large areas of the nation, they are defying the spirit and intent of the very law which they helped to create.

This strike is not for higher wages. It is a strike to force the railroads to employ many more thousands of firemen who are not needed! It would be indefensible waste. The railroads have refused to place this additional and unnecessary burden on the public.

But more important than any other consideration, is the action of these few irresponsible union leaders in seeking to force a crippling strike upon the nation for their own selfish purposes.

There is no other possible answer to such a demand but "No!"

The railroads in making such a reply believe they have the whole-hearted support of the people in whose interest they are willing to fight this out, despite the loss and inconvenience that all will suffer.

This strike is one of the silliest strikes in history!

What are these reckless union leaders trying to do? They seek to cause thousands of their members to strike, and throw hundreds of thousands of other employes on and off the railroads out of employment, with loss of pay to them and their families, plus a severe blow to industry and the citizens of the nation.

What's the strike all about? If the union has its way—what happens? The present members of the union won't get one cent more pay. They will merely have been assessed for a costly and indefensible drive in an attempt to provide more dues-paying members for the union by creating "feather-bedding" jobs for additional and unnecessary firemen.

This is certainly one of the silliest strikes in history!

Ceremonies Tuesday to Honor Deceased Service Men

MAIN STREET

By George - Dick - Pat

We understand there was a considerable amount of muttering going on Tuesday noon when neither water taps nor light switches were working during the lunch hour. No radio news could be tuned in and no thirsts assuaged—at least, not with water. A "short" at the Thompson Hybrid plant was responsible. The Central States' troubleshooters had the difficulty corrected after about a 45-minute lapse in service.

By the way (as most residents have probably figured by now) the reason Belmond water has been tasting a bit strange lately—and forming thick films of soap curds—is because hard water is being pumped directly into the mains while the softening system is being cleaned out.

Latest DP's to immigrate to this neighborhood are Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lipens and their three children, who arrived last Thursday in Meservey. The Latvian family's adoption by that community is being sponsored by the E. U. B. church.

Rev. A. E. Wilken was going to arrange an interview with the newcomers for us last Thursday, but arrival of a new son (Frederick) in the Wilkens' family on that day made the pastor "not available" for the moment. We're planning a talk with the Lipens over the coming weekend.

Whether swept away by "auction fever" to the point that he bid more than he had Bucks, or whether he just didn't realize he'd won out, the successful bidder for the minnow bucket at last Friday's Lucky Buck auction failed to pay up and claim his prize. As a consequence, ye bucket will once more go up for sale this weekend.

Incidentally, as each week goes by, more and more out-of-town shoppers are showing up for the Lucky Buck festivities. Last week there were successful bidders from Klemme, Kanawha, Meservey, Thornton and Alexander; a number of other would-be buyers from neighboring communities got into the act but failed to make top offers.

The town's a-bustle, north and south, these days. The folks "up no'th" are watching with satisfaction as the Third Street paving becomes a reality (a lot of us had better start practicing up our STOPs at Third, incidentally; everyone's largely overlooked the STOP signs while no traffic has been operating on the street).

At the other end of town, the old foundation of the former pickle plant across the road to the north of the sales barn is being pushed into the excavation and the area leveled off to provide more parking space for sale days. This is a city project.

Farmers Grain is adding a 15,000-bushel storage bin to its previous facilities . . . What with the residence construction that is going on here and there over town, things are more or less buzzin' in Belmond.

Mrs. Hamilton's Pupils To Give Dance Recitals

Eight Belmond dancing pupils of Mrs. Nadean Hamilton will be among a group of almost 85 youngsters who will present a dance recital at the Clarion school auditorium on Thursday of next week, June 1. They will also appear in a second recital to be held at Kanawha on June 6.

Included in the Belmond group are Bonnie Mack, Judy Larson, Marlys Howell, Janet Howell, Betty Clare Henderson, Joan Dorr, Carole Thompson and Jean Mickelson.

The performance at Clarion will feature 10 former pupils of Mrs. Hamilton from Des Moines. Besides the eight students from Belmond, 30 from Clarion and 35 from Kanawha will appear on the program. The Belmond and Kanawha pupils will appear in the recital at Kanawha.

FARMERS MUST SIGN CORN AGREEMENTS BY WEDNESDAY, MAY 31

The Wright County Production and Marketing committee wishes to call to the attention of all producers of corn that the deadline for signing a Purchase Agreement for sealing corn is next Wednesday, May 31.

Those who still wish to seal corn should notify their sealer or the PMA office immediately, as it takes a few days to process the loans and they must be signed and notarized as of May 31 or before.

The PMA office, says Chairman O. J. Hanson, has been informed that those who have 1949 corn sealed may have their corn resealed for another year and will earn a storage payment of 10 cents per bushel. Also, 1949 Purchase Agreement corn may be sealed for another year and will earn the same storage payment.

Traffic Violators Trek to Clarion

Regular Parade To County Seat Forming Lately

A rash of traffic violations over the past week saw Belmondites trekking to Clarion—practically in caravans—to get their hearings and pay their fines.

Although Belmond now possesses a city mayor who has volunteered his complete cooperation in law enforcement and, also, an untried justice of the peace, the highway patrolmen apparently continue to hold a preference for hearings at the county seat.

Last Thursday Deane Dorr was arrested by Patrolman Harland Sievers for driving with defective brakes. The following day he appeared before Justice of the Peace O. E. McGahy at Clarion and was fined $2.50 and costs.

Also on Thursday, J. C. Ubben, local car salesman, was fined $25 and costs in the court of Mayor C. F. Buchan at Clarion on a charge of selling a used car that was not in safe driving condition.

The vehicle had been purchased by James E. Schmidt on May 12, and on May 17 the youth was picked up by Patrolman Sievers for driving with faulty brakes. No charges were filed against Schmidt.

On Friday, Kenneth Lerdal was arrested at the north edge of Belmond by Patrolman Al Sparby for speeding. Lerdal's car had rammed the rear end of a second car when he was unable to stop quickly enough. In the court of Mr. McGahy Saturday morning, Lerdal was fined $5 and costs.

ELMER RATHMAN FINED $100 IN MAYOR COURT

Elmer Rathman of Elmer and Myrt's Place on Main street was arrested Monday afternoon on a charge of selling beer to a minor. The arrest was made by Officer Dale Walrod after he saw a 19-year-old youth leaving the tavern with a case of beer he had just purchased.

Mayor A. W. Loats levied a fine of $100, plus costs, against Rathman at a hearing held not long after the arrest. On March 9, Mrs. Rathman paid a similar fine on the same offense.

Renwick Man, 23, On-the-Job Farm Training Teacher

James Kleen, 23, a graduate of Iowa State college and a native of Renwick, has been named to the Belmond school faculty to serve as vocational agriculture instructor for GI on-the-job farming trainees.

Mr. Kleen comes to this community with the finest kind of recommendations and it is the opinion of the school officials that the veterans who have applied for farm training are indeed fortunate that they shall have such a capable instructor. The past two years he has taught vocational agriculture and also been in charge of on-the-job training at Dexter.

A brief stint as an air corps cadet interrupted Mr. Kleen's college career and he completed work for bachelor's degree in the spring of 1948. At Iowa State he was elected to membership in Alpha Zeta, national scholastic honorary society for agriculture students.

Duane Sandage, high school vocational agriculture instructor, was well acquainted with Mr. Kleen in college and was a fraternity brother. Duane reports that, besides being an excellent scholar, Mr. Kleen was a capable athlete and lettered in track. He also competed in baseball.

Up to date, 35 applications have been received for on-the-job farm training, starting July 1. This number will have to be reduced to a class of some 20 to 22—the maximum that a single instructor can handle.

Publication Day Later Next Week

Because of the closing of all Belmond business places next Tuesday, Memorial Day, the Independent will delay publication one day next week. The paper will therefor be in the mail Friday morning instead of Thursday, the customary publication day.

TED BEHRENDS PLANS TO NOTE ANNIVERSARY OF HIS SHOP OPENING

Just 10 years ago this week, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Behrends moved to Belmond from Emmetsburg and opened up what is now known as Ted's Shoe Shop.

To celebrate the anniversary and show their appreciation for the patronage they have enjoyed during the past decade, they are giving away free "three of the best pairs of shoes in the store". A pair will be given to some man, a woman and a boy or girl.

Anyone can stop in at the store during this Thursday, Friday or Saturday and register. The winners will be determined Saturday night at 9:30 o'clock. It will not be necessary to buy anything—or to be present Saturday evening—to be eligible to win.

Ted's store was closed for a little over two and a half years, beginning in January of 1943, while he was in the service. In the fall of 1945 Mrs. Behrends, who at the time was also operating the Coffee Shop, reopened the shoe store and Ted took over management when he was discharged in April of 1946.

Boyd Berghefer Named to Direct Summer Program

Boyd Berghefer, a Belmond High school graduate of 1938 and son of Mrs. A. Berghefer, has been selected as director of the summer recreation program which will start June 19. At present he is teacher of history and government at Estherville, a position he accepted last fall.

Larry Murray, head of the summer recreation committee, considers Mr. Berghefer as a man well qualified to conduct the program. He has had considerable experience overseeing children's activities.

The recreation director is a graduate of Iowa State Teachers college, with the class of '49; during the war he was with the Army Engineers, holding the rank of sergeant at the time of his discharge.

All school ages through eighth grade will be invited to participate in the recreation program, which will largely be conducted in the city park. Mr. Berghefer will provide daily supervision and direction from 9:00 to 11:30 a. m. and from 1:00 to 4:30 p. m.

Croquet, shuffleboard, badminton, tennis and a variety of other sports and games will be offered to keep the youngsters entertained.

Mr. Berghefer will also take responsibility for checking all swimming parties before they leave for Clarion, to make certain that only children with proper tickets board the bus.

Pee-wee baseball will again be an important phase of the recreation program. Present plans provide for two games to be played weekly. Candidates will be divided into four groups, by geographical division of the town, and four teams will be formed.

Volunteer managers will supervise the baseball activities. They are Lem Long, Arlo Stoltenberg, Don Scott and Don Faris. Great interest was shown in the pee-wee baseball last year, and a good turnout of candidates is anticipated.

SALE AT CHURCH PLANNED

Youth groups of the Methodist church plan a sale of baked goods, shell and plaster craft articles and rummage at the church this Saturday, starting at 10:00 a. m. A hot lunch, featuring chili, will be served over the noon hour.

J. Hanson Ranks As Valedictorian Of Senior Class

Jerry Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hanson won the distinction of being valedictorian of the Belmond High school graduating clas of 1950 by maintaining a four-year grade average of 3.718. Salutatorian was Marilynn Madsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Madsen. Her average was 3.65.

Principal Ceabern Squires explains that 3.0 represents a "B" grade, which in turn represents a percentage mark between 90 and 95. However, the local school disregards percentage grading and gives marks only by grade points.

Few graduates of Belmond High have exhibited versatility to match that of the 1950 valedictorian. His leadership was demonstrated by his election to the class presidency as a freshman. He also held a class office as a sophomore.

Jerry won eight letters in athletics and could easily have made it nine if other obligations hadn't kept him out of baseball this spring. He earned three monograms in football, three in baseball and two in basketball. He was a member of the "B" club from his freshman year.

The senior scholastic leader was particularly outstanding in music. His excellent bass voice won him a Division I rating in the state contest this spring. He competed three years as a soloist. He was also a member of the mixed chorus, boys' quartet and madrigal group.

Dramatics rounded out Jerry's list of extra-curricular activities. He appeared in the class play both as a junior and senior, and this past year was in the cast of one of the speech department's one-act plays.

Marilynn Madsen has also participated in quite a range of activities. She, too, was prominent in music and was a soloist her last three years besides singing with the girls' glee club, mixed chorus, girls' trio and madrigal group. She was a member of the "Hoofbeats" staff for four years and was recently elected to Quill and Scroll, honorary high school journalism society. She was a member of the Pep Club her first three years, during which time she served as a cheerleader.

Besides the valedictorian and salutatorian, nine other senior students earned a place on the class honor roll with four-year averages of B or better. They were Florence Baxter, Daryl Boelman, Roger Hanson, Richard Kriens, Marilyn McNutt, Lois Mehl, Curtis Mennega, Carolyn Schleiffarth and Betty Soma.

Senior FFA Members Plan to Leave On Western Trip Week from Today

Three graduating senior members of the high school vocational agriculture class—Curt Mennenga, Jim Thompsen and Robert Redmond — accompanied by instructor Duane Sandage, will leave Thursday of next week on a seven-day western trip. Derl Morris, the fourth senior "voc. ag." student, will be unable to go because of job obligations.

Two-thirds of the trip expenses will be paid by the Belmond chapter of Future Farmers of America.

The boys plan to "sleep out" each night and to prepare all of their own morning and evening meals to keep the cost down to a minimum. They will cover about 2,200 miles.

A work schedule has been carefully prepared in advance, so that each day the boys will know exactly who's cooking the flap-jacks, who's doing dishes and so forth. The group intends to start out with sufficient food for a good share of the trip.

On the itinerary are stopovers at Boys Town, Denver, Rocky Mountain national park, the state university at Laramie, Wyo., and the Wyoming Hereford Ranch at Cheyenne—producer of more international livestock champions than any other ranch in the world.

The party will return through northern Wyoming, South Dakota and cut down through Sioux City.

If this initial venture is a success, Mr. Sandage plans to make a trip of senior FFA members an annual affair.

TOMAHAWKS DEFEATED IN FIRST GAME, 11-5

Rockwell downed the Belmond Tomahawks in their opening game of the season on the local diamond Sunday, 11 to 5. Played on a muddy field, the contest was called on account of rain at the end of six innings.

Both teams pounded out nine hits, but the visitors did a better job of bunching their blows They tallied all their runs in the second and third innings.

Bud Nissen was on the mound for the Tomahawks, with Bud Boelman and Don Brockett sharing duties at the receiving end. Boelman had a perfect day at bat, cracking out a safety on each of three plate appearances. Max Spain walloped a homer for the losers.

A return game at Rockwell is slated for this Sunday.

SORORITY HOLDS PICNIC

Delta Nu Sorority held a picnic at the Ben Fetrow home on Monday evening.

RANKS HIGH IN CLASS

Leland Joseph Jenison, son of Earl Jenison, was one of the high scholarship students at Iowa State college making up the upper three per cent of students in the Division of Engineering, class of 1953. He was among the five to six hundred outstanding students honored at the college's 25th annual Honors Day program last Thursday morning in the ISC gymnasium.

Cemetery Site Of Traditional Memorial Rites

Traditional observance of Memorial Day is planned for next Tuesday by the Belmond posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. Address of the day, to be presented during the exercises at the cemetery, will be delivered by Rev. J. Heber Miller of the Methodist church.

As a prelude to the patriotic ceremonies at the cemetery, the high school band will present a concert of sacred music starting at 10:00 a. m. At its conclusion, assembly will be sounded and singing of "America" will be led by Legion Commander Mac Jensen. The invocation will then be pronounced by VFW Chaplain Carroll Bamford.

Commander Bob Churchouse of the VFW will then speak a tribute of the war veterans of this community who have passed on, and Commander Jensen will read the roll call. A solo, "Sleep, Soldier Boy", will be sung by Mary Hardwick, followed by the Rev. Mr. Miller's address.

The two veteran organizations' commanders and the presidents of their Auxiliaries will lay wreaths honoring the dead of the last four wars. After playing of the national anthem, a rifle salute will be fired and taps sounded.

At the conclusion of ceremonies at the city cemetery, the color guards and firing squad will proceed to the Catholic cemetery to raise the flag and fire a salute. Upon return to town, the veteran delegation will stop at the library to raise the flag, which will fly at half mast up to that time.

Members of both veterans' organizations are requested by their commanders to report at the Memorial Building at 9:30 a. m. to assemble for a parade along Main street to the east end of town. There transportation will be provided to carry the marchers to the cemetery.

Duane Cunning will conduct the band during its appearance during the Memorial Day program. C. C. Benson will be bugler for the occasion. Arlo Stoltenberg will be Officer of the Day in charge of firing squad and color guard details.

FLOWERS NEEDED

Flowers are desperately needed for grave decoration on Memorial Day, according to Mrs. Lucille Stoltenberg, VFW Auxiliary president. Anyone having flowers they would care to donate for this purpose should call Mrs. Stoltenberg.

Rowat and Murray Made Humboldt City Engineers

Rowat and Murray Engineers have been named as city engineers for Humboldt, according to L. T. Murray, head of the firm's local office. The appointment was made at the May meeting of the Humboldt city council.

A large amount of construction is planned by the community for the current year, involving three new residential additions. Projects will include the laying of 50,000 line-feet of water extension, 20,000 of storm and sanitary, 40 blocks of asphalt street surfacing, 15 blocks of curb and gutter, and other items.

$3150 Bid Wins Outboard Motor

Merchandise with a total retail value of $356.75 went under the hammer as Lucky Buck auction No. 4 was held last Friday evening. Generally speaking the bidding was more spirited than at any previous sale, and a record high bid of 3,150 Lucky Bucks was made by Karl Loeffler for the outboard motor.

An electric mixer went to Herman Daniels on a bid of $2,325 and an occasional chair was bid in by Mrs. Joe Kaduce of Meservey for $2,160. Clarence Mickelson topped bidders competing for an electric toaster with an offer of $1,590.

Mrs. Herschel Johnson obtained a bedspread for $1,350 and Bob Nelson a chest of drawers for just 10 less Lucky Bucks. Mrs. Malvin Hanson paid $800 for a suitcase and Earl Hinman $700 for a child's scooter.

The list of items for this week's auction, topped by an eight cubic-foot refrigerator, has a total retail value of almost $400. The merchandise will include an Elgin wrist watch, kid's pedal roadster, bathroom scales—and five gallons of 2-4-D weed killer.

The preliminary figure shows an increase of only 64 over the population officially reported in 1940.

Tentative totals for 1950 indicate Wright county's population has decreased by 412 in the past 10 years, falling to 19,626. This fact is an unhappy one for elective officials of the county, as the drop below 20,000 places them in a lower pay bracket.

Both Clarion and Eagle Grove showed modest increases; the former added 165 to reach a total of 3,136, and the latter added 139 to bring its population to 4,163.

The only other Wright county communities reported so far are Goldfield, down 56 to 659; and Woolstock 255, a drop of 16.

FARM-FAMILY-OF-THE-WEEK

Don Braner Farms 160 Acres East of Belmond His Father Farmed for 32 Years Before Him

Don Braner is living and farming today right where he has spent his entire life—and he's happy about the whole thing. He took over the family 160 acres when his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Harm Braner, moved into Belmond about a year ago and operates it "on shares".

The farm, located four miles east of town, came into the ownership of the Braner family when Harm's mother--Mrs. Hilko Braner--purchased and turned it over to him at the time of his marriage, some 33 years ago. Harm bought it three years ago from the family estate.

Don's primary ambition is simply to be the best farmer possible. He says he thoroughly enjoys striving for record crops and raising good livestock. This year he has 54 acres in corn, 37 in oats, 34 in beans and 26 in clover. He's got 170 spring pigs, of which 40 are purebred Durocs. hTe farm also keeps 10 Holstein milk cows.

PRESENTING . . . Mr. and Mrs. Don Braner, Leslie Allan and Randall Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Braner have two children—Randall Lee, age six, and Leslie Allan, who is three. If any one thing distinguishes the Braner household, it is a spirit of cooperation which guarantees every member a voice in decisions.

"When there is any planning to be done, or if we buy something, we always do it together," says Mrs. Braner. "We work together like that in all things. Don gives help on things around the house, and I help with chores and in the field when it's necessary.

Don's hobby of woodworking figured into this relationship last winter when he remodeled the farmhouse kitchen and built new cupboards. Mrs. Braner's hobby is working with flowers, but she admits she hasn't had the time or opportunity to pursue it yet to the extent she'd like to.

Where hobbies are concerned, she says that the boys' is simply "mischief". Both their parents plan that Randall and Leslie shall be active in 4-H work when they reach the eligible age.

The Braners are Farm Bureau members and both belong to the Emanuel Reformed church.

Mishaps seemed to haunt Mr. and Mrs. Braner's courtship, but they attached no importance to them and had eyes only for each other from the time they first met at "Gov" Howell's Mello-Maid ice cream shop when it used to have a small dance floor in the back.

One time when Don was maknig a call on his fiance, the battery dropped out of his car and he didn't discover it until he'd pulled into the Earl Rukas' farm lane to pick up Aileen. That would have been the finish of that particular outing if Aileen's father hadn't considerately allowed the young folks to take his car.

Another misfortune almost delayed the young couple's wedding. On the day they planned to get their marriage license, Don lost his billfold, which contained the all-important blood test certificates he and his bride-to-be had obtained earlier. With the cooperation of Dr. A. M. Nelson duplicates were obtained and the license was duely issued.

As don starts his second year of farming alone, he emphasizes that likes it mighty fine and is looking forward to many interesting years to come.

Man May Wonder

Torrents of rain and blazing sun have left unscathed the overwhelming dignity of the wise and aged Sphinx. Many may wonder at its seeming eternal power and beauty . . yet it is a work of man as man is a work of God. And as the Sphinx shall endure forever, so shall man, recalled to His kingdom after a brief terrestial interlude.

Visiting around Iowa

by Joe Marsh

Iowa's Primary

Mary is getting a big kick out of the primary election campaign.

"Listen to the way those candidates argue," she says. Then she turns up the radio louder. "If these candidates lived in Russia, they'd all be shot inside of a week — just for having opinions."

Yes, it makes you think when you compare the "American way" with the straight-jacket they put on politics in Russia. Over there, even peoples' thoughts are regimented.

It makes a fellow want to hold all the harder to those principles that make democracy a living thing for all of us. Freedom of ideas in what we think, freedom of choice in our tastes and preferences. Tolerance, fair play!

How do they work? Well — Cousin Joe votes one way; I vote another. Neighbor Ed likes buttermilk — I like a mild glass of temperate beer. Each respects the other's rights, and opinions in everything from ballots to beverages — and that makes for the kind of democracy we all want — American style.

tapped at the scene of the Lerdal mishap for improper passing and having defective brakes. When Patrolman Sievers noted the car showed evidence of having figured in a recent accident itself and learned the same had never been reported, Gagnen was also charged for that omission. Mr. McGahy levied fines and costs totaling $25 when Gagnen appeared in justice court Saturday.

On Saturday, Gail R. Thayer was arrested by Patrolman Sievers two miles south of town for failure to halt at a "stop" sign. Thayer made his pilgrimage to Clarion the same day and settled with Mr. McGahy for $2.50 and costs.

Sunday found both patrolmen, Sievers and Sparby, nabbing Glen Bode of Rudd here in Belmond for allowing an unauthorized person to drive his car. Same old story—Clarion — McGahy—$2.50 and costs.

On Saturday night the patrol team of Sparby and Sievers arrested Maynard Harty on two chages—operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and driving without any license. Heard Sunday by Mr. McGahy, Harty was fined $10 and costs on the minor violation and bound over to the grand jury on the OMVI charge. Bond was set at $500—and was not paid.

There were two other OMVI arrests made in the county during the weekend. On Friday, John Rummens of Galt was nabbed in Vernon township by Sievers and Sparby. Rummens is a one-time loser on the same count; he was bound over to the grand jury and had bond set at $1,000. On Saturday in Clarion, Hartwick Racine Wigg was arrested by Sheriff Bob Blecker and Officer Gale Paul. His, too, was a second offense. He was bound over and bond set at $500. Mr. McGahy heard both cases.

All three men accused of OMVI offenses pled guilty on county attorney's information before Judge G. R. Hill in district court at Webster City on Tuesday. Harty drew a $300 fine, or 90 days in jail; Rummens and Wigg $500 each, or approximately five months in the lock-up. Harty's driver's license (previously suspended) was suspended for an additional 60 days and licenses of the other two, 180 days.

Wright Farmers Urged to Prepare To Spray DDS for Borer Control

That the combined efforts of Wright county's farmers, weather and machines did not materially reduce the over wintering hordes of corn borers is suggested by surveys in 11 Iowa counties by state and federal entomologists. These surveys showed that cornstalk ground seeded to oats is literally alive with strong healthy borers ready to pupate and emerge as moths and to lay eggs on corn later this season.

The average number of live borers per acre in the counties surveyed was 10,938. The range was from a low of 2,904 to a high of 24,684 live borers per acre. The average per centage of dead borers found was 17 per cent, which is about normal in comparison with previous years.

Wright county was not one of the 11 counties surveyed this spring. Wright county had five times as many borers to go into the winter last fall as compared to the previous fall. This was 1,824 borers per 100 stalks, the third highest county in number of corn borers in the state.

Cold weather has little effect on borer mortality. Field apparatus, livestock, exposure and other natural causes have reduced corn borers to some extent but not enough to be a significant factor in the corn borer control picture this summer.

In view of the tremendous population of live corn borers this spring, Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director, urges farmers to get set to carry out chemical control measures this summer.

Farmers should order sufficient insecticide to treat all early planted corn and have it on hand early for the critical period. Warehouse space will not be able to supply all demands on short notice during the critical period and timing of the spray is very important.

If using DDT, the recommendations are one and a half pounds of actual DDT per acre per spray. If the emulsion form of DDT is used it would require from two to three quarts per acre per spray, depending upon the per centage of the emulsion to put on one and a half pounds of actual DDT.

Seniors Bequeath A Variety of Possessions To Successors in Drawing Up The Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1950, members of BELMOND PUBLIC SCHOOL, being of sane mind, and whole body hereby draw and seal, this last will and testament, this 22nd day of 1950, and bequeath the following traits, to the Junior Class:

I, Marge Kenedy, leave my aches and pains, pillbox, and candy supply to Norma Stearns, and I hope she lives longer than I think I'm going to.

I, Bob Berns, leave my way with sophomore girls to Don Faris in hopes that he will have as much luck with it as I.

I, Janet Beavers, leave my complete and glamorous wardrobe to Beverly Lerdal—just the closet, that is.

I, Roger Hanson, leave my slide rule to Connie Sjoberg so she can get the correct dimensions of her diamond.

I, Gordon Hildebrand, leave my democrat political views to Louis Oberhauser in the event that he should get tired of his own.

I, Darlene Chapman, leave my ability to talk and chew gum in government class to Marilyn Ellis —or does she need it?

I, Deane Dorr, leave my manly build to Paul Griesy, and hope he is as much in love with it as I.

I, Shirley Proeger, leave my boots and saddle to Joan Slining as the perfect complement to her yodel

I, Jerry Hanson, leave my careless kisses to Marlys Watermiller ——with pleasure.

We, Darlene Hanson and Joyce Waddington, do sorrowfully give up our numerous convertibles to Darlene Thompson; however, we retain all rights to the contents therein.

I, Derl Morris, will my mustache and sideburns to Myron Trager.

I, Irene Smith, will my homemaking ability to Doris Mourlam.

I, Robert Redmond, will my Atlas Course to Dwight Whelan. Need I say more?

I, Marcella Green, do hereby leave my distinguishing title of Editor-in-chief of HOOFBEATS to Delores Green, and a big economical size bottle of aspirin; may she never need to buy more.

I, Marilyn McNutt, will my 100-word typing pin to Marlyn Watermiller. May he be inspired to greater things.

I, Nancy Quigley, leave my physics book and all my brothers and sisters to Millie Smith.

I, Roland Kinseth, leave my address book to Ray Ellingston, so that he can add to his mounting collection.

I, Helene Harbison, do hereby will my Garner class ring to Dixie Carstens to add to her other battle trophеys.

I, Sidney Swenson, will my freshman sweetheart to Dick Simpson, knowing she'll receive the proper attention.

We, Nancy Johnson and Bob Jenison, leave our '37 Ford to anyone who'll take it off our hands.

I, Vernon Dipple, leave my front teeth to Jack Riggs. He might need them by next Christmas.

I, Marion Loats, leave my red hair and freckles to Vernadean Berns and good riddance!

I, Daryl Boelman, just leave!

We, Evelyn Ziller and Shirley Lieuwen, leave our bookkeeping sets to Eleanor Riekens.

I, Darlene Rierson, leave my make-up and tardy slips on Mr. Squire's desk--as usual.

I, Mary Negrette, leave my brains and good disposition to Isabel Negrette.

I, Virgil Bunjer, will my drum major's baton to Aileen Kalkwarf plus a set of directions as to its use. May I emphasize the fact that it is not to be used as a method of discipline.

I, Donna Dorr, will my heartaches to Dick Elliot. He's welcome to them.

I, Edward Eccles, will my driver's license to Roy Hardwick. May he rest in pieces.

I, Betty Lou Nelson, will my beautiful dark complexion to Bev Pals.

I, Keith Greenfield, leave my nickname, "Windy" to Mary Ellen McClure. May she never fail to uphold its tradition.

I, Julane Gaffri, leave anything but me!

I, Connie Negrette, leave my shy ways to Rosemary Bleeker.

I, Richard Kriens, leave my curly hair, freckles, and my reputation as a flirt to Stan Eccles.

I, Shirly Nelson, leave my silly giggle to Clelan Redmond. He'll have need of it during his senior year.

I, Douglas Hoppel, will my ability to occupy the teacher's time to Bob Erdman!

I, Arlene Slining, will my doorless locker to the Janitors—they may as well have the other half.

I, Jim Thompsen, leave my locker, which burned by the ABC Method, to Bradley Jenison—if it doesn't disintegrate before next year.

We, Betty Soma and Lois Mehl, leave our brains, straight A's, blonde hair, blue eyes, our stenographic ability, our cousinly affection, and other attributes too numerous to mention, to Dorris Kickbush.

I, Duane Trager, leave my modeling contract for the Ipana Tooth-paste Company which advertises "the toothpaste for that sparkling, glistening, golden look in teeth" to any junior who can meet my standards of qualifications—if there is any!

I, Ramona Thompson, leave my fortunate future as a farmer to any future fortunate farmer's wife.

I, Florence Baxter, leave all my class rings, of various size, shape and description to Helen Gabrielson.

I, David Pals, leave my questionable ability for singing cowboy ballads to Bob Toft.

I, Curtis Mennenga, will Kaye's and my between-classes location by the study hall door, plus all topics of conversation and endearing phrases to Bill Trees. He can find his own girl, though!

We, Marilynn Madsen and Carolyn Schleiffarth, would like to leave all our admiraable qualities to Marian Meints and Norma Jean Hopkey, but don't feel we have anything we can afford to part with!

To the entire Junior Class, we leave our prestige as upper classmen, and all the rest of our property whatsoever and wheresoever, by nature, kind or quality, including our $30 class deficit.

We cheerfully leave our teachers all our tardy slips, report cards, chewing gum, and "True Romance" magazines.

We do hereby designate and appoint Mr. Squires the sole executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness thereof, we, the Senior Class of 1950, the testators, have set our hand and seal on this the twenty-second of May, One thousand nine hundred and fifty.

Reporting Farm Doings

by "Pat" Gallagher

(This week we have a "guest conductor" for the RFD column in the person of Oscar J. Hanson, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration's county committee. Some time ago we asked him for information on the 1950 soil conservation program. He very kindly handed it to us already written up—and we herewith pass it along.)

—R F D—

With the sign-up in the 1950 farm program completed and allotments made, a preliminary check shows that approximately 1826 farmers in Wright county intend to participate and carry out approved conservation practices.

Wright county's allotment for the soil conservation program this year is $88,000. Total value of practices as allotted to the individual farmers equals $188,045.-24. It is anticipated that a portion of these practices will not be carried out, thereby raising the percentage that will be paid for those which will be completed during the program year. Slippages may bring ultimate payments up to something like 75 per cent of maximum payment rates.

—R F D—

The four practices for which most of the allotments have been made are — liming, fertilizer for legumes and grasses; plowing under of green manure; and the seeding of legumes and grasses, over and above the amount that has been maintained for the past three years -- or considered normal for the past three years.

The primary purpose of the conservation program is better land use. To some people this may not seem important and may even seem untimely when we are having trouble with food surpluses.

However, history shows that we have never had a surplus over any 10-year period. It so follows in the production of food commodities that if our goal is abundance, we are apt to have surpluses and shortages at times. But regardless of occasional surpluses, it is only reasonable and practical to conserve our soil.

—R F D—

Top soil is our nation's basic and principal asset; all business ultimately depends on it. Sixty-five per cent of all raw materials come from the farm. Seventy per cent of the business of the world is the production, transportation and the sale of food. When a farmer produces a commodity, he produces new wealth. When that commodity is processed, again new wealth is created.

It is the processing of these raw materials that make jobs and wages for labor, and creates a financial need for capital. Therefor, soil conservation is more than an individual concern and problem; it becomes a national problem. It has taken nature centuries of time, by the process of sunshine, moisture and vegetable decay, to produce our top soil. This top soil is indepensable to man. None can survive without it.

—R F D—

Perhaps no nation has exploited its resources as fast as ours. Eighty per cent of our native forests have been used up or destroyed, and the annual cutting is greater than what is replaced. Of the original 760 million crop-producing acres in the U. S., 50 million acres have been ruined beyond repair and another 50 million have been reduced to a submarginal condition.

Each year 730 million tons of top soil is deposited into the Gulf of Mexico. This top soil, the "cream of our land", is equivalent to six inches of soil from about 5,000 quarter section farms. This loss comes mostly from the bread basket of our nation—the 10 corn belt states. Besides soil loss, erosion causes an annual damage of 92 million dollars to reservoirs, dikes and harbors, and another $280,000,000 to highways, bridges and railways.

—R F D—

We in Wright county, with comparatively level land, do not consider erosion as a problem. However, we do have some loss, most of which can be reduced by a good rotation system. Some areas should be farmed on contour, in order to control erosion.

Since 1941 we have been cropping our land very heavily with depleting crops, such as corn and soybeans. In 1941 Wright county farmers grew about 119,000 acres of corn. We have steadily increased this acreage until it it reached about 153,000 acres in 1949. There has also been a marked increase in bean acreage.

The result is that our depleting and conserving acreages are out of balance, both from a standpoint of conservation and a need for certain commodities at the present time. Adjusting crop production to market demands is a part of conservation. Soil fertility used in the production of a commodity for which there is no market wastes fertility which should be kept in the soil to be drawn from when the need becomes urgent.

Furthermore, one generation does not have the inherent right to exploit the soil and take from it that which belongs to others that are to follow them. Rather, as stewards of our soil, we should maintain it and leave it in as good or better condition than when we received it—for therein lies an important factor which will shape the future of our nation.

—R F D—

History reflects that in older parts of the world where populations increased and soil fertility decreased, civilization broke down and desolation followed. Even in our own time, conditions existing in Europe and Asia were to a large extent caused from a lack of food. A hungry nation often becomes a hot bed of irrational ideologies and a breeding ground for revolutions.

A nation is no richer than its resources. Of these, its people are the most important; but as their existance is dependent upon the soil, it follows that "as the soil goes, so goes man".

EDITORIAL FOR SENIORS ONLY—HERE'S

Our Own Two-Bits Worth

Each year, high school graduation classes the country over are bombarded with platitudes that are gauged to make their assault on the big, wide world likelier of success.

Hearing the typical commencement address (and we do not refer to Earl Hall's as such; at this writing we had not even heard it), one would gather that life must inevitably involve the severest kind of struggle; and that finding a comfortable niche and enjoying a lifetime within its confines constitutes something considerably less than respectable success.

We say both of these too commonly accepted generalities are the bunk. There's no denying that even the happiest adulthood has its ups and downs, and regardless of what career a person picks for himself or herself there are bound to be times when the question arises, "Why did I ever let myself in for THIS?"

But we'd like to join the ranks of senior advisors to suggest that doubts and misgivings will assail you the least often if you (1) don't take yourself to seriously; (2) pay as much attention to the privileges and pleasures of others as you do to your own; and (3) do what you LIKE to do in carving out a career.

We've known many people who have made their own lives miserable by attaching unwarranted importance to minor slights of others and minor slips of their own. Not a one of us counts for much in the big scheme of things. Accept the fact—and be happy about it.

Then bear in mind that there are few pleasures on earth to compare with "that good feeling" that comes from doing small things for others. The most contented people we know are individuals who regularly spice up their own lives by small, thoughtful gestures that bring pleasure to others—and who refuse to defend a minor principle for the principle's own unimportant sake.

And finally, we'll say that WITHOUT EXCEPTION we've NEVER known a happy, contented person who was engaged in a career he or she truly DISLIKED. The world's too full of square pegs in round holes; don't YOU add to their number. Sometimes the first guess is wrong, and a fellow suddenly discovers each day it's getting progressively harder to face the old job. Often it takes courage, in such cases, to change channels—but well it pays off in the end!

Popularity, prestige, power, wealth (there ARE still a few who find ways to get rich)—none of them compensate for pursuing an occupation or career that robs daily living of genuine pleasure and peace of mind.

Life's what each of us makes it—and for that reason we'll go along with the platitude spouters to the extent of agreeing that, today a great opportunity IS yours! Good luck, and power be to you!

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CLASS OF '50

Cases of Petty Thievery Should Be Promptly Reported

In the past week or so, we have heard of a good-sized handful of suspected break-ins or cases of pilfering which have not been brought to the attention of law enforcement authorities. We are rather at a loss to understand the general reluctance to report such incidents.

If this negligence is to be explained by hesitancy "to get anybody in trouble", we believe it is misguided generosity. If the pilfering is the work of an adult or adults, such a sympathetic attitude is uncalled for; and if it is the work of juveniles, there is no time like the present for them to be impressed with the unpleasant consequences of such activities.

The hands of your police officials and the county sheriff are tied if they are not promptly notified when pilfering is suspected. And the present keep-it-mum attitude only encourages further forays, which in time are likely to become of a more serious nature.

Consequently, we urgently recommend prompt reporting of suspected break-ins so that the proper authorities can investigate them with a view to controlling the growing epidemic of petty thievery.

Mother Nature's Pointing Up Need for Sound Farm Plan

After contributing to a number of bumper crop years in consecutive order, there is every indication that Mother Nature is going to be much less cooperative with the midwest's farmers this year. She's been throwing the book at 'em—floods, dust storms, chilly temperatures and just about everything else you can think of.

The experts say that planting over most of the cornbelt is running two to three weeks late, and even yet the delay has failed to bring anything resembling ideal weather.

A year ago last week, soil temperatures through the corn area averaged 65 degrees and at least a fifth of the corn was already in. This year, soil temperatures in this area were still down around 47 and planting was just getting started.

On top of it all, Wright county farmers must anticipate a fight against corn borers on a larger scale than ever before. It certainly appears that Dame Nature is determined to get in her own licks on the corn-surplus problem.

The whole situation points up the indisputably unique kind of "business conditions" that exist only in the occupation of farming. The vagaries of the weather play such a large part in a farmer's success or failure that few reasonable people will deny that he deserves the protection of a sound agricultural program.

One thing is certain. This year's probable trials and tribulations are likely to make the farmer acutely interested in how the politicians figure to minimize his peculiar risks. And we have a feeling it's going to make the farmers more critical of fancy-sounding but impractical proposals than they might have been if their troubles were prospective instead of immediate.

Real Once-in-Lifetime Sale; White House Relics Offered

From Rep. James I. Dolliver comes a communication to the effect that relics from the renovated White House are to be made available to "museums, colleges, churches, libraries, patriotic, civic or similar organizations" and that he aims to see that the 15 counties of Iowa's sixth district get their share.

He states that the cost of the mementos will range from 50 cents to "a substantial amount," depending on the size of the souvenir. The only expense involved will be for handling, packing, and transportation.

This should provide a real field day for souvenir hunters. Just how much significance a piece of stone, brick or timber, floor board, antique nail, iron band or similar piece of construction material may possess is perhaps open to question, but we've no doubt that in years to come members of many a community organization will "point with pride" to such mementos acquired in this biggest of spring cleanings.

Qualified groups in this vicinity can get their bid in for such a relic by writing before June 1 to Rep. James I. Dolliver, 1711 House Office Building, Washing 25, D. C. Just describe what you want, and Mr. Dolliver promises he'll try to get it for you.

Brown's Platform Appears To Be Gambling on Local Option Basis

Maybe it comes under the heading of biting the hand that feeds us, but we're inclined to question the merchandise that one of our advertisers is peddling. We refer to Bernard A. Brown of Sioux City, who is contesting Bob Larson for the Republican nomination for state's attorney general.

The early part of the month we received from the Iowa Press Association an advertising order indicating that we —and 64 other weekly and semi-weekly papers—could expect from Mr. Brown during May a total in advertising inches that would cost between $2,400 and $2,500.

What he is spending in the daily papers, or intended to spend (actually we didn't receive the second ad in the proposed weekly series), we don't know. But we suspect that his budget for advertising in dailies likely matched, at least, that which was drawn for the smaller town sheets.

Anyway you look at it, Brown is conducting one of the most expensive campaigns that this state has witnessed in quite some time. In fact, within our own rather limited memory, we can't recall when an off-year candidate for an office below the congressional or governorship level has spent so freely. We'd be very interested in a accounting of where the money's coming from.

Frankly, we suspect Mr. Brown's motives when he says, "I believe in the retention of authority at lower levels of government, under a system of Home Rule as the basis for peaceful, harmonious, dignified and contented people and communities."

A fellow attorney of Mr. Brown's from Sioux City stated in an open forum letter in last Sunday's Des Moines Register that, "During (the first six months of Brown's term as Woodbury county attorney), and until Attorney General Larson started his statewide campaign against organized gambling, Sioux City was the Mecca for gamblers, slot machine operators, card sharks and stick men . . . Never have I seen such a complete breakdown of law enforcement as that which occurred during the period in question."

It could be that the writer, Ray N. Berry, has an axe to grind with Brown—but those are pretty broad statements to make without some substantiation.

The whole gist of Brown's campaign is, "Elect me and I'll guarantee a strict hands-off policy insofar as local gambling problems are concerned." That may make for "contented" communities, but we question very much if it would make for efficient law enforcement in the state of Iowa.

Periodically Congress cocks a suspicious eye at the nation's life insurance companies, in regard to the nature of their investments, actuarial tables, sufficiency of their reserves— or even the mere size of some of them. When the day arrives that these commercial companies threaten to operate on a basis such as proposed by the government for the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program, what an investigation there'll be!

If there wasn't another rainfall between now and next November, you can rest assured the politicians would still find plenty of mud to sling.

Henry Waage, 54, Died Last Week

The Goodell community was shocked and saddened Wednesday of last week when word came that Henry Waage was critically ill and a short time later another message came that he had passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. Waage and son Charles lived at Colwell as they could not find living quarters at Charles City, where Mr. Waage was employed.

Henry Waage was born May 18, 1896, at Schleswig, Holstein, Germany. When 16 years of age he came to America, settling in Meservey. He was married to Esther Zeiman of near Thornton.

A few years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Waage moved to Goodell, "Heinie" being employed by the Wesenberg Implement company. While living here their son, Charles, now 17, was born. Later they moved to Garner and the past few years have lived at Charles City and Colwell.

"Heinie" had been suffering for years with ulcers of the stomach and last week became very ill and was rushed to the Charles City hospital, where he died, lacking one day of reaching his 54th birthday.
